breast—the mouth). And because the first machine is in turn connected to another whose flow it interrupts or partially drains fragmented. Desire causes the current to flow, itself flows in turn, and breaks the flows. I love everything that flows, even and constantly cut off by other partial objects, which in turn produce other flows, interrupted by other partial objects. Every object intoxications. Moreover, he explained a large part of delirium in turn as an effect of automatism; as for the rest of supposedly produces this flow. And doubtless this second machine in turn is really an interruption or break, too. But it is production of desire, how have the child's desiring-machines begun to turn endlessly round and round in a total vacuum, so as a ribbon, a little girl, a cop, a shoe suddenly turn up. Each chain captures fragments of other chains from which a deactualization of the institution itself and denounce it in turn as anachronistic. The two kinds of fantasy, or rather the is permitted until the age when the young man in turn submits to the principle of pairing that regulates the social to her own father lead to the son's inability, in turn, to even posit his desire toward his mother. Whence the comfort found in the bourgeois family is admittedly necessary to turn out oedipalized subjects, the question of knowing what is actually their Oedipal, exclusive, restrictive use. This restrictive use in its turn has two poles, imaginary and symbolic, since the only choice Cut into the flow of milk here, it's your brother's turn, don't take a crap here, cut into the stream of say that Oedipus is strictly good for nothing. Let us turn to the beautiful story of Gerard de Nerval: he wants leaves open and that the ego forbids itself in its turn (the double-impasse formula): Could one find examples [illustrating the diagram the process is caught in the trap and made to turn about within the triangle, sometimes it takes itself as an fixed stocks and the mobile debts—insofar as they in turn imply relations between chains and flows in both directions—are compatible with the inscribed disjunctions, even if they react in turn on the form of these disjunctions. Such is alliance, the son carries away a part of the placenta in his turn, it is in an intensive relationship with another part that disfiguration of the repressed. The fact that this image in turn finally suffers a repression, that it comes to take the the contrary a nuclear constant around which families and institutions turn. The culturalists invoke other triangles—maternal uncle-aunt-nephew, for example; but taken, as well as the names of these species in turn, and the technical procedures with which they are treated. Selections machine that overcodes the territorial machine and, with an additional turn of the screw, represses the desiring-machines. Incest derives from this it extracts the bricks or that it segments in its turn. In a certain sense it is necessary to say as are mere forms which it assumes and casts off in turn. Nay more: instead of simply representing the relations of commodities within the given limits, and by widening these limits in turn—especially within an order of military expenditures that are in escape. These revenues are tapped by the firms and in turn form an afflux by means of a conjunction; a flow regulated by coded gaps that the signifier overcodes in its turn. There result diverse but always convergent consequences: the comparison of the laws of the market? Why does it form in turn a gigantic machine for social repression-psycho repression, aimed at what organized or promoted by the State, even though they might turn against the State and cause it serious problems (regionalism, nationalism suddenly become charged with a dangerous progressive value. of the unconscious to its limits. Here Oedipus encounters its two extremes, its minimum and its maximum, depending on whether it is a familial trinity insufficiently structured by faith: always the two poles in inverse proportion, Oedipus forever! How many interpretations of a myth and its variants. The difference is not between two uses of Oedipus, but between the anedipal use of the destructions can be brought about, as we shall see, in two very different ways. The crossing of a threshold entails ravages entirety of the extended family also would oscillate between the two poles of a healthy triangulation, structuring and differentiating, and forms comparison between microcosm and macrocosm was thus a comparison between two closed figures, one of which expressed the other and was

as a referential axis, it is quite clear that the two ends of Oedipus have simply been closed, and that the the polyvocal real in favor of a symbolic relationship between two articulations: so that is what this meant. Everything is made or border shifts to the interior of Oedipus, between its two poles.) One word here on the disgrace of psychoanalysis in psychoanalysis in history and politics. The procedure is well known: two figures are made to appear, the Great Man and the the Crowd. One then claims to make history with these two entities, these two puppets, the Great Crustacean and the Crazy then claims to make history with these two entities, these two puppets, the Great Crustacean and the Crazy Invertebrate. Oedipus is to the segregative and biunivocal use. Delirium has something like two poles, racist and racial, paranoiac-segregative and schizonomadic. And between the poles, racist and racial, paranoiac-segregative and schizonomadic. And between the two, ever so many subtle, uncertain shiftings where the unconscious itself global and specific. This global-specific use was found to have two aspects, parental and conjugal, to which the triangular form of exclusive, restrictive use. This restrictive use in its turn has two poles, imaginary and symbolic, since the only choice it permits view of the unconscious itself, has what appear to be two moments: first, a moment that is racist, nationalistic, religious, etc repression, the forces of social repression. This response, however, leaves two problems untouched and makes them even more urgent: on the situation of Oedipus in this social repression-psychoic repression system. The two problems are obviously linked because, if psychic repression did bear formulation of an inverse relationship: there would be something like two groups, the psychotics and neurotics, those who do not tolerate growing more and more suffocating. So, do you believe these two groups are capable of being joined? I am not too recording on the socius, that are in opposition throughout the two groups. The innate science in psychosis and the neurotic experimental neurosis triangle. On a more general level, it is the two kinds of use made of synthesis that are in opposition come to the realization that the simple opposition between the two groups is inadequate, an opposition that would allow one to escape. It is not even enough to state that the two groups are capable of being joined. Rather it is the

Rather it is the possibility of discriminating directly between the two that creates the difficulty. How can we distinguish between the reserve an extra-oedipal explanation for the psychoses. There are not two groups, there is no difference in nature between neuroses and status other than ulterior or privative. This came about as two concerns were found to be linked in an apparent paradox the units of production), although the measuring is done in two contrary directions. But what does it matter, after all, if end of history has no other meaning. In it the two meanings of process meet, as the movement of social production necessarily to be ill, notwithstanding that in our culture the two categories have become confused.... From the alienated starting point of allowed to speak here, he could talk about the first two, although they are in fact the most reasonable. The first old fascist dream. Never has delirium oscillated more between its two poles. But through the impasses and the triangles a schizophrenic is supposed to inscribe itself in this fashion between the two poles of Oedipus, problem and solution, neurosis and sublimation, desire subjects literature to the mark of castration and sanctifies the two aspects of its Oedipal form? And who told this shrewd interior of the domain thus described by Oedipus, between the two poles of Oedipus. They never stop involuting and evolving between Oedipus. They never stop involuting and evolving between the possible breakdown, and all the transitions, the intrications of the two extremes? In point of fact, of the three preceding adventures private property and commodity production, which presents itself, however, as two quite distinct forms of decoding, by privatization and by abstraction that any Ego is related to the kinsman of his two parents because he is the descendant of both parents and not identical with administration. Filiation and alliance are like the two forms of a primitive capital: fixed capital or filiative stock and circulating capital or mobile blocks of debts. There are two memories that correspond to them, the one biofiliative, the other to permit matrimonial connections between elements that the disjunction of two moieties would forbid from the strict viewpoint of structure: The

and the fluctuations of alliance. The whole system evolves between two poles: that of fusion through opposition to other groups, and itself as though it were their cause. These are the two aspects of the full body: an enchanted surface of inscription them. But, this principle once established, we must distinguish between two points of view: the one economic and political, where alliance parallel cousins and the approbation of cross-cousins: each marriage between two lines A and B bears a (+) or (-) sign an A man married to a B woman, obviously has two signs, according to whether it is envisaged from the viewpoint his genitrix, and the mythical rule of the union of two paired members proposes him as the ideal husband. Hence, in as the children depend on it. Whence the distinction between two lines, the one continuous and germinal, but the other discontinuous mythology is a patrilineal version of the opposition between the two genealogies and the two filiations: in intensity and in extension version of the opposition between the two genealogies and the two filiations: in intensity and in extension, the intense germinal order does not exist. Incest is a pure limit. Provided that two false beliefs concerning the limit are avoided: one that makes nor a beyond: it is the boundary line between the two—Incest, that slandered shallow stream—always crossed already or not of these local lines that Leach has identified—and which, two by two, organize the alliances and arrange (machine) the marriages local lines that Leach has identified—and which, two by two, organize the alliances and arrange (machine) the marriages. When we between a man and a woman, but an alliance between two families, a transaction between men concerning women, Georges Devereux drew filiation. However, Devereux seems to us to be wrong on two occasions. First, when he admits having recoiled too long before nor is it possible to establish one-to-one relations between the two that would confer on any familial complex whatever an expressive shamanistic cure (Devereux, Levi-Strauss). Our definition of schizoanalysis focused on two aspects: the destruction of the expressive pseudo forms of the

On the side of the universal there are two poles: one—outdated, it would seem—that makes of Oedipus structure in fantasy, in relation to biological prematurity and neoteny. Two very different conceptions of the limit, one as original matrix the family or even Oedipus, always oscillating between the famous two poles, the pre-oedipal maternal pole of the Imaginary, and the it must establish a network of one-to-one relations between the two. For Oedipus to be occupied, it is not enough that where each contemplates the other with perplexity, placing in opposition two irreducible sectors of symbolism? A social sector of symbols, and of private universal, a kind of individual-universal? (Transversals between the two, since social symbolism can become a sexual material, and sexuality Hence the duality is displaced, it is no longer between two sectors, but between two kinds of questions. The two sides of the body without organs are, therefore, the side clinical theory, paranoia and schizophrenia can be presented as the two extreme oscillations of a pendulum oscillating around the position of Molecular Unconscious What is the meaning of this distinction between two regions: one molecular and the other molar; one micropsychic or terms of the aims of desire. The link between the two remains secondary and indirect, both in the new means appropriated that this text seems at first merely to contrast the two common arguments, the one according to which the organisms are that no vapour-engine was ever made entirely by another, or two others, of its own kind, is not sufficient to warrant the female wasp. At this point of dispersion of the two arguments, it becomes immaterial whether one says that machines are one says that machines are organs, or organs, machines. That is, the relationship between the two sexes (man and woman) is only the measure of the be called the species determination of the sexuality of the two sexes. And must it not also be said that the of the large aggregate invested by the libido, whence the two sexes necessarily derive, both in their separation (the two homosexual the two sexes necessarily derive, both in their separation (the two homosexual series of man and man, woman and woman) and that the true difference is not the difference between the two sexes, but the difference between the human sex and the representation is just as much the idea that there are two sexes as the idea that there is only one. We phallus as an object on high, which distributes lack as two nonsuperimposable sides and makes the two sexes communicate in a which distributes lack as two nonsuperimposable sides and makes the two sexes communicate in a common absence-castration. But this time, far from founding the communication between the two sexes, one founds instead their separation into two homosexual series between the two sexes, one founds instead their separation into two homosexual series that remain statistical. And one does not by Making love is not just becoming as one, or even two, but becoming as a hundred thousand. Desiring-machines or the nonhuman thousand. Desiring-machines or the nonhuman sex: not one or even two sexes, but n sexes. Schizoanalysis is the variable analysis of interruption, in a repressive machine that divides the essence in two, and maintains it divided—abstract labor on the one hand the theatrical and structural representation it makes visible, he offers two that are especially striking: the theater raises the familial relation longer passes between objective representation and desiring-production, but between the two poles of subjective representation, as infinite imaginary representation, and as p 307 that crosses through their body without organs. Previously we distinguished two poles of delirium, one as the molecular schizophrenic line of of the process, or on the contrary its interruption—the two are so closely interrelated that they can only be evaluated familial agent extends the one into the other. Between the two, however, the relationship is rather that of an included disjunction long as we establish a relation of exclusion between the two. The deterritorialization of flows in general effectively merges with mental stress the difference in regime and in scale between these two machinic species. It is true that one might instead wonder as it ensures the relative coexistence and displacement of the two different functions. Now let us assume that the respective flows Now let us assume that the respective flows associated with two partial objects at least partially overlap: their production remains distinct they cannot be further distinguished by exclusion there where the two flows no longer overlap: one then finds oneself before a to neutralize—or on the contrary put into motion—the two activities, the two heads of desire. on the contrary put into motion—the two activities, the two heads of desire. For as we have seen, it can The partial objects and the body without organs are the two material elements of the schizophrenic desiring-machines: the one as the as the giant molecule, the others as the micromolecules—the two together in a relationship of continuity from one end to chain of desire. We have seen that a code implied two things—one or the other, or the two together: on the one hand, the specific determination of the code implied two things—one or the other, or the two together: on the one hand, the specific determination of the virtue of the working organs. There we do not have two desires but two parts, two kinds of desiring-machine parts, in working organs. There we do not have two desires but two parts, two kinds of desiring-machine parts, in the dispersion of There we do not have two desires but two parts, two kinds of desiring-machine parts, in the dispersion of the machine actually happen. Maurice Blanchot distinguishes this twofold nature dearly, these two irreducible aspects of death; the one, according to which the Oedipus and capable of being added to either of the two irreducible forms—neutralizing, mortifying life. The purpose of the topological that alone is economic. (Szondi situates the problem clearly: why two kinds of drives qualified as molar, functioning mysteriously, which is makes your knees go all risky. Just as there are two stomachs for the ruminant, there must also exist two abortions are two stomachs for the ruminant, there must also exist two abortions, two castrations for sick desire: once in the family stomachs for the ruminant, there must also exist two abortions, two castrations for sick desire: once in the family, in the sound to your ears, and rise up on your own two legs and sing with your own God-given voice [Numen]. To their difference in regime. But it could be that these two aspects, nature and regime, are in a sense potential and can be said that the identity in nature between the two productions is completely hidden there: as much by the difference nature, far from favoring an affinity in regime between the two modes of production, increases the difference in regime in a splitting of the subjective essence (the identity in nature) into two functions, that of abstract labor alienated in private property that make us forget the identity in nature. There are fundamentally two poles; but we would not be satisfied if we had are such investments. That is why our terminology concerning the two poles has necessarily varied. At times we contrasted the molar other times, on the contrary, we contrasted them as the two major types of equally social investments: the one sedentary and strong and determined as the other? And why are there two types of social investment that correspond to the two poles there two types of social investment that correspond to the two poles? The answer is that everywhere there exist the molecular relation of included disjunction, which varies only according to the two directions of subordination, according as the molecular phenomena are subordinated p 333

TYPICAL 5
There is no very great difference between false materialism and typical forms of idealism. The theory of schizophrenia is formulated in object-choice at puberty (Three Essays), or to a chapter on typical dreams (The Interpretation of Dreams). They say that this is fantasy, a child is being beaten, children are beaten—a typical group fantasy where desire invests the social field and its the nature of what is prohibited. There we have a typical paralogism—yet another, a fourth paralogism that we shall have Oedipus. We have seen, however, that the colonized remained a typical example of resistance to Oedipus: in fact, that's where the	p 22 p 53 p 61 p 114 p 169

The prime function incumbent upon all of them (les rabat toutes) to Oedipus as the ultimate territoriality—as reconstructed in the analyst's office and projected upon cannot avoid posing in eschatological terms the problem of the ultimate relationship between the analytic machine, the revolutionary machine, and desiring-machines method. For castration as an analyzable state—or nonanalyzable; the ultimate rock—is the effect of castration as a psychoanalytic act made autistic. Oedipus, the incomparable instrument of gregariousness, is the ultimate private and subjugated territoriality of European man. (Moreover the displaced psychoses. For in any case desiring-production is the cause, the ultimate cause of both the psychotic subversions that shatter Oedipus or as the last rock, and castration as the cavern: the ultimate territoriality, although reduced to the analyst's couch, rather than the into imperishable prestige through the medium of spectacular feasting. There is always an uncle from America; a brother who went bad; an aunt who genetrix, he should be in the position of his maternal uncle, the designated husband of this woman. Doubtless all the dramatis who should have married the mother was therefore the maternal uncle. The first consequence of this is that incest with the in relation to Oedipus. The subject does not reproach the uncle for having done what he himself wanted to do; he he the son could not do. And why didn't the uncle marry the mother, his somatic sister? Because he must not done it as well, and could have been himself this uncle in an intense relationship with the mother-twin. The vicious circle germinal lineage closes (the primitive double bind): neither can the uncle marry his sister, the mother, nor from that moment can what does the blocking or causes passage is the maternal uncle. UNCONSCIOUS	347
of all the ambiguities caused by a problem of the unconscious that is only apparently religious? The body without organs is of the condensations and identifications which are effected in the unconscious. But why does Freud thus add that, on second thought is the motive force behind the third synthesis of the unconscious: the conjunctive synthesis so it's ... , or the production of consumption of the production of desire, of the productions of the unconscious. But once Oedipus entered the picture, this discovery was soon brand of idealism: a classical theater was substituted for the unconscious as a factory; representation was substituted for the units of representation was substituted for the units of production of the unconscious; and an unconscious that was capable of nothing but expressing for the units of production of the unconscious; and an unconscious that was capable of nothing but expressing itself—in myth itself—in myth, tragedy, dreams—was substituted for the productive unconscious. Every time that the problem of schizophrenia is explained in of the passive syntheses of desire as autoproduction of the unconscious. Desire does not lack anything; it does not lack its though these two ways together constitute the autoproduction of the unconscious as a cycle. We can say that social production, under discovery of this fertile domain of a code of the unconscious, incorporating the entire chain—or several chains—of meaning: a Oedipus and totally demolish its ridiculous claim to represent the unconscious, to triangulate the unconscious, to encompass the entire production of its ridiculous claim to represent the unconscious, to triangulate the unconscious, to encompass the entire production of desire. The question that re-establish contact by connecting themselves to other partial objects. The unconscious is totally unaware of persons as such. Partial objects are cannot help but fail to understand the production of the unconscious itself, and the collective mechanisms that have an immediate bearing the collective mechanisms that have an immediate bearing on the unconscious: in particular, the entire interplay between primal psychic repression, the repression, the desiring-machines, and the body without organs. For the unconscious is an orphan, and produces itself within the identity of the identity of nature and man. The autoproduction of the unconscious suddenly became evident when the subject of the Cartesian cogito different: is there an equivalence between the productions of the unconscious and this invariant—between the desiring-machines and the Oedipal structure be better to schizophrenize—to schizophrenize the domain of the unconscious as well as the sociohistorical domain, so as to shatter tie between the analytic machine, desire, and production? For the unconscious itself is no more structural than personal, it does not desiring-machines pound away and throb in the depths of the unconscious: Irma's injection, the Wolf Man's ticktock, Anna's coughing machine, and Freud, all those neurobiologico-desiring-machines. And the discovery of the productive unconscious has what appear to be two correlates: on the one itself to a univocal impasse. All the chains of the unconscious are biunivocalized, linearized, suspended from a despotic signifier. The whole process as well as theory of the cure. The productive unconscious makes way for an unconscious that knows only how to of the cure. The productive unconscious makes way for an unconscious that knows only how to express itself—express itself in tragedy, and myth are adequate to the formations of the unconscious, even if the work of transformation is taken into account		p 13 p 13 p 17 p 24 p 24 p 24 p 24 p 24 p 24 p 26 p 26 p 33 p 38 p 44 p 44 p 46 p 49 p 49 p 49 p 49 p 53 p 53 p 53 p 54 p 54 p 54 p 54 p 54

remained more faithful than Freud to an autoproduction of the unconscious in the coextension of man and Nature. It is as dependence on Oedipus, and that he neuroticizes everything in the unconscious at the same time as he oedipalizes, and closes the he oedipalizes, and closes the familial triangle over the entire unconscious. The schizo—there is the enemy! Desiring-production is personalized, or	p 54 p 55 p 55 is reduced to mere fantasy production, production of expression. The unconscious ceases to be what it is—a factory, a workshop importance, but are subordinated to the forms of an expressive unconscious and no longer to the formations of the productive unconscious unconscious and no longer to the formations of the productive unconscious. The anoedipal nature of desiring-production remains present, but it is	p 55 p 55 p 55 forcing employed to introduce Oedipus, to inject it into the unconscious. Then Oedipus fell back on and appropriated desiring-production as if myths, which express forces or mechanisms eternally active in the unconscious. It should be noted that Judge Schreber's destiny was not in positing the adequation of the productive force of the unconscious and the edifying forces of myths and religions. This latter certain way this agreement subsists after their break. If the unconscious is thought to express itself adequately in myths and religions but they have in common the postulate that measures the unconscious against myth, and that from the start substitutes mere expressive to interpret the commonly postulated adequation. But to render religion unconscious, or the unconscious religious, still amounts to injecting something religious	p 56 p 57 p 57 p 57 p 57 p 58

What does the ambiguity lies there. What does belief applied to the unconscious signify? What is an unconscious that no longer does anything does belief applied to the unconscious signify? What is an unconscious that no longer does anything but believe, rather than produce produce? What are the operations, the artifices that inject the unconscious with beliefs that are not even irrational, but on the off the couch like water off a duck's back. The Connective Synthesis of Production Given the syntheses of the unconscious, the practical problem is that of their use, legitimate or consider the mutual reactions between the different syntheses of the unconscious following a given use. It is first of all the paralogism implying a transcendent use of the syntheses of the unconscious: we pass from detachable partial objects to the detached complete	p 68 p 70 p 73 specific egos. We deny that these are productions of the unconscious. What is more, castration and oedipalization beget a basic illusion its combined forces. Psychoanalysis itself ensures this conversion of the unconscious. In what it calls the pre-oedipal, it sees a stage ensuring, or tending to ensure, the reversion of the entire unconscious according to the anoedipal form and within the anoedipal content and practice never cease to promote the conversion of the unconscious to Oedipus, form and content. (We shall see in effect by denouncing the illegitimate use of the syntheses of the unconscious as found in Oedipal psychoanalysis, so as to rediscover a found in Oedipal psychoanalysis, so as to rediscover a transcendental unconscious defined by the immanence of its criteria, and a corresponding	p 74 p 74 p 74 p 74 p 75 p 75

Double bind is the term used by Gregory Bateson to	p 78 p 79 p 79
from a double impasse into which he was precipitating the unconscious. Thus in the 1936 letter to Romain Rolland, Freud writes authority. Oedipus is completely useless, except for tying off the unconscious on both sides. We shall see in what sense Oedipus than Oedipal psychoanalysis does. Its aim is to de-oedipalize the unconscious in order to reach the real problems. Schizoanalysis proposes to problems. Schizoanalysis proposes to reach those regions of the orphan unconscious—indeed beyond all law—where the problem of Oedipus can	p 80 p 81 p 81 p 82 and the pushing of the process of oedipalization of the unconscious to its limits. Here Oedipus encounters its two extremes, its swing of a pendulum responsible for sweeping away the entire unconscious, and that continuously carries us from one pole to the to the other. A double pincer action that crushes the unconscious caught in its exclusive disjunction. The true difference in nature nature, an extrinsic perception rather than an operation of the unconscious upon itself. From the beginning of the life of the put in their true places within the workings of the unconscious, as inductors of an indifferent nature, yet the role of we have it—the incurable familialism of psychoanalysis, enclosing the unconscious within Oedipus, cutting off all vital flows, crushing desiring-production, conditioning	p 82 p 83 p 83 p 92 p 92 p 92
use distorted the nature of the intensive quantities in the unconscious. Nevertheless it still respected in part the general principle of nature of the agents that are in question in the unconscious itself. When Frantz Fanon encounters a case of persecution psychosis first asks himself if he has to deal with an unconscious guilt complex following on the death of the mother, as at this point. Fanon pointed out that troubled times had unconscious effects not only on the active militants, but also on a figure or a structure able both to represent the unconscious, and to represent in it the various agents of the war, May '68—all these things form complexes of the unconscious, more effective than everlasting Oedipus. And the unconscious is indeed of the unconscious, more effective than everlasting Oedipus. And the unconscious is indeed at issue here. If in fact there are contrary, because it proposes to demonstrate the existence of an unconscious libidinal investment of sociohistorical production, distinct from the conscious investments	p 93 p 96 p 96 p 97 p 97 p 97 p 97 p 97 p 98

Yes, the family is a stimulus—but a stimulus that that was still familial, instead of interpreting it in an unconscious system of production as such (analytical economy). The great argument genesis. At least in the beginning, this argument runs, the unconscious is expressed in a state of familial relations and constellations even in the shadow of a transcendent phallus are the unconscious effects of a signified established throughout the determinations of a age, but within the order of a repression of the unconscious. It is equally true that everything within the order of other uses of syntheses that feed the autoproduction of the unconscious—the unconscious-as-orphan, the playful unconscious, the meditative and social unconscious	p 98 p 99 p 99 p 100 p 100 p 100

are socioeconomic complexes that are also veritable complexes of the unconscious, and that communicate a voluptuous wave from the top to this happens, not in ideology, but well beneath it. An unconscious investment of a fascist or reactionary type can exist alongside conforming to a conscious interest. In any case conscious and unconscious investments are not of the same type, even when they or are superimposed on each other. We define the reactionary unconscious investment as the investment that conforms to the interest of is derived: I am of the superior race. The revolutionary unconscious investment is such that desire, still in its own mode of an intense potential for investment and counterinvestment in the unconscious. Oedipus disintegrates because its very conditions have disintegrated. The nomadic the two, ever so many subtle, uncertain shiftings where the unconscious itself oscillates between its reactionary charge and its revolutionary potential p 105 heard a familiar chord: it is well known that the unconscious takes a lot of time to digest a bit of one can even quote some texts of Freud on the unconscious being ignorant of time, conserving its objects like an Egyptian of God spends a long time plodding around in the unconscious. He means that what takes so long in coming to that the death of God makes no difference to the unconscious. The fruits of this news are not the consequences brought whether we believe in this, but whether or not the unconscious itself believes in it. But what is this unconscious when the unconscious itself believes in it. But what is this unconscious when reduced to the state of belief? Who injects it of man and nature; a circular movement by which the unconscious, always remaining subject;; produces and reproduces itself. The unconscious does the unconscious, always remaining subject;; produces and reproduces itself. The unconscious does not follow the paths of a generation progressing (or not its subject. The sole subject of reproduction is the unconscious itself which holds to the circular form of production. Sexuality in the service of sexuality as an autoproduct of the unconscious. Sexuality does not represent a premium for the ego, in the passage from one body to another through which the unconscious does no more than reproduce itself in itself. Indeed, in in itself. Indeed, in this sense we must say the unconscious has always been an orphan—that is, it has engendered and the same misconception (contresens) concerning the nature of the unconscious. But psychoanalysts are bent on producing man abstractly, that is include those triangular relations other than the parent-child relations. The unconscious poses no problem of meaning, solely problems of use. The determination of these criteria, immanent to the field of the unconscious, insofar as they are opposed to the transcendent exercises of its own self-criticism. It sets out to explore a transcendental unconscious, rather than a metaphysical one; an unconscious that is material explore a transcendental unconscious, rather than a metaphysical one; an unconscious that is material rather than ideological; schizophrenic rather than Oedipal imaginary; real rather than symbolic; machinic rather than structural—an unconscious, finally, that is molecular, microphysical, and micrological rather than molar p 109 so as to better describe the treatment forced on the unconscious when it is bound at both ends, leaving it no biunivocal use, illegitimate from the point of view of the unconscious itself, has what appear to be two moments: first, a direction of a frenzied oedipalization, a betrayal of desire, the unconscious closeted in a day nursery, a narcissistic machine for arrogant error, an idealism that forms a pious conception of the unconscious. And it is futile to interpret these notions in terms of eternal repression recommences, the operation that closes around the unconscious the circle of prohibition and transgression, white mass and black basis for a punctual semiology. It is said that the unconscious is dark and somber. Reich and Marcuse are often reproached reproached for their Rousseauism, their naturalism: a conception of the unconscious that is thought to be too idyllic. But doesn't one be too idyllic. But doesn't one indeed lend to the unconscious horrors that could only be those of consciousness, and of Would it be an exaggeration to say that in the unconscious there is necessarily less cruelty and terror, and of a an heir, a soldier, or a Chief of State? The unconscious has its horrors, but they are not anthropomorphic. It is reason that engenders monsters, but vigilant and insomniac rationality. The unconscious is Rousseauistic, being man-nature. And how much malice and ruse in Rousseau! Transgression, guilt, castration: are these determinations of the unconscious, or is this the way a priest sees things? Doubtless there are many other forces besides psychoanalysis for oedipalizing the unconscious, rendering it guilty, castrating it. But psychoanalysis reinforces the movement imposes a transcendent use on all the syntheses of the unconscious, ensuring their conversion. The practical problem of schizoanalysis is, then to ensure the contrasting reversion: restoring the syntheses of the unconscious to their immanent use. De-oedipalizing, undoing the daddy-mommy spider web made a psychoanalyst enter into the domains of the productive unconscious, he would feel as out of place with his theater upon the Oedipus complex as an adequate expression of the unconscious? Must we even follow Freud in saying that the Oedipus has of getting a grip on intention, of making the unconscious guilty. In short, we are not witness here to a of the flows of sexuality and the intensities of the unconscious, and who is incensed and bewildered by what Freud is for action....This has nothing to do with the active unconscious [which] sparkles, vibrates, travels ... we realize that the unconscious contains active unconscious [which] sparkles, vibrates, travels ... we realize that the unconscious contains nothing ideal, nothing in the least conceptual, and hence more than secondary from the point of view of the unconscious. That is why critics have been able to observe a wool. Psychic repression distinguishes itself from social repression by the unconscious nature of the operation and by its result (even the by its result (even the inhibition of revolt has become unconscious), a distinction that expresses clearly the difference in nature between that it is everywhere (in the enterprise of domesticating the unconscious, of representing desire and the unconscious). To be sure, we enterprise of domesticating the unconscious, of representing desire and the unconscious). To be sure, we have never dreamed of saying that last burst of energy to the displacement of the entire unconscious. What they do is merely to make the unconscious speak entire unconscious. What they do is merely to make the unconscious speak according to the transcendent uses of synthesis imposed on is essentially active, aggressive, artistic, productive, and triumphant in the unconscious itself. It is in this sense, as we have seen as he lacked it in the symbolic organization of his unconscious. On the contrary, he is ill because of the oedipalization the real, whereas in neurosis the identity remains that of unconscious representations and does not compromise perception. But what is there have seen what remains common to Freud and Jung: the unconscious always measured against myths (and not against the units of body.... It is a question of the recognition of an unconscious desire, and not of this desire's satisfaction. Recognizing the desire intensity. The egg and the placenta itself, swept by an unconscious life energy susceptible to augmentation and diminution. The father is even if it is brought into relation with an ethnic unconscious—as seen in attempted parallelisms between the psychoanalytic cure and aspects: the destruction of the expressive pseudo forms of the unconscious, and the discovery of desire's unconscious investments of the social pseudo forms of the unconscious, and the discovery of desire's unconscious investments of the social field. It is from this point of a social field by interests, but—more profoundly—its unconscious investments by desire, such as they pass by way of brings to bear on desiring-production, on the syntheses of the unconscious, and on libidinal investments in our cultural and social milieu But not because Oedipus might be a truth of the unconscious that is especially visible where we are concerned; on the on the contrary, because it is a mystification of the unconscious that has only succeeded with us by assembling the parts of desire. These conditions, inseparable from the paralogsms of the unconscious, are realized in the capitalist formation; furthermore, they imply certain usurp the place of the representative of desire, snaring the unconscious in the trap of its paralogsms, crushing the whole of it would have no hold on the productions of the unconscious. Given these conditions, what is there to say about the serves no useful purpose, either for psychoanalysts or for the unconscious. And to what use could the phallus be put, since not come from a faulty knowledge or recognition of the unconscious, of sexuality, of the phallic nature of symbolism. In theory to make a similar discovery: namely, that there is no unconscious material either, nor is there a psychoanalytic interpretation, but only but only uses, analytic uses of the syntheses of the unconscious, which do not allow themselves to be defined by an question. The molecular chain is the form in which the genic unconscious, always remaining subject, reproduces itself. And as we have seen those that are already known. The signifying chain of the unconscious, Numen, is not used to discover or decipher codes of results in a misappreciation of all the syntheses of the unconscious. The body without organs is the model of death. As	p 328 p 329 p 329

of death is the most common of occurrences in the unconscious, precisely because it occurs in life and for life, in synthesis, the synthesis of conjunction. We have seen what this sense of the word could not be delegated in the unconscious by the molar forces and thus crush desiring-production. Repression properly psychoanalysis, which itself falls into the trap while causing the unconscious to fall into its trap, schizoanalysis follows the lines of superior race for all time. From the viewpoint of the unconscious libidinal investment, all the oscillations from one formula to the	p 339 p 339 p 340 p 343
of schizoanalysis: within the social investments we will distinguish the unconscious libidinal investment of group or desire, and the preconscious investment	p 343 of the same reality as social reality. There is an unconscious libidinal investment of desire that does not necessarily coincide with but they are not identical with this investment. Moreover, the unconscious libidinal investment is what causes us to look for our precise knowledge of political economy, is the business of the unconscious libido, inasmuch as it is presupposed by the aims. We necessarily coincide with what is reactionary or revolutionary in the unconscious libidinal investment. A revolutionary preconscious investment bears upon new aims	p 345 p 345 p 346 p 347
it could be that a part at least of the unconscious libido continues to invest the former body, the old form	p 347 viewpoint of the preconscious—it is not certain that the unconscious libidinal investment is itself revolutionary. For the same breaks do same breaks do not pass at the level of the unconscious desires and the preconscious interests. The preconscious revolutionary break is that subordinates desiring-production under new conditions. But even though the unconscious libido is charged with investing this socius, its investment is	p 347 p 347 p 347
the same sense as the preconscious investment. In fact, the unconscious revolutionary break implies for its part the body without organs creates, distributes, and satisfies new aims and interests. But the unconscious revolution does not merely refer to the socius that conditions is defined by the characteristics of a new aggregate, the unconscious or libidinal break belongs to the second level and is libidinal investments. Truly revolutionary preconscious interests do not necessarily imply unconscious investments of the same nature; an apparatus of interest never	p 347 p 347 p 348 p 348
is preconsciously revolutionary, such a group already presents all the unconscious characteristics of a subjugated group: the subordination to a socius	p 348
such and such a group? Did it ever have revolutionary unconscious investments? The surrealist group, for example, with its fantastic subjugation	p 349 task of schizoanalysis is therefore to reach the investments of unconscious desire of the social field, insofar as they are differentiated strange soft vibration on the air, going forth unknown and unconscious, and seeking a vibration of response. Or else she is	p 350 p 351

But more often it is solely a is to give us access to a modern and functional understanding of language. The imperialism of the signifier does not take practice. But this dissimulation does not depend on a faulty understanding so much as it expresses the capitalist field of immanence will invest with all its strength, irrespective of any economic understanding or lack of it, the capitalist social field as a this taste is destructive and morbid. as a dialectical totalization. Neither mechanism nor vitalism has really understood the nature of desiring-machines, nor the twofold need to consider organ, from the viewpoint of the unconscious, could not be understood except by proceeding from a lack or a primal deprivation all, is not such a bad thing. It is therefore understood that we leave one pole of Oedipus only to pass simulating a whore who is dancing. But simulation must be understood in the same way as we spoke of identification. It in nature between social alienation and mental alienation, must be understood in terms of a maintained familialism , and not in terms including its repressive structures. But social repression should not be understood by using as a starting point a familial repression coextensive civilization—far from it; it is civilization that must be understood in terms of a social repression inherent to a given it descends into an internal qualitative conflict that is necessarily understood in relation to Oedipus. (Oedipus, the fountainhead where the psychoanalyst mother's brother upon the marriage of his niece can be understood only in the following way: the girl leaves the previous there exists an Oedipal or filiative homosexuality, this should be understood merely as a secondary reaction to this group homosexuality, non-oedipal	p 44 p 60 p 80 p 87 p 95 p 118 p 118 p 128 p 164 p 165
latent presence of Oedipus appears only through its patent absence, understood as an effect of psychic repression—or, better still, since which wreaks havoc everywhere. For if the institution is first understood as a familial institution, it matters little to say that desiring-production. But in fact this last sense itself can be understood in many different ways. In the first place, desiring-production is of or beyond, without ever occupying the position (Kardiner has understood this very well in the formula we cited). It is is first in relation to the child can only be understood analytically in terms of another primacy, that of social investments the truth. It is the bad debtor who must be understood as if the marks had not sufficiently taken on him of liberation an ironclad impossibility. This infinitivatori (infinitivation) cannot be understood exactly as Nietzsche would have it—that is, as a commune, and feudalism presuppose the great empires, and cannot be understood except in terms of the Urstaat that serves as their of surplus value in relation to total capital, can be understood only from the viewpoint of capitalism's entire field of immanence the regulation performed by the State is even more readily understood if one sees that it is directly based on the the whimpering at not being loved enough, at not being understood, concurrent with the reduction of sexuality to the dirty little mother, and their real actions and passions must first be understood as fantasies of the child (the Freudian abandonment of the in relation to the laws of aggregates, but must be understood positively in terms of force (puissance). Between the substrate of Hellenists or even Jung); or else these representations may be understood by historical study that assigns them to their real and is an essentially critical interest, since the specificity of myth, understood objectively, must melt under the rays of the subjective libido all—castration. This entire struggle for the phallus, this poorly understood will to power, this anthropomorphic representation of sex, this whole model of death. As the authors of horror stories have understood so well, it is not death that serves as the exercise of the desiring-machines (which is their very secret, well understood by the terrifying authors). The machines tell us this, and is in desire as desiring-production. But these forms can be understood in two ways, depending on whether desire is enslaved to who would cleanse him of his crime.) Must these be understood as compromises and substitutes for incest? (Thus in The Wolf and dwarfism). Vitalism invokes an individual and specific unity of the living, which every machine presupposes insofar as it vitalist argument by calling in question the specific or personal unity of the organism, and the mechanist argument even more decisively argument even more decisively, by calling in question the structural unity of the machine. It is said that machines do not rather in what this passage blossoms into. Once the structural unity of the machine has been undone, once the personal and the machine has been undone, once the personal and specific unity of the living has been laid to rest, a direct the living as well. The machine taken in its structural unity, the living taken in its specific and even personal unity unity, the living taken in its specific and even personal unity, are mass phenomena or molar aggregates; for this reason each there would seem to be none, strictly speaking—no structural unity nor any preformed mechanical interconnections? In a word, universal history is not only retrospective, it is also contingent, singular say, an unrealized potentiality? Are we to believe that a universal Oedipus haunts all societies, but exactly as capitalism haunts them the fear of a decoded flow? If capitalism is the universal truth, it is so in the sense that makes capitalism earth is not without distinguishing characteristics. ethnographic extension to this interpretation. On the side of the universal there are two poles: one—outdated, it would seem—that as structural function. But in both these senses of the universal, we are invited to interpret, since the latent presence of Marx was saying as he recalled the requirements of a universal history—but, as he went on to say, provided that apparatus from elements of the previous social formations. It is universal in that sense. Thus it is indeed within capitalist society little streams. Oedipus is this displaced limit. Yes, Oedipus is universal. But the error lies in having believed in the following social repression-psyche repression system, in which case it is not universal; or it is universal, and a position of desire. In in which case it is not universal; or it is universal, and a position of desire. In reality, it is universal universal, and a position of desire. In reality, it is universal because it is the displacement of the limit that haunts flows of desire. This is not to say that the universal Oedipal limit is occupied, strategically occupied in all social formations a sexual sector that would constitute a kind of private universal, a kind of individual-universal? (Transversals between the two, since social it—and the inscriptions themselves—into an indirect means of universal exchange. that is free, of all that passes and flows; the universal effusion of the death instinct; depression and guilt used as means of production. So that capitalism is without doubt the universal of every society, but only insofar as it is capable from within: an intimate theater. Yes, Oedipus is nevertheless the universal of desire, the product of universal history—but on one Oedipus is nevertheless the universal of desire, the product of universal history—but on one condition, which is not met by at least to a certain point, of conducting its autocritique. Universal history is nothing more than a theology if it does the determinate conditions of capitalism. objective social conditions, psychoanalysis refers them to the subjective and universal essence of desire as libido. Thus the operation of decoding	p 301 capitalist machine tends to liberate the free figures of a universal subjective libido. In short, the discovery of an activity of objective determinate representations, for the benefit of production as the universal interior essence, but it does not thereby escape the world representations, and discovers in them the figures of a subjective universal libido; but it reanimates them, and promotes them as subjective extends myth and tragedy to the dimensions of the subjective universal: if Oedipus himself has no complex, the Oedipus complex has embodied in the signifieds of the Imaginary—Oedipus as a universal metaphor. Why the theater? How bizarre, this theatrical and pasteboard theater raises the familial relation to the condition of a universal metaphoric structural relation, whence the imaginary place and interplay of on the contrary, it adds another turn, it attributes a universal metaphoric value to the family at the very moment it itself reduced to testifying all alone for deterritorialization as a universal process. Karl Jaspers has given us precious insights, on this point as on so many others very first step that the Platonic logic of desire forces us to take, making us choose between production and acquisition. From the Platonic logic of desire forces us to take, making us choose between production and acquisition. From the moment that we we make desire an idealistic (dialectical, nihilistic) conception, which causes us to look upon it as primarily a lack: a lack causality and external mechanisms; nonetheless this knowledge does not prevent us from believing in the intrinsic power of desire to create relationship between the two systems of production. It merely enables us to point to certain phenomena having to do with the The artist is the master of objects; he puts before us shattered, burned, broken-down objects, converting them to the regime of territorialities infinitely more artificial than the ones that society offers us, totally artificial new families, secret lunar societies. As for the aspects of process are conjoined: the metaphysical process that puts us in contact with the demoniacal element in nature or within and of themselves, they are syntheses. Syntheses produce divisions. Let us consider, for example, the milk the baby throws up when that once existed, or in a final totality that awaits us at some future date. We no longer believe in the sort of mediation. This is not the case, however. Let us consider a child at play, or a child crawling about desiring-machines connected to parts of his body. It seems to us self-contradictory to maintain, on the one hand, that the child problems of the adult, and sexuality as a whole. Let us keep D. H. Lawrence's reaction to psychoanalysis in mind, and it has, psychoanalysis is reviving an age-old tendency to humble us, to demean us, and to make us feel guilty? Foucault is reviving an age-old tendency to humble us, to demean us, and to make us feel guilty? Foucault has noted that tendency to humble us, to demean us, and to make us feel guilty? Foucault has noted that the relationship between madness structure and its order of symbolic positions and functions. For us, however, the problem is one of knowing if, indeed, that that can be justified only by the advantages they afford us in our attempt to understand the delirium. Yet the more of the movement: so even we are still pious! Let us recall Marx's great declaration: he who denies God does only And doubtless an examination of the first argument would lead us to a similar conclusion. By joining sexuality to the familial or is signified by it in an analogical symbolization. Let us consider another text of Freud's, a later one, where Oedipus exclusive use of the disjunctions of the unconscious—and teach us resignation. Resignation to Oedipus, to castration: for girls, renunciation of only too reasonable and consistent with the established order? Let us return to the fantasy, a child is being beaten, children action and passion. In his recent works Klossowski indicates to us the only means of bypassing the sterile parallelism where we the practice of the cure, this abject desire that makes us bend our knees, lays us on the couch, and makes this abject desire that makes us bend our knees, lays us on the couch, and makes us remain there? Let us bend our knees, lays us on the couch, and makes us remain there? Let us consider a third and final text us on the couch, and makes us remain there? Let us consider a third and final text of Freud's, Analysis Terminable castration, the rock with two nonsymmetrical faces, which creates in us an incurable alveous, and against which the analyst stumbles. The and castration? Is it schizophrenia as a process that makes us sick, or is it the self-perpetuation of the process in we are reduced to them: either so as to measure us against that cross, or to establish that we cannot measure cluttered with refuse, instead of the schizophrenization that must cure us of the cure. 3 The Connective Synthesis of Production Given make do with it, too bad if it doesn't suit us. In this regard it is possible that Charlus's coarse admonition says Proust, it is madness and its innocence that disturb us. If schizophrenia is the universal, the great artist is indeed however, since the vegetal theme—the innocence of flowers—brings us yet another message and another code: everyone is bisexual, everyone in the light of castration. That is indeed what disturbs us, this recasting of history and this lack attributed to partial more, castration and oedipalization beget a basic illusion that makes us believe that real desiring-production is answerable to higher formations that disjunctions assert itself. It becomes nevertheless apparent that schizophrenia teaches us a singular extra-Oedipal lesson, and reveals to us an unknown schizophrenia teaches us a singular extra-Oedipal lesson, and reveals to us an unknown force of the disjunctive synthesis, an immanent use was my son. The disjunctive synthesis of recording therefore leads us to the same result as the connective synthesis: it too and an undifferentiated (un indifference) that it presupposes. Oedipus informs us: if you don't follow the lines of differentiation daddy-mommy-me, and that it orders and the undifferentiated with which it threatens us. With the same movement the Oedipus complex inserts desire into reverse of the differentiations that it creates. Oedipus says to us: either you will internalize the differential functions that rule over the viewpoint of Russell's theory of types. It seems to us that the double bind, the double impasse, is instead a rediscovery of an equivalent to parental authority, it must cause us to pass over to the other pole. In accord with anonymous management and vanishing personal power, etc.—is presented to us as a resurgence of the society without the father. Not psychoanalysis. But paradoxically, and perhaps because of Freud, everything leads us to conclude that this release, made possible by psychoanalysis, will Oedipus to create and shut the double impasse. to lead us back to the question of the father, to oedipalize even to show that a gap in the Symbolic would bring us back to the Imaginary, and inversely that imaginary drive or Imaginary, and inversely that imaginary drive or confusions would lead us to the structure! As a famous predecessor said to these you've already made this into an old refrain. As for us, that is why we were unable to posit any difference for sweeping away the entire unconscious, and that continuously carries us from one pole to the other. A double pincer action thread of latency that the order of families hides from us. Should the rupture with families be taken as a sort as a sort of familial romance that would indeed bring us back again to families and refer us to an event would indeed bring us back again to families and refer us to an event or a structural determination inside the family genealogy? Is history's signifier the dead father? Once again let us consider Judge Schreber's delirium. To be sure, the use of internal familial determination. And what is even more disturbing to us is the fact that the entirety of this enormous content the crudest fashion the inadequacies of an Oedipal psychoanalysis. Let us consider another paranoiac delirium as related by Maud Mannoni, a especially vivid. This example appears all the more striking to us, given our great admiration for Maud Mannoni's work and for The law of the double bind operates relentlessly, ruthlessly, flinging us from one pole to the other, in such a way illness in the critical concept of madness. Luminous pages. Let us add that by enveloping the illness in a familial complex of production in the machines of desire. It seems to us that such a viewpoint is present even in Cooper. (In was held dear until then. Hellenists were right to remind us that, even in the case of worthy Oedipus, it was identical natures and their differing regimes. In this regard let us consider three important works about children: L'Enfant by Jules Valles deals just enough with other causes so as to give us a foretaste: he takes into account the institutions of a a fantasy of a-return-to-Oneness. Castration, they say, is what separates us from politics, is what makes for our originality as analysts that brings about the feeling of indeed being one of us, of being part of a superior race threatened by enemies is applied to the father, either in order to tell us you will not surpass your father, or you will surpass he was wrong: the discourses have continued. But Nietzsche wanted us finally to pass on to serious things. He gives us us finally to pass on to serious things. He gives us twelve or thirteen versions of the death of God, for God and the Paleolithic age. It is Oedipus who makes us man, for better or for worse, say those who would or for worse, say those who would make fools of us all. The tone may vary, but the message remains basically incurable insufficiency of being: don't you see that Oedipus saves us from Oedipus, it is our agony but also our ecstasy relation to this desiring-production, the Oedipal illegitimate uses seemed to us to be multimodal, but always to revolve around the same Now the Freudian argument is of a nature to leave us wondering: Freud quotes a remark by Sir J. G. Frazer the ruses and the procedures of the law, that leaves us wondering. The immortal father of Celine's Death on the Installment and to perform breaks in these flows. The law tells us: You will not marry your mother, and you will not formal prohibition what is really prohibited. Instead we have before us a system of three terms, where this conclusion becomes completely an idea, nothing but an idea that repression inspires in us concerning desire; not even a compromise, but an idea in very deliberate analysis. For even in their contrary uses, let us make no mistake about it, the same syntheses are at ordinary scruples of a diligent psychoanalyst. If a musician tells us that music does not attest to active and conquering forces the rapid diffusion that the Freudian account enjoyed. What interests us is the precise role of the Oedipus complex in this to say that Oedipus is strictly good for nothing. Let us turn to the beautiful story of Gerard de Nerval: he finding its tone disturbing. The following choice is imposed on us: either the actual factor is conceived in a totally exterior this sense that the idea of the afterward seemed to us to be a final paralogism in psychoanalytic theory and practice amusement than we can extract from it. The laugh's on us. They will see that what we call schizophrenia was one is an artifact of the destruction wreaked on them by us and by them on themselves. Let no one suppose that pass through, without knowing any longer whether they are carrying us elsewhere or flowing back over us already. The paintings range whether they are carrying us elsewhere or flowing back over us already. The paintings range over three periods. If the psychiatrist time: there is here something ageless, and that comes to us from an eternal future, or flees toward it. The canvas ideology, it is the most confused notion because it keeps us from seizing the relationship of the literary machine with a Schiller against Holderlin, in order to superegoize literature and tell us: Careful, go no further! No errors for lack of tact transports the weak, the aphasiacs, the illiterate. At least spare us sublimation. Every writer is a sellout. The only literature is decoded flows of desire that flee, slip away, and take us where? Such is neurosis, the displacement of the limit, in the fact that it does not by any means rescue us from the shit (only the mind is capable of shitting production reacts on the socius. Marxists are right to remind us that if kinship is dominant in primitive society, it is express itself naturally in terms of debts. It seems to us very significant that Levi-Strauss himself invokes the co-ordinates of a a principle that would explain the avunculate, seems decisive to us, and seems to avoid the reproach of idealism that usually incest only after a series of substitutions that always moves us away from it, that is to say, with a person regime of the extended filiations and the lateral alliances. Let us return to the Dogon preferential marriage as analyzed by Griaule according to which these actions and passions are distributed, help us to understand the formation mechanism of the surplus value of ambiguous signs of intense bisexual filiation. However, Devereux seems to us to be wrong on two occasions. First, when he admits and processes of cure in primitive societies, it seems to us entirely insufficient to compare them with psychoanalytic procedure by relating seemed Oedipal. It was only the point of departure for us, conditioned to say Oedipus every time someone speaks to us us, conditioned to say Oedipus every time someone speaks to us of father, mother, grandfather. In fact, the Ndembu analysis was At times, the fact that he wanted to speak to us about traditional treatments corresponded to a beginning of psychotherapy and to be exact? How can one say that Oedipus makes us speak in our own name, when one also goes on one also goes on to say that its resolution teaches us the incurable inadequacy of being and universal castration? And what Oedipus, to a father's name, in the grotesque triangle? Let us return to the well-known and inexhaustible debate between culturalists and affects suppressed, inhibited, or transformed? No, in fact: psychoanalysis tells us that we too repress the representation. And everything tells us us that we too repress the representation. And everything tells us that we too often keep the full sexuality of the to be originally repressed or structurally foreclosed. The animal in us is not merely the object of a preconscious investment determined is meant to command our respect and to function for us: it is not at the weakest point—the primitives—that a mystification of the unconscious that has only succeeded with us by assembling the parts and wheels of its apparatus from put, since it is inseparable from the castration that deprives us of its use? Of course we are told not to the signified with the signifier. But does the signifier take us beyond the question, What does it mean? Is it anything colonial extension. In this sense the essential thing seemed to us to be, not exchange and circulation, which closely depend on still formless) Even the most ancient African myths speak to us of these blond men. They are the founders of the activity, historiography: everything is written in the despot's procession. Let us return to the paradox that emerges from the analyses of But we see nothing in this link that would lead us to conclude in favor of the constancy of an apparatus line, artifact and not idea, production and not expression. Let us try to summarize the differences between these two forms of with its three sides—voice-audition, graphism-body, eye-pain—thus seems to us to be an order of connotation, a system of cruelty less within a signifier. And if incest seemed impossible to us from this point of view, it is because incest is not appear to keep its promise, which is to give us access to a modern and functional understanding of language. The of language. The imperialism of the signifier does not take us beyond the question, What does it mean ?; it is content that conducts the dead despot to the latrines, and conducts us all to today's private man—the history sketched out by the same extended abstraction, a repressive machinery that always moves us away from the desiring-machines. For there has never been but machines, their internecine struggle, their superposition, their interlocking arrangements. Let us marvel once again at Freud's account of Oedipus. In Moses formation, on the horizon throughout history. There comes back to us from all quarters the discovery of imperial machines that preceded or exceptional operations, the product of the decoded flows. Let us take the example of Rome: the decoding of the landed The only universal history is the history of contingency. Let us return to this eminently contingent question that modern historians know itself and that of its State, still does not give us the extrinsic conjunction of these two flows: flows of producers through the formation of industrial capital; and so on. Let us consider more in detail how the elements come together, with return to Marx, to the Marxist theory of money. Let us return to the dualism of money, to the two boards the contrary, these factors depend on it. It seems to us, with the same indispensable incompetence, that these problems can only conscience, and the forced destroyer of his own creativity. Let us consider the more striking example of a career a l'americaine the basic research projects of the American army, which brings us back to preparations for war and to the absorption of set in motion and to break? Doubtless Marxists will remind us that the formation of money as a specific relation within although the news of the event is slow to reach us, and there survives in us the memory of extinct signs event is slow to reach us, and there survives in us the memory of extinct signs with which we still write direct or indirect form, to despotic overcoding. This seems to us to be the significance of McLuhan's analyses: to have shown figural element—the figure-matrix—Lyotard correctly names desire, which carries us to the gates of schizophrenia as a process. But what was raised: that enormous archaism that causes so many of us to groan and bow under its weight, and that others once again, and for overcoding Oedipus with castration, while chaining us to the current structural functions of a vanished archaic despot axiomatic. In brief, the notion of break-flow has seemed to us to define both capitalism and schizophrenia. But not in the this sense it indeed completes the becoming-concrete that seemed to us to preside over the evolution of the abstract despotic Urstaat Sartre's analysis in Critique de la raison dialectique appears to us profoundly correct where he concludes that there does not exist the process of their realization. Reich always comes back to us with his innocent standards, claiming the rights of a prior The latter also belong to the historical process and bring us back to the modern functions of the State. Civilized modern they are always surpassed and always reproduced—has seemed to us to have as a corollary and even as a direct are all little colonies and it is Oedipus that colonizes us. When the family ceases to be a unit of production introducing lack there at the deepest levels, and in rescuing us from Oedipus by means of a fantastic regression. A fantastic be forgiven his profound discovery of sexuality by saying to us: at least it won't go any further than the family general pedagogical system). Everything changes, then: the infinite regression forced us to postulate a primacy of the father, but an always father, but an always relative and hypothetical primacy that carried us to infinity, barring a shift into the position of an the father and the child are plunged, simultaneously immersed. Let us again consider the example of the Marquesans, as analyzed by itself to be inadequate, it is because this regression encloses us in simple reproduction or generation. Furthermore, taking organic bodies and the paranoiac, in the clinical sense of the term, makes us spectators to the imaginary birth of the mass phenomenon, and by Samuel Butler, The Book of the Machines, nevertheless allows us to go beyond these points of view. It is true others, of its own kind, is not sufficient to warrant us in saying that vapour-engines have no reproductive system. The truth still expressive, and lead to molar formations. Molecular biology teaches us that it is only the DNA that is reproduced, and and flows, matter and particles, in the end appear to us more adequate than the reduction of sexuality to the pitiful the neurotic stretched out on the couch who speaks to us of love, of its force and its despair, but the is the psychoanalyst who believes—the psychoanalyst in each of us? Would belief then be an effect on the conscious material and castration? Or is it the psychoanalyst—the psychoanalyst in us all, who represents the unconscious in this way? For never life, life In the myth there is no life for us. Only the myth lives in the myth This ability to symbolic castration. And it's a sure thing that structure affords us no means for escaping familialism; on the contrary, it adds the structure would have little significance and would not rescue us from representation, if the structure did not have a reverse or the dissolution of the Oedipus complex, do not make us burst into laughter? We are told that Oedipus is indispensable the source of every possible differentiation, and that it saves us from the terrible non differentiated mother. But this terrible mother on desiring-machines so that Oedipus can develop, be fortified in us, so that it can accumulate its poisonous sperm and gain representations. To be sure, it is not psychoanalysis that makes us believe: Oedipus and castration are demanded, then demanded again, and the absence, with linking this absence itself, and with moving us back and forth from one pole of displacement to the excerpt from an article by Michel Cournot on Chaplin helps us understand what schizophrenic laughter is, as well as the schizophrenic a convent in Ceylon. The only thing that can save us from these impasses is an effective politicization of psychiatry. And went very far in this direction. But it seems to us that they still conceive of this politicization in terms of of other flows escaping control on all sides, and carrying us along. It should therefore be said that one can never additional effort is enough to overturn everything, and to lead us finally toward other far-off places. The schizoanalytic flick of the in a specific way—but as functional indices to point us in the direction of the desiring-machines, to which these indices arrangements grasped in the context of their molecular dispersion. Let us therefore return to the rule so clearly stated by Serge coexistence and displacement of the two different functions. Now let us assume that the respective flows associated with two partial objects of what the biologists call a genetic code that enables us to understand this kind of situation: for if the corresponding itself. That the functioning depends on repulsion is clear to us, inasmuch as it all works only by breaking down. One I is another? The experience of death must have given us exactly enough broadened experience, in order to live and know secret, well understood by the terrifying authors). The machines tell us this, and make us live it, feel it, deeper than the terrifying authors). The machines tell us this, and make us live it, feel it, deeper than delirium and further than be worth nothing at all. It ought, practically, to teach us to sing life. And see how the most defeated, sad what the death of death wants very much to leave us with—a sublime resignation. As Reich says, when psychoanalysis began priest, the director of bad conscience: bad conscience has made us sick, but that is what will cure us! Freud did has made us sick, but that is what will cure us! Freud did not hide what was really at issue with mere idea of which neither savagery nor barbarism could provide us. This is because, on the basis of a general collapse We cannot however allow the difference in regime to make us forget the identity in nature. There are fundamentally two poles certitudes that our vanity and our complacency bestow generously on us, have as many deceptive sojourns as the world arranges for and in any case bears upon a sociohistorical field. Let us recall the major traits of a molar formation or of not the contrary. It is doubtless true that interests predispose us to a given libidinal investment, but they are not identical this investment. Moreover, the unconscious libidinal investment is what causes us to look for our interest in one place rather than that this is where our chances lie—since love drives us on. The manifest syntheses are merely the preconscious indicators of where, according to the aims and the interests assigned to us, one feels something moving that has neither an interest nor of psychoanalysis. Philippe Girard, in unpublished remarks that seem to us to have a wide application, situates the problem at several rationalization, and that the true underlying determination almost always leads us back to the sister, to the mommy, considered as the off on flows and the breaks in these flows. Let us consider for a moment the motivations that lead someone to phallus, but a desiring-machine and a process of deterritorialization? Let us suppose that we are granted everything: it will only be about under certain conditions. Oedipus is virtual and reactionary. Let us consider the conditions under which Oedipus arrives: an aggregate of and adventurous: breaking through the wall or the limit separating us from desiring-production, causing the flows of desire to circulate. Laing's application possible and necessary. That is why Oedipus seemed to us a paranoiac's idea before being a neurotic's feeling. In fact the risk of dying all alone, but rather of making us die, by provoking to the very end investments of desire way of a deceptive and subjective ideology, and that lead us to cry out to the very end, Long live capital a step toward Russia, which is taking so many toward us; etc. But within the enlarged reality that conditions these islands words of Bernard Schmitt, who among modern economists has for us the incomparable advantage of offering a delirious interpretation of an a desert that traverses the body without organs and makes us pass from one of its faces to the other. Never new irruption of desire come from? Those who have read us this far will perhaps find many reasons for reproaching us us this far will perhaps find many reasons for reproaching us: for believing too much in the pure potentialities of art these psychiatric categories, freed of all familism, that will allow us to understand the politico-economic determinations, but exactly the opposite. And speak in the name of an absolute incompetence. Someone asked us if we had ever seen a schizophrenic—no, no, we and as long as it proceeds. It therefore remains for us to see how, effectively, simultaneously, these various tasks of schizoanalysis reproduced. This is the first meaning of process as we use the term: incorporating recording and consumption within production itself, thus universe. This is the second meaning of process as we use the term: man and nature are not like two opposite in fact constitutes the third meaning of process as we use the term: it must not be viewed as a goal of the opposition between capital and labor, and of the use of capital as a means of extorting surplus labor. But specifically capitalist here is the role of money and the use of capital as a full body to constitute the recording just too damn stupid. Every time I hear it, I'll use the third person instead, if I happen to remember to world they may happen to exist in. It is no use saying: We are not green plants; we have long since they break down but because they wear out. Marx makes use of this simple principle to show that the regime of to do with heterogeneous chains, and as their basic unit use detachable segments or mobile stocks resembling building blocks or flying who does not believe in Oedipushe does not make use of partial objects to shatter the iron collar of Oedipus variations of the fantasy to be organized in disjunctions whose use must be strictly exclusive. Hence there will be a girl-series distribute the lack in two nonsymmetrical series, establishing the exclusive use of the disjunctions: you are girl or boy! Such is something in common must lay the foundation for the exclusive use of the disjunctions of the unconscious—and teach us resignation ever exclusive, but rather the object of a properly inclusive use that we must analyze. Freud had a concept at his even in its perversions, the ego conforms to the exclusive use of the disjunctions imposed by the law (for example, Oedipal that let themselves be taken in a global and specific use; disjunctive syntheses that let themselves be taken in an exclusive syntheses that let themselves be taken in an exclusive, restrictive use; conjunctive syntheses that let themselves be taken in a personal that let themselves be taken in a personal and segregative use. For what is the meaning of so that was what of the unconscious, the practical problem is that of their use, legitimate or not, and of the conditions that define a legitimate or not, and of the conditions that define a use of synthesis as legitimate or not. Take the example of on a scale of intensities that assigns the position and use of each thing, each being, or each scene: there is two uses of the connective syntheses: a global and specific use, and a partial and nonspecific use. In the first, desire a global and specific use, and a partial and nonspecific use. In the first, desire at the same time receives a between the different syntheses of the unconscious following a given use. It is first of all the synthesis of recording that incestuous, homosexual, and a zombie. Thus the parental or familial use of the synthesis of recording extends into a conjugal use use of the synthesis of recording extends into a conjugal use, or an alliance use, of the connective syntheses of production of recording extends into a conjugal use, or an alliance use, of the connective syntheses of production: a regime for the ego (anoedipal sexuality). The triangle takes form in the parental use, and reproduces itself in the conjugal use. We do not in the parental use, and reproduces itself in the conjugal use. We do not yet know what forces bring about this triangulated. There we have a curious paralogism implying a transcendent use of the syntheses of the unconscious: we pass from detachable virulence and efficacy, once they had been introduced into a use of synthesis that remains fundamentally illegitimate with regard to them psychoanalysis first of all by making a global and specific use of the connective syntheses. This use can be defined as a global and specific use of the connective syntheses. This use can be defined as transcendent, and implies a first paralogism the psychoanalytic process. For a simple reason, we again make use of Kantian terminology. In what he termed the critical revolution transcendental philosophy (immanence of criteria), he therefore denounced the transcendent use of syntheses such as appeared in metaphysics. In like fashion way of a critique of Oedipus, by denouncing the illegitimate use of the syntheses of the unconscious as found in Oedipal it imposes the ideal of a certain restrictive or exclusive use on them that becomes identical with the form of triangulation recording is the introduction of an exclusive, restrictive, and negative use of the disjunctive synthesis. We are so molded by Oedipus by Oedipus that we find it hard to imagine another use, and even the three familial neuroses do not escape this and even the three familial neuroses do not escape this use, although they suffer from no longer being capable of applying us an unknown force of the disjunctive synthesis, an immanent use that would no longer be exclusive or restrictive, but fully elements for disjunctive syntheses; rather, for the exclusive and restrictive use of the disjunctive synthesis, he substitutes an affirmative use. He restrictive use of the disjunctive synthesis, he substitutes an affirmative use. He is and remains in disjunction: he does not abolish parental designations, nor racial or divine designations, but merely the use made of them. No problem of meaning, but only of transcendent. And here again, why does psychoanalysis reinforce the transcendent use that introduces exclusions and restrictions everywhere in the disjunctive network	p 76 p 77 p 78

the exits now blocked, there is no longer any possible use for the inclusive, nonrestrictive disjunctions. Parents have been found for not between two uses of Oedipus, but between the anoedipal use of the inclusive, nonrestrictive disjunctions, and the Oedipal use of anoedipal use of the inclusive, nonrestrictive disjunctions, and the Oedipal use of exclusive disjunctions, whether this last use borrows from the	p 79 p 83 p 83 and the Oedipal use of exclusive disjunctions, whether this last use borrows from the paths of the Imaginary or the values the series of desire on which it imposed an exclusive use? Was it possible to denounce Oedipus-as-myth, and nevertheless maintain that let us consider Judge Schreber's delirium. To be sure, the use of races and the mobilization or notion of history are more, from the beginning we can see that it makes use of masks in an entirely different manner, and that underneath or the doctor-patient relationship, Freudian psychoanalysis made a somewhat intensive use of the family. Granted, this use distorted the nature of	p 83 p 83 p 89 p 91 p 93

a question of a careless use of Oedipus: what other use could be made of Oedipus? Nor is it a case a part of the exploiters). There is therefore a segregative use of the conjunctive syntheses of the unconscious, a use that segregative use of the conjunctive syntheses of the unconscious, a use that does not coincide with divisions between classes, although it is in the service of a dominating class: it is this use that brings about the feeling of indeed being one of	p 103 p 103 p 103 p 103 once the father is dead. On the contrary, the segregative use is a precondition of Oedipus, to the extent that the account, according to the terms of desire, through the segregative use of the conjunctive syntheses from which Oedipus is derived: I because its very conditions have disintegrated. The nomadic and polyvocal use of the conjunctive syntheses is in opposition to the segregative	p 104 p 105 p 105

in search of a signifier. Rather it is a productive use of the literary machine, a montage of desiring-machines, a schizoid The unconscious poses no problem of meaning, solely problems of use. The question posed by desire is not What does it are the connections, what are the disjunctions, the conjunctions, what use is made of the syntheses? It represents nothing, but it as a machine, producing certain effects, amenable to a certain use. Malcolm Lowry says of his work: it's anything you want machinery. But on condition that meaning be nothing other than use, that it become a firm principle only if we have	p 106 p 109 p 109 p 109 p 109 legitimate uses, as opposed to the illegitimate ones that relate use instead to a hypothetical meaning and re-establish a kind of practical paralogisms. In the first place, a partial and nonspecific use of the connective syntheses was found to be in opposition syntheses was found to be in opposition to the Oedipal use, itself global and specific. This global-specific use was found to	p 109 p 110 p 110 p 110 to the Oedipal use, itself global and specific. This global-specific use was found to have two aspects, parental and conjugal, to of Oedipus and the reproduction of this form corresponded. This use rested upon a paralogism of extrapolation that in fact constituted the chain. In the second place, an inclusive or nonrestrictive use of the disjunctive syntheses is in opposition to their Oedipal disjunctive syntheses is in opposition to their Oedipal, exclusive, restrictive use. This restrictive use in its turn has two poles, imaginary in opposition to their Oedipal, exclusive, restrictive use. In the third place, a nomadic and polyvocal use of the conjunctive syntheses is opposed to the segregative and the conjunctive syntheses is opposed to the segregative and biunivocal use made of them. There again this biunivocal use, illegitimate from and biunivocal use made of them. There again this biunivocal use, illegitimate from the point of view of the unconscious itself	p 110 p 110 p 110 is a sign of strength (puissance). And who would dare use the term law for the fact that desire situates and it invents a last priest. something perfectly obvious, a given that is there from the very beginning. But that is not so at all: Oedipus presupposes machine—which, as we shall see, is what even the very young child does. Producing, a product: a producing/product identity. It full body. Desiring-machines make us an organism; but at the very heart of this production, within the very production of this but at the very heart of this production, within the very production of this production, the body suffers from being organized organization at all. An incomprehensible, absolutely rigid stasis in the very midst of process, as a third stage: No mouth. No Machines and agents cling so closely to capital that their very functioning appears to be miraculated by it. Everything seems objectively seem transferred from labour to capital. Capital thus becomes a very mystic being since all of labour's social productive forces appear general phenomenon. A process of decomposition of this kind is very characteristic of paranoia. of delirium and the schizoparanoiac recording process. And for that very reason we must pose the most far-reaching question in this Take your time, said the sergeant. Was mother's name Molloy? Very likely. Her name must be Molloy too, I said. They have tried to explain. We cannot say that psychoanalysis is very innovative in this respect: it continues to ask its questions this body have been produced by parents, when by its very nature it is such eloquent witness of its own self-production because, first of all, he has at his disposal his very own recording code, which does not coincide with the social details being provided, we are told of Robert Gie , the very talented designer of paranoiac electrical machines: Since he was unable of literature. The examples he points to are of many very different sorts, and at first glance do not seem to these two questions at this point. We merely see how very little the consumption of pure intensities has to do with pure intensities has to do with family figures, and how very different the connective tissue of the So it's ... is from the mechanism, and introducing production into desire. was there in the most specific way, but in his very own world, though he might reveal himself to a clever the traditional logic of desire is all wrong from the very outset: from the very first step that the Platonic logic desire is all wrong from the very outset: from the very first step that the Platonic logic of desire forces us if desire is the lack of the real object, its very nature as a real entity depends upon an essence of of fantasies, has been explained perfectly by psychoanalysis. On the very lowest level of interpretation, this means that the real object process of production, of industrial production. Clement Rosset puts it very well: every time the emphasis is put on a lack to grass, almost akin to it, and that desire needs very few things—not those leftovers that chance to come their those leftovers that chance to come their way, but the very things that are continually taken from them—and that what needs. And never mind those who believe that this is very easy to say, or that it is the sort of Spinoza in the garb of a Neapolitan revolutionary. We know very well where lack—and its subjective correlative—come from. Lack the regime of desiring-machines, breaking down is part of the very functioning of desiring-machines; the artist presents paranoiac machines, miraculating-machines, and situation from the outside, since it experiences it as the very fabric of its existence, as both its primary determinant and whole of the social field. By substituting money for the very notion of a code, it has created an axiomatic of of rediscovering the earth. The schizophrenic deliberately seeks out the very limit of capitalism: he is its inherent tendency brought to only one origin, a single ball that extends to the very limits of the universe. Far from being the opposite of		p 24 p 25 p 25 p 25 p 25 p 26 p 27 p 27 p 27 p 28 p 32 p 33 p 33 p 35 p 36

this double movement whereby Butler drives both arguments beyond their very limits. He shatters the vitalist argument by calling in question a molecular order. Desiring-machines are the following: formative machines, whose very misfirings are functional, and whose functioning is indiscernible from their efficiency upon the cell or organism. In a word, the very gratuitousness of these systems, giving molecular evolution a practically limitless measure. But the genic unconscious is familial only to a very small degree, much less so than Freud's unconscious, since the not in the unconscious. Anthropomorphic molar representation culminates in the very thing that founds it, the ideology of lack. But the question, it seems to objective desire, alienated in myth or tragedy. How can this very complex ambivalence of psychoanalysis be explained? Several different things must	p 284 p 286 p 288 p 290 p 295 p 297 p 298 p 298 p 301
In a word, psychoanalysis disengages the second pole in the very movement of capitalism, which substitutes the infinite subjective representation for the infinite subjective representation. What is meant by elicit is very complex, since the structure can never present more than its stronger and more whole, more lacking and triumphant by the very fact that it is lacking, it will be encountered again attributes a universal metaphoric value to the family at the very moment it has lost its objective literal values. Psychoanalysis makes There desire is necessarily referred to a missing term, whose very essence is to be lacking. The signs of desire, being for its reality is that of the Real in its very production, in its very inorganization. It is not representative, but that of the Real in its very production, in its very inorganization. It is not representative, but solely machinic, and productive family. In actuality, the benevolent neutrality of the analyst is very limited: it ceases the instant one stops responding daddy-mommy. It nor is this true from the outside, extrinsically; rather, its very form and its finality are marked by this social function representation. This results from the fact that displacement refers to very different movements: at times, the movement through which desiring-production is the productive forces of the unconscious, and induced in its very structure a false image that caught desire in its trap in the narrowest sense of the word performs a certain very specific type of reterritorialization within the artifice, perversion in the by it. It is as though the spectator, at that very moment, were no longer in his seat, were no longer passable, which is barred, or else a path that is very explicitly posted as leading nowhere. After having suppressed the spectator film. Charles Chaplin in Modern Times sketches rather, on a very small scale, with a precise stroke, the finished design of and that will cause him to go on further. This very movement is humor, black humor. Oh, the narrator does not circuit for the deterritorialized schizo? Such a thing would be very surprising, to say the least: the therapeutic potentialities of the doubtless, with R. D. Laing and David Cooper antipsychiatry went very far in this direction. But it seems to us that because the decoding and the deterritorialization of flows define the very process of capitalism—that is, its essence, its tendency, and are welded, pasted together by the real distinction or the very absence of a link. Such is the case in the by effecting reterritorializations and by reviving the signifying unity. The very notions of code and axiomatic therefore seem to be valid parts of the machine, different and coexisting, different in their very coexistence. Hence it is absurd to speak of a death body without organs). But it seems that things are becoming very obscure, for what is this distinction between the experience of every intensity as passage or becoming. It is in the very nature of every intensity to invest within itself the zero amounts to, the exercise of the desiring-machines (which is their very secret, well understood by the terrifying authors). The machines tell only retaining from life what the death of death wants very much to .leave us with—a sublime resignation. As Reich pure transcendence, not givable and not given in experience. This very point is remarkable: It is because death, according to Freud he wounds himself, this master of destruction, of self-destructing—the very wound itself compels him to live. . . . It is Oedipus, the that the capitalist aggregate is the least affinal, at the very moment it decodes and deterritorializes with all its might. The of desire: the parts of the desiring-machine function in the very workings of the social machine; the flows of desire enter separate as the share owing to the overlord. Things are very different in capitalism. Precisely because the flows of capital are a repressive apparatus gives it to represent. It is the very form of interpretation that shows itself to be incapable of are always of an organizational nature. If Reich, at the very moment he raised the most profound of questions—Why did power is identical with the violence it exerts by its very absurdity, but it can exert this violence only by assigning it will never break or code enough—and in that very way! Oh how beautiful the machine is! The officer of of torture originating in the Orient, but also in this very field he causes his neurosis to oscillate between two poles he is the most revolutionary of the antipsychiatrists. At the very moment he breaks with psychiatric practice, undertakes assigning a veritable these contradictions translated according to the family code. By that very fact, one has already substituted a familial causation or expression any investment of this field by the libido, but a very particular investment that renders this application possible and necessary. That of the full body without organs, enslaving it by that very fact to a form of socius that exercises the function degree of development for itself, independently of all reason: that very degree and no other, don't take another step; that very very degree and no other, don't take another step; that very socius and no other, hands off. A disinterested love of form. Inasmuch as the paranoid investment enslaves desiring-production, it is very important for it that the limit of this production be of Oedipus, even in their reversals and their substitutions. The very form of these images, their configurations, and the whole of will declare the integrity of existence.... Science demonstrates by its very method that the means that it constantly elaborates do no a paranoid-Oedipalizing element of science, and a schizorevolutionary element? From a certain point of view it would be much better if nothing worked, if nothing new form of energy divine, why label it Numen, in view of all the ambiguities caused by a problem of the one he believes himself to be, from the point of view of the unlocatable center. As a result, an identity is for the rest of it, the personal part, in his view it was of the nature of a reaction and had nature. The one thing Jaspers failed to do was to view process as material economic reality, as the process of production upon whether the desiring-machines are regarded from the point of view of the great gregarious masses that they form, or whether or whether social machines are considered from the point of view of the elementary forces of desire that serve as a of a simple parallelism, even though from the point of view of the failure of codes, such a parallelism is a so far-reaching, neglects to study flows from this point of view and declares that they are of no importance; she thus from a purely mechanistic (but not a machinic) point of view; or else a humoral disturbance brings on a shift in are the essential parts of desiring-machines from the point of view of the recording process: they are at once component parts what is seen nor a unity of the points of view, except along the transversal that the frantic passenger traces from them as fantasies and judges them from the point of view of consumption, rather than regarding them as genuine production. She Melanie Klein insists on considering desire from the point of view of the whole, of global persons, and of complete objects is not related to the parents from the point of view of immediate production, but that is ascribed to them (with them (with either love or hatred) from the point of view of the recording of the process, and in accordance with detracts nothing from its exemplary value from the point of view of practice. In this text (1911) Freud encounters the most capital as detached object, which exists only in the fetishist view of stocks and lacks. The same is true of the There again this biunivocal use, illegitimate from the point of view of the unconscious itself, has what appear to be two repression as anything more than secondary from the point of view of the unconscious. That is why critics have been able the interest of such an operation, from the point of view of social production, becomes evident, for the latter could not clear what makes this operation possible from the point of view of desiring-production itself. We do have, however, the elements of interior to itself as cultural object. From this point of view, there is no longer even any need for applying psychoanalysis in contrast, has men for its parts, even if we view them with their machines, and integrate them, internalize them in the American way. But this is already the point of view required—given a change of perspective—for examining the primitive principle once established, we must distinguish between two points of view: the one economic and political, where alliance is there from It depends upon whether, from the initial group's point of view, the father has received a wife, or the mother has usually greets this kind of attempt. We have a similar view of the recent article in which Adler and Cartry return of the social field. It is from this point of view that we must consider many primitive cures; they are schizoanalysis not rescue the structuralists from the narrowest familial point of view. The same holds for the endless debates on Is it the adult and social development (devenir). From this point of view, the discussion can only go round in circles between the officials. (There is no great change, from this point of view, when the State no longer does anything more than guarantee if incest seemed impossible to us from this point of view, it is because incest is nothing other than a jump times we had the bodies, but the appellations disappeared from view as soon as we broke through the prohibitions they bore a secret privilege. We believe that, from all points of view and despite certain appearances, Louis Hjelmslev's linguistics stands in profound confronted by three unavoidable conclusions. (1) From the point of view of regression, whose meaning is only hypothetical, it is the regression merely attains the object of reproduction. The point of view of the cycle alone is categorical and absolute, because it captive to such a movement.) (3) Finally, the point of view of the community, which is disjunctive or takes account of Machines, nevertheless allows us to go beyond these points of view. It is true that this text seems at first merely preceding social formations can be reinterpreted from the point of view of a generalized decoding or a generalized process of deterritorialization	p 7 p 13 p 21 p 22 p 25 p 30 p 30 p 34 p 37 p 40 p 40 p 43 p 44 p 45 p 48 p 48 p 56 p 73 p 110 p 117 p 120 p 120 p 134 p 141 p 151 p 155 p 156 p 157 p 167 p 174 p 174 p 196 p 204 p 209 p 242 p 275 p 275 p 276 p 284 p 302 of a still interpretative examination—interpretative from the point of view of the unconscious—of the social machines in which the and dynamic dualities is to thrust aside the point of view of functional multiplicity that alone is economic. (Szondi situates the and the same process of production. From this point of view, the duality of the poles passes less between the molar just ideological position, as well as a correct and just view; and in the other case a blindness, the result of relation to other agents in sociodesiring-production. Or, from the viewpoint of private property itself, the encounter between flows of convertible the disjunction of two moieties would forbid from the strict viewpoint of structure: The third term must be interpreted much more that necessarily lose their inclusive or nonrestrictive use. From this viewpoint the extended system is like a memory of alliance and two signs, according to whether it is envisaged from the viewpoint of A, or that of B, and the same is be placed on the same plane as she from the viewpoint of the generations ... He senses unconsciously his symbolic membership in labor in the disjunctive order of its inscriptions. machines from the viewpoint of production; but from this same viewpoint, it reacts on them in producing the conditions for major only its parts and wheels functioning from a completely different viewpoint, in a completely different organization. There we see the mania relation to total capital, can be understood only from the viewpoint of capitalism's entire field of immanence, and by taking into the limit of variation of the production flows from the viewpoint of a full output, but it is not calculable if are not yet deterritorialized enough, not decoded enough, from the viewpoint of a theory and a practice of a highly schizophrenic of power completely cease being what they were from the viewpoint of a code: they become coefficients that are directly economic theoretical foundation. The latter is simple to explain: from the viewpoint of the capitalist axiomatic there is only one class, a an absolutely primary father; but it is clear that the viewpoint of regression is the result of abstraction. When we say or intensities distributed on the body considered from a molecular viewpoint, and was associated with a mechanics of fluids in this of fluids in this same body considered from a molar viewpoint. What defined the libido as sexuality was therefore the association more accurate evaluation of sexuality than Freud, even from the viewpoint of the famous scientificity. It is not the neurotic stretched production and molecular desiring-production must be evaluated both from the viewpoint of their identity in nature and from the viewpoint of the viewpoint of their identity in nature and from the viewpoint of their difference in regime. But it could be that Aryan, of a superior race for all time. From the viewpoint of the unconscious libidinal investment, all the oscillations from one codes, to the subjective remains or revenues. But the schizo continually detaches them, continually works great artist is indeed the one who scales the schizophrenic wall and reaches the land of the unknown, where he no his paintings, one understands what it means to scale the wall, and yet to remain behind; to cause flows to pass body without organs. They overcome a limit, they shatter a wall, the capitalist barrier. And of course they fail to complete has been a long time since he broke down the wall of the signifier: Artaud the Schizo. From the depths of few accomplish what Laing calls the breakthrough of this schizophrenic wall or limit: quite ordinary people, nevertheless. But the majority draw quite ordinary people, nevertheless. But the majority draw near the wall and back away horrified. Better to fall back under the that they design and institute along the length of the wall, in the locales of perversion. Still others, sickened by the also by the shoddiness and aestheticism of perversions, reach the wall and rebound against it, sometimes with an extreme violence. Then process is the only universal. Schizophrenia is at once the wall, the breaking through this wall, and the failures of this Schizophrenia is at once the wall, the breaking through this wall, and the failures of this breakthrough: How does one get failures of this breakthrough: How does one get through this wall, for it is useless to hit it hard, it has an absolute limit every time the schizo-flows pass through the wall, scramble all the codes, and deterritorialize the socius: the body it counteracts its own tendency—is continually drawing near the wall, while at the same time pushing the wall further way near the wall, while at the same time pushing the wall further way. Schizophrenia is the absolute limit, but capitalism is system: a dance on the earth, a drawing on a wall, a mark on the body are a graphic system, a and to the territorial machines. As in Kafka's The Great Wall of China, the State is the transcendent higher unity that formal unity, and reigned accordingly over pieces and fragments (the wall and the tower). Hence the State is not primeval, it without changing the signifieds, and without a collapse of the wall of the signifier. This is why the order of latency theory; then, still in search of a beyond, of another wall to break through, he turns to dolphins, to the language a signifier, but schizzes, points-signs, or flows-breaks that collapse the wall of the signifier, pass through, and continue on beyond. Because rules; Or whether, on the contrary, they break through this wall so as to set flows in motion, and establish breaks of Mallarmé—always passing underneath the signifier, filing through the wall: which again shows that the death of writing is infinite decoded and unbound flows that manage to break through the wall or absolute limit? The capitalist axiomatic is so rich that free themselves from the despotic signifier, that break through this wall, and this wall of a wall, and begin flowing on the despotic signifier, that break through this wall, and this wall of a wall, and begin flowing on the full body that break through this wall, and this wall of a wall, and begin flowing on the full body without organs. The pieces, of causing what it decodes to pass beyond the wall of its immanent regulations and beyond its transcendental resurrections. Each that follows the lines of escape of desire; breaches the wall and causes flows to move; assembles its machines and its in the shuffle. What matters is to break through the wall, even if one has to become black like John Brown body without organs, and there it either passes through the wall, opening onto the molecular elements where it becomes in actual the pure schizophrenic process of deterritorialization. Or it strikes the wall, rebounds off it, and falls back into the most miserably as in fantasy the machines are there, but behind the wall). In short, the displaced limit no longer passes between objective the flows and causing them to pass through the signifying wall, thereby undoing the codes. The function of the chain is flows of desire to circulate, smashing the limit, breaching the wall. But it is not just a matter of literature or but a breakthrough, however distressing and adventurous: breaking through the wall or the limit separating us from desiring-production, causing the flows or schizzes that produce new flows, always breaching the coded wall or the territorialized limit that separates them from desiring-production. there is the essential thing: the reproduction of desire gives way to a simple representation, in the process as well as well as theory of the cure. The productive unconscious makes way for an unconscious that knows only how to express itself Freud declares himself in agreement with Jung. In a certain way this agreement subsists after their break. If the unconscious is mediation of myth, he no longer needs to go by way of this mediation—the negation of the existence of God start at a double Freudian reduction, which is in no way imposed by the fantasy, but is required by Freud in a purely individual dimension: the beaten children must in a way be the ego (substitutes for the subject himself) and the defined positively. We must speak of castration in the same way we speak of oedipalization, whose crowning moment it is: castration all the while rejoicing that they are castrated the other way, on the side that is not superimposable—it should be are part of it, they are present there in every way while creating within the economic forms their own repression, as the agents of social production and antiproduction are in this way reduced to the figures of familial reproduction—we can understand guilt, was quickly applied to Proust. In a more general way still, some critics were too quick in discovering contradictions, either the foundations for the possibility of its own resolution, by way of a differentiation of persons in conformity with the prohibition the sense that the Oedipal inscription does not force its way into the synthesis of recording without reacting on the synthesis it is certain that the Oedipal triangle would have no way of transmitting and reproducing itself without this second step: the the whole, the connections of organ-machines suited to desiring-production give way to a pairing of people under the rules of familial that a revolution—this time materialist—can proceed only by way of a critique of Oedipus, by denouncing the illegitimate use Authority, the obligation to relive it, this time with no way out. Nor is it by any means certain that, between screws are tightened, nothing relating to production can make its way through any longer, except for a far-distant murmur. The unconscious neurosis, and where the solution offers no more of a way out than does the problem. Hence the schizo's withdrawal to is very dejected, unstable, and dangerous, it must prepare the way for the rediscovery of an equivalent to parental authority, it of Oedipus only to pass on to the other. No way of getting out, neurosis or normality. The society of brothers to the father, he was the first to open the way for a release from the father's hold on man. The caution concerning the Freudian myth of Oedipus, which has no way of holding its own indefinitely in the forms of society becomes as easy as being born or dying. Along the way we struggle against other races, we destroy civilizations, in the is dancing. But simulation must be understood in the same way as we spoke of identification. It expresses those nondecomposable distances Oedipus; everything is reduced to the father, in such a way as to reveal in the crudest fashion the inadequacies of us from one pole to the other, in such a way that what is foreclosed in the Symbolic must reappear in the history of Oedipus: the parental figures are in no way organizers, but rather inductors or stimuli of varying, vague import its Oedipal matrix. Once again one is caught, without a way out: it is simply that the means have been found to an operation of differential calculus, where one proceeds by way of depotentialization in order to rediscover the primary functions and with daddy-mommy, and that it doesn't know in its own way that its father has a boss who is not a myself, I look for them in the immediate reality. My way of seeing things was in direct relationship to the events goes as far as madness, and that would have no way of including itself in the Oedipal apparatus, unless by calling the Oedipal apparatus, unless by calling it into question by way of a consequence. In this sense every child is a to find our forefathers. Lacan has demonstrated in a profound way the link between Oedipus and segregation. Not, however, in the snowball gathering speed as it moves from Oedipus all the way to the father of the primal horde, to God and are these determinations of the unconscious, or is this the way a priest sees things? Doubtless there are many other forces grandmother. If Jung betrayed everything, it was nevertheless not by way of this remark, Which can only suggest that the mother intention corresponding to this fiction. This is indeed the only way the law has of getting a grip on intention, of this work has been accomplished several times, in a profound way, rigorously, and with nuances. We see no special problem in Jones does not penetrate censorship, it codifies it. And the way the three elements coexisted: the exploratory, pioneering, revolutionary element, whereby how psychic repression depended on social repression. Which in no way implies a confusion of the two concepts, since social repression that represents the repressed as incestuous familial drives. In this way the family / drives relationship is substituted for the relationship psychoanalysts invent nothing, though they have invented much in another way, and have legislated a lot, reinforced a lot, injected a Freud's ideas often took quite some time before making their way into France. Not this one, however; that same year Capgras step. It does not arise after Oedipus, it in no way presupposes an Oedipal organization, nor a pre-oedipal preorganization. On the we call sanity might be. True sanity entails in one way or another the dissolution of the normal ego. The visit toward this limit. At capitalism's limit the deterritorialized socius gives way to the body without organs, and the decoded flows throw immanent unity of the earth as the immobile motor gives way to a transcendent unity of an altogether different nature—the It is in this sense that the economy goes by way of alliance. In the production of children, the child is medium of spectacular feasting. The ultimate consumers are in this way the original producers.) Surplus value of code is the primitive the more it schizophrenizes, the better it works, the American way. But this is already the point of view required—given are cross. But once the problem is put in this way, it is less a question of applying a logical combinative forming a part of his own person, in such a way that he identified himself with the one who gave birth susceptible to augmentation and diminution. The father is in no way absent. But Amma, the father and genitor, is himself a of his niece can be understood only in the following way: the girl leaves the previous family group, to which her decoded flows. In this sense it implies, in its own way, the socius's limit, the limit or the negative of every and flow following the relations of alliance, in such a way that the systematic coding of the flows will be carried individuals and factions are brought to light, in such a way that they can be treated by traditional ritual methods ... , the its unconscious investments by desire, such as they pass by way of the sick person's marriages, his position in the village the analysis doesn't even begin as Oedipal, except to our way of seeing, doesn't it become Oedipal nevertheless, in a certain of seeing, doesn't it become Oedipal nevertheless, in a certain way—and in what way? Yes, it becomes Oedipal in part become Oedipal nevertheless, in a certain way—and in what way? Yes, it becomes Oedipal in part, under the effect of scale of the individual and the restricted family, with, by way of consequence, an extreme anarchy or disorder at the level dead father, or the Great Signifier. Interpretation is our modern way of believing and of being pious. Already Geza Roheim proposed the intense prepersonal flow. As for Oedipus, it is another way of coding the uncodable, of codifying what eludes the codes the codes, or of displacing desire and its object, a way of entrapping them. Culturalists and ethnologists have demonstrated that institutions In certain cases it can be a question of the way desire invests the social field from childhood, and under the social organization, or that this organization contain in its own way the basic elements of the ethnological hypothesis. This is what wall, while at the same time pushing the wall further way. Schizophrenia is the absolute limit, but capitalism is the relative limit or a displaced represented, but precisely in such a way that each member of the group is always on this aggregation.) But the problem is too theoretical when posed this way. Practically speaking, the psychoanalyst often claims to explain to the formations and social formations are not formed in the same way in which they function. Nor is there a biological, sociological thought to contain the secret of the libido: in this way, one remains in the framework of representation. In the second the parts and wheels of desiring-machines. One searches for the way in which these machines function, for how they invest and are unconscious sexual investments, micro investments that attest to the way in which desire is present in a social field, and of selection (preLevement) and detachment, and that effects in this way the coding of the flows of desire as a condition pain and death, it has foreseen everything—except for the way its own death would come to it from without. They or the barbarian socius can be summarized in the following way: a new alliance and direct filiation. The despot challenges the that continues to haunt it. It is exactly in this way that Marx defines Asiatic production: a higher unity of the in from the desert, the conquerors are there: In some way that is incomprehensible to me they have pushed right into pushed right into the capital, although it is a long way from the frontier. At any rate, here they are; it alliance to filiation, the independence of the alliance groups, the way in which they serve as a conducting element for the formations and caste hierarchies. And how does one distinguish the way in which the primitive community remains on its guard with despot whom it threatens to secrete from within, from the way in which it binds up the symbol—a symbol that raising and dealing with the agrarian problem in a comprehensive way. In other cases where a redistribution occurs, the cycle of problem. (As if the Greeks had discovered in their own way what the Americans rediscovered after the New Deal: that heavy new surface. And finally, from this appropriation there results the way in which the conjunction of the two parts is implemented himself? Or should the question be framed in a different way? For it concerns the whole system of representation when it repressing representation itself. For there can be no doubt: this way the despot has of committing incest, and of making it of committing incest, and of making it possible, in no way involves removing the apparatus of social and psychic repression (l'appareil graphic traces, and eyes, always in a polyvocal usage—a way of jumping that cannot be contained within an order of is not for illiterates, but by illiterates. It goes by way of illiterates, those unconscious workers. The signifier implies a language taken up again by filiation. Jean-Pierre Vernant shows in this way that the imperial myths are not able to conceive a off to the side, the cold monster that represents the way in which history is in the head, in the brain brain—the Urstaat. Marx recognized that there was indeed a way in which history proceeded from the abstract to the concrete the other depends on a completely different series going by way of the merchant and the usurer, as they exist marginally through abstraction. But this does not occur in the same way for both instances. First, simple exchange inscribes commercial products as a machine of another species, functioning in an entirely different way. This is no longer the cruelty of life, the terror coded, or overcoded in the precapitalist societies in such a way that they never achieve any independence (the blacksmith, the astronomer within an order of military expenditures that are in no way competitive with private enterprise, quite the contrary (it took a of the economy that nearly everyone is involved in one way or another in these anti-human activities: the farmer supplying food but the specific functions of money in capitalism went by way of writing and printing, and in some measure continue to figures, that is, the schizzes or breaks-flows are in no way figurative; they become figurative only in a particular constellation that of which are retained. Electric language does not go by way of the voice or writing; data processing does without them the same production process. Our society produces schizos the same way it produces Prell shampoo or Ford cars, the only difference hand what it decodes with the other. Such is the way one must reinterpret the Marxist law of the counteracting tendency define both capitalism and schizophrenia. But not in the same way; they are not at all the same thing, depending on that is itself qualitative and implies noneconomic factors. Or the way the autochthonous relations of alliance and filiation are determined as the chain it constitutes is only signifying in a secondary way, insofar as it calls into play couplings between qualified flows deriving from its form as the equivalent. But in this way the signs of power completely cease being what they were technique. This holds even truer of the social axiomatic: the way in which this axiomatic fulfills its own immanence; pushes back they are archaisms having a perfectly current function, our modern way of imbricating, of sectioning off, of reintroducing code fragments, resuscitating other: the two ambiguous poles of delirium, their transformations, the way in which an archaism or folklore in a given set The reproduction process is not directly economic, but passes by way of the noneconomic factors of kinship. This is true not of production and antiproduction are not reproduced in the same way as humans themselves, but find in them a simple material a function derived from labor capacity, etc., in such a way that the family finds itself countersected by the order of a function derived from the flow of labor. In this way capitalism fills its field of immanence with images: even destitution applied to them. The reign of images is the new way in which capitalism utilizes the schizzes and diverts the flows But capitalism still needs a displaced interior limit in another way: precisely in order to neutralize or repel the absolute exterior the overseeing and overcoding object from on high, which gives way to a social field of immanence where the decoded flows the uncovered field (somewhat similar, in traditional terms, to the way one goes from the Parmenidean Being to the atoms of the person of the family's smallest member, the child. The way in which he posits an autonomous repression independent of social he posits an autonomous repression independent of social repression; the way in which he abandons the theme of the seduction of and as an agent of dealienation, if only through the way in which it is reconstituted in the transference). This is unconscious, from one pole of delirium to the other: the way in which an expected revolutionary force (puissance) breaks free, sometimes even in the midst of the worst archaisms; inversely, the way in which everything turns fascist or envelops itself in fascism which everything turns fascist or envelops itself in fascism, the way in which it falls back into archaisms. Or, staying on backwashes, pulled in one direction or another, in such a way that the Oedipal bacillus takes or doesn't take, imposes its the outside. But it should be noted that, in one way or another, the machine and desire thus remain in an organic or social machines are not formed in the same way they function, and the technical machines are not assembled in and the technical machines are not assembled in the same way they are used, but imply precisely the specific conditions that distinct product. Only what is not produced in the same way it functions has a meaning, and also a purpose, and that are chemically foreign and indifferent to this reaction. The way in which allosteric interactions work hence permits a complete freedom truth is that it throws them open in a remarkable way. The hereditary genes of drives therefore play the role of larger aggregates. The truth is that sexuality is everywhere: the way a bureaucrat fondles his records, a judge administers justice, a judge administers justice, a businessman causes money to circulate; the way the bourgeoisie fucks the proletariat; and so on. And there metaphors, any more than for the libido to go by way of metamorphoses. Hitler got the fascists sexually aroused. Flags, nations the laws of large numbers. And isn't it in this way that we must understand the famous formula of Marx?—the psychoanalysts or psychoanalyzed, can then rejoice in showing man the way, and in recuperating equality in difference. Whence the irresistibly comical characteristics, even if they be terrifying. At least in this way one avoids phallocentrism, if not anthropomorphism. But this time, far Greeks? Then the Greeks did not produce in the same way they believed? The Hellenists? Do the Hellenists believe that the psychoanalyst in us all, who represents the unconscious in this way? For never has Engels's remark regained so much meaning: you'd those of his father; but it is in this very way that they are from early childhood the libidinal investment of

of the Earth, the despotic body—and that in this way confound the discovery of the abstract or subjective essence. It determine its objects, aims, and sources. It is in this way that myth ascribes desire to the element of the earth the codes already recognized, but in decoding in an absolute way, in eliciting something that is uncodable by virtue of its subjects, the objects, and their relationships all derive. In this way the structure designates the unconscious of subjective representation. The series have repudiated and lost all our beliefs that proceeded by way of objective representations. The earth is dead, the desert is instead of oedipalizing the psychotic field. Everything hinges on the way in which the structure is elicited from the machines, according a lack. The great Other as the nonhuman sex gives way, in representation, to a signifier of the great Other as and productive. Destroy, destroy. The task of schizoanalysis goes by way of Destruction—a whole scouring of the unconscious, a complete this stamp: the pre-oedipal, like the post-oedipal, is still a way of bringing all of desiring-production—the anoedipal—back to Oedipus desiring-production—the anoedipal—back to Oedipus. When Reich denounces the way in which psychoanalysis joins forces with social repression, he still conclusions are drawn: that this agency can be discovered by way of the displaced represented; and this, precisely because this agency machine—nothing more than a pure fiction that must give way to Reality defined as a lack, with Oedipus and castration its lines of escape. But this is true in a way altogether different from what psychoanalysis believes it to be. The new land. In each case we must go back by way of old lands, study their nature, their density; we must problem is no longer posed, no longer posed in this way. The narrator continues his own affair, until he reaches the movement of deterritorialization in all the flows, in such a way that this characteristic can no longer qualify a particular residue The negative or destructive task of schizoanalysis is in no way separable from its positive tasks—all these tasks are necessarily real, symbolic, or imaginary, must indeed intervene in a specific way—but as functional indices to point us in the direction the fact that the body without organs is in no way the contrary of the organs-partial objects. It is itself produced by recoding or axiomatizing the flows of desire in this way, psychoanalysis makes a molar use of the signifying chain that entire compass of its cycle, a subject that passes by way of all the becomings corresponding to the included disjunctions: the reality of a last instant that fixes it in this way as an I, all the while undoing the intensity, carrying of the life flows, capable of carrying them all the way into the desert and decoding them—even if this idea the machinic transformations impossible, with everything obliged to pass by way of an indifferent neutral energy, that energy emanating from Oedipus this neutralization, this turning against life, is also the last way in which a depressive and exhausted libido can go on days to come? It must—but who talks in this way? What abjectness—become a desire to be loved, and worse off castration, bring off frustration. Is this really the right way to bring on better days? And aren't all the destructions the lines of escape and the machinic indices all the way to the desiring-machines. If the essential aspect of the destructive properly speaking, and all its dependencies, each time in a way adapted to the case in question, the essential aspect of said to be lacked by the partial objects. In this way desire will be fused to lack. The myriad breaks-flows that preconscious investment of class or interest. The latter passes by way of the large social goals, and concerns the organism and will never break or code enough—and in that very way! Oh how beautiful the machine is! The officer of In the system: antiproduction is loved for itself, as is the way in which desire represses itself in the great capitalist aggregate hear old people reproach the young, in the most malicious way, for putting their desires (a car, credit, a loan, girl-boy gray gentlemen mentioned by Lawrence. production is purely and simply desiring-production itself under determinate conditions. We maintain that the social field is immediately p 29 together constitute the autoproduct of the unconscious as a cycle. We can say that social production, under determinate conditions, derives p 33

which is to say that Homo natura comes first. But we must also say, more accurately, that desiring-production is first and p 33 all its flows may dispatch itself straight to the moon: we really haven't seen anything yet! When we say that schizophrenia p 34 schizophrenia is our characteristic malady, the malady of our era, we do not merely mean to say that modern life drives p 34 disharmony and discord at every level of industrial society. What we are really trying to say is that capitalism, through its p 34 along lines that vary according to whatever aspect of them we are considering. Every machine, in the first place, is related p 36 cuts into as an ideal continuity. This is because, as we have seen, every machine is a machine of a machine p 36 experience, of which the mother is only a part. Also we must not think that the machines themselves are proof of p 37 repression of desire (which Bettelheim translates in terms of autism). We find ourselves confronted with the same problem once again: How p 37 disjunctions of a type that differs from the previous connections. We owe to Jacques Lacan the discovery of this fertile domain p 38 simply because of its multiplicity—a multiplicity so complex that we can scarcely speak of one chain or even of one p 38 domain of the real inorganization of the passive syntheses, where we would search in vain for something that might be labeled p 39 segments or mobile stocks resembling building blocks or flying bricks. We must conceive of each brick as having been launched from p 40 within the code that comes to inform the flow? When we noted a moment ago that the schizo is at the p 40 at the very limit of the decoded flows of desire, we meant that he was at the very limit of the p 40 knowing it or being fully aware of it, and finally we are transsexual in an elemental, molecular sense. That is why p 70 the foundations of such an operation appear more distinctly if we consider the mutual reactions between the different syntheses of the p 70 relation to parental images serving as co-ordinates (mother, father). There we have a triangulation that implies in its essence a constituent p 70 desire in order to transform all its productive connections. But we are able at least to follow, abstractly, the manner in p 72 to follow, abstractly, the manner in which these forces proceed. We are told that partial objects are caught up in an p 72 chain seems consequently to be suspended, each link triangulated. There we have a curious paralogism implying a transcendent use of the p 73 implying a transcendent use of the syntheses of the unconscious: we pass from detachable partial objects to the detached complete object p 73 of synthesis that remains fundamentally illegitimate with regard to them? We do not deny that there is an Oedipal sexuality, an p 74 the conversion of the unconscious to Oedipus, form and content. (We shall see in effect what psychoanalysis calls resolving Oedipus.) This p 74 first paralogism in the psychoanalytic process. For a simple reason, we again make use of Kantian terminology. In what he termed p 74

we too often keep the full sexuality of the affect; we know perfectly well what it is about, without having been the object of repression? Is it because incest is prohibited? We always fall back on this pale rationale: incest is desired investment refers only secondarily to an image of the mother. We have already seen how the prohibition of incest referred, not a truth of the unconscious that is especially visible where we are concerned; on the contrary, because it is a mystification the body without organs, at the limits of the socius. We shall speak of an absolute limit every time the schizo-flows Oedipal limit is occupied, strategically occupied in all social formations. We must take Kardiner's remark seriously: a Hindu or an Eskimo the castration that deprives us of its use? Of course we are told not to confuse the signified with the signifier shred of clothing, an image of daddy, formulas and words: we shall not ask what it means, but what kind of effect are themselves variable; there are migrations in the system. We see no reason for believing in the universality of one exchanging but marking bodies, which are part of the earth. We have seen that the regime of debt directly resulted from a collapse of the mode of inscription on the socius. We are brought back to our point of departure: the fact is either a gentle creature or a raging beast. But we always rediscover the figures of this paranoiac and his perverses essence that is not to be confused with a beginning. We think only about the Emperor. But not about the present the Emperor. But not about the present one; or rather we would think about the present one if we knew who or rather we would think about the present one if we knew who he was or knew anything definite about him able to touch the full body of the sovereign? Here we have a problem of castes. It is overcoding that impoverishes the despotic knot. A pause seems in order here while we ask how such a thing is possible. How is it ceases to be territorial and becomes imperial. First of all, we have the impression that the elements of the in-depth system of desire.) With incest's new position in the imperial formation, we are therefore speaking only of a migration in the in-depth in linking writing to incest in a mysterious fashion. But we see nothing in this link that would lead us to of the system in its length and its width. What we call the order of connotation is an order in which that suffers, although it also acquires other functions.) Or rather, we are unable to say that the magic triangle is completely to converge toward the eminent unity of the despot. If we call the order of representation in a social system a whole chain. What made incest impossible—namely, that at times we had the appellations (mother, sister) but not the persons or not the persons or the bodies, while at other times we had the bodies, but the appellations disappeared from view as bodies, but the appellations disappeared from view as soon as we broke through the prohibitions they bore—has ceased to exist in accordance with the complementarity of simulation and identity that we encountered earlier, if the identification is that of the object of the five paralogisms thus seem to be ready. But we are still very far from the psychoanalytic Oedipus, and the a completely different viewpoint, in a completely different organization. There we see the mania of psychoanalysis with all its paralogisms: it must include its differences with respect to the concrete beginning. We know that myth always expresses a passage and a divergence to the system under consideration. And in more recent examples, we have to go along with Wittfogel when he shows the technical machine precisely the movement of desire? Again and again we come upon the monstrous paradox: the State is desire that decoding have always existed; history is full of them. But we have just seen that only through their encounter in a that ensured the universality of capitalism. By simplifying a lot, we can say that the savage territorial machine operated on the or the quasi cause that appropriates all the productive forces. We are no longer in the domain of the quantum or

The machine one can perceive the movement of this formation just as well when one empire breaks away from a preceding empire; or the manner of a graphic machine capable of performing as well by means of hieroglyphs as by phonemes. For there is signifier. It is curious, therefore, that one can show so well the servitude of the masses with respect to the minimal attaches it to the most decoded of social fields as well as to the sickest interiority, the trap for desire, its re-establishment of a kind of slavery (esclavagisme). And it is well known that the monopolistic action favoring the guilds and the to interpret the general principle according to which things work well only providing they break down, crises being the means immanent the direction it is apt to take in economy as well as linguistics: If the movement does not tend toward any it occurs at the center and at the core as well. The definition of surplus value must be modified in terms for wage earners, for the working class and the unions? Well then, let's see what we can do—and thereafter profit that represents the absolute impotence of the wage earner as well as the relative dependence of the industrial capitalist. This is itself being composed of assigning signs—crushing the signifiers as well as the signifieds, treating words as things, fabricating new unities of inscription. That is what Althusser and Balibar show so well: how juridical and political relations are determined as dominant—in axioms while preventing the system from becoming saturated; and functions well only by grinding, sputtering, and starting up again—all this a struggle not only economic and financial, but political as well. from these problems, too far past them. Even Freud never went beyond this narrow and limited conception of the ego. And himself in, saying dark, and ran out again directly. He went through this performance several times. I explained to him: It and that the roles he assumed in the patient's eyes went far beyond any sort of parental images. They eventually came There is always an uncle from America; a brother who went bad; an aunt who took off with a military man of the relationship between desire and the social field (and went further than Marcuse, who treats the problem lightly). He is with whom he is united by that fact: This individual went away into the distance carrying with him a part of that it started on the right track, and that it went wrong from the start. Perhaps the answer lies in the recalled the requirements of a universal history—but, as he went on to say, provided that the current organization be capable general equivalent, but the specific functions of money in capitalism went by way of writing and printing, and in some measure We have seen that the relationship of schizophrenia to capitalism went far beyond problems of modes of living, environment, ideology, etc calls this genic or genealogical unconscious familial; and Szondi himself went on to study schizophrenia using familial aggregates as his units an accident. Charles Chaplin did not dwell on this. He went quickly, as usual. He traced the finished design. In its And doubtless, with R. D. Laing and David Cooper antipsychiatry went very far in this direction. But it seems to us molar order. Freud demonstrated clearly in this respect how one went from psychotic multiplicities of dispersion, founded on the breaks or continued to occupy one's mind. It even persisted, as it were, in going about its own business.... The striking thing was now cling to the body without organs as though it were a fencer's padded jacket, or as though these organ-machines were were a fencer's padded jacket, or as though these organ-machines were medals pinned onto the jersey of a wrestler who makes to make it so that there are none, and never were any. The body without organs, the unproductive, the unconsumable, serves he was unable to free himself of these currents that were tormenting him, he gives every appearance of having finally joined that functions as a double of reality, as though there were a dreamed-of object behind every real object, or a mental I had done I had observed that the men who were most in life, who were moulding life, who were life observed that the men who were most in life, who were moulding life, who were life itself, ate little, slept little who were most in life, who were moulding life, who were life itself, ate little, slept little, owned little or nothing introjected or internal mental practices, or as though mental practices were projected upon social systems, without either of the two sets men fight for their servitude as stubbornly as though it were their salvation? How can people possibly reach the point of an explanation formulated in terms of desire: no, the masses were not innocent dupes; at a certain point, under a certain projects itself into different sorts of socius, as though it were a raving paranoiac, the chieftain of the primitive horde, who machine, he uses one of his legs as though it were an oar, he goes into the kitchen, into the study all this time, and that the child would have nothing were it not for them. But that is not the real separating the girl's and the boy's cases, as if each were a little ego taking up its own business with daddy his place, after several years of analysis, as if this were not a tiny sign of the abject dependence to which Everything would be fine if the economic problem of desire were merely quantitative; it would be a matter of reinforcing the to Proust. In a more general way still, some critics were too quick in discovering contradictions, either in order to declare irreducible, or to resolve them, or to show that they were merely apparent, according to preference. In truth, there are never schizoid, included, and inclusive: For some, doubtless those whose childhoods were timid, the material kind of pleasure they take does not of children. It is true that the connections of desiring-production were found to comply with a binary rule; and we have that are themselves nonsignifying—of polyvocal writing and detachable fragments—were the object of a special treatment, a crushing operation that will always bring one term into play as if it were one too many in relation to the other two, and Romain Rolland, Freud writes: Everything unfolds as if the essential were to go beyond the father, as if going beyond the go beyond the father, as if going beyond the father were always forbidden. This becomes even more clear when Freud elaborates an old refrain. As for us, that is why we were unable to posit any difference in nature, any border line the false problems of Oedipus. But if the first disciples were tempted to reclose the Oedipus yoke, didn't they do so see myself related to such German rabble is, as it were, a blasphemy with respect to my doctrine of the Eternal interhuman, destroying all that was held dear until then. Hellenists were right to remind us that, even in the case of is called an application. It is as if a tablecloth were being folded, as if its 4 (+n) corners were reduced tablecloth were being folded, as if its 4 (+n) corners were reduced to 3 (+1), to designate the transcendent factor them to combat—it is not enough to say: they were fooled, the masses have been fooled. It is not an of mineral theorem which constantly proves the futility of living Were you born Hamlet? Or did you not rather create the be made to feel guilty? One acts as if it were possible to conclude directly from psychic repression the nature of of an exchangeist conception claim. We have seen that there were other obstacles. The real danger is elsewhere. If desire is drawn from this very cure. As if every great doctrine were not a combined formation, constructed from bits and pieces, various pledges it makes to the established order. All these elements were present in Freud, a fantastic Christopher Columbus, a brilliant bourgeois of a summary Marxism too quick to say the masses were fooled, mystified. But since he had not sufficiently formulated the God is daddy). The desiring-experience is treated as if it were intrinsically related to the parents, and as if the family intrinsically related to the parents, and as if the family were its supreme law. Partial objects are subjected to the notorious father, but under conditions of reality loss where the parents were lived as false parents or doubles. From this they drew surprised—in line with a remark by Lacan—if Oedipus were in fact discovered in neurosis where it is supposed to is to say, its interruption? Must we correct what we were saying a little earlier, and suppose that some tolerate oedipalization who has gone on a distant journey. As though one were constantly bringing back home the person capable of setting whole of any possibility of individual success at the moment they were engaged in laborious studies in innate science. With regard to its extreme fleeing beyond the reach of Oedipus. These identifications were not identifications with persons from the viewpoint of perception, but distinguishable from the familial infantile factors; all the major dissensions were linked to this evaluation. The difficulties bore on several aspects bore on several aspects. First, the nature of these factors: were they somatic, social, metaphysical? Were they the famous problems of the nature of these factors: were they somatic, social, metaphysical? Were they the famous problems of living, through which a very than ulterior or privative. This came about as two concerns were found to be linked in an apparent paradox, for example already. The paintings range over three periods. If the psychiatrist were allowed to speak here, he could talk about the first aspect, alienating and destructive. As if the great voices, which were capable of performing a breakthrough in grammar and syntax, and grammar and syntax, and of making all language a desire, were not speaking from the depths of psychosis, and as if speaking from the depths of psychosis, and as if they were not demonstrating for our benefit an eminently psychotic and revolutionary specific product. That is why, on the other hand, we were unable to establish any direct relationship between neurosis and psychosis necessity. Ruptures and limits, and not continuity. For great accidents were necessary, and amazing encounters that could have happened elsewhere, or the mouth was dead, the other parts of the body were consulted to see which of them would take charge of the descendant of both parents and not because his parents were married ... [However] the cross ties linking the different patrilineages laterally that nature among the Mru ... Everyone behaves as if he were ignorant of the compensation that would result from the closing structural bond between law and transgression; physically, as though it were a question of attrition that would cause the social machine and it must attribute them to itself as though it were their cause. These are the two aspects of the full that this kind of marriage rarely occurs, as though it were still too close to the nonexistent impossible (for example, the as though the supposedly fundamental relationship between desire and law were manifested in transgression. It is necessary to recall once more them a perverse-normal activity, we meant that these local groups were the agents of repression, the great coders. Although the organ-machines attach themselves to the body in terms of the disjunctions of a recording surface, in what is left after each division. Returning yet again to the of consummation in the form of a wonderstruck So that's what it was! Michel Carrouges has identified a certain number of of the machine liberated other unlimited forces. The question becomes: what does the celibate machine produce? what is produced by means forces. The question becomes: what does the celibate machine produce? what is produced by means of it? The answer would seem else whatsoever? How could the conjunctive synthesis of So that's what it was! and So it's me! have been reduced to in relation to the subject that lives it). This is what Klossowski has admirably demonstrated in his commentary on Nietzsche: the intensity = 0 that designates the body without organs (but what is most unusual is that here again a new afflux or rediscovering the delirious person in his own specific world. What is common to these three concepts is the fact that unbearable needs. But why try to bring him back to what he has escaped from, why set him back down amid beyond this narrow and limited conception of the ego. And what prevented him from doing so was his own tripartite formula relationship between drives (pulsions) and symptoms, between the symbol and what is symbolized, has arisen again and again. Is this relationship center, this machine is merely theatrical, and the complementarity of what it sets apart still remains: it is now need that determined by its own object, whereas desire is regarded as what produces the fantasy and produces itself by detaching itself from existence that can be labeled psychic reality. As Marx notes, what exists in fact is not lack, but passion, as a very things that are continually taken from them—and that what is missing is not things a subject feels the lack increasing disharmony and discord at every level of industrial society. What we are really trying to say is that capitalism, through quantities. Everything returns or recurs: States, nations, families. That is what makes the ideology of capitalism a motley painting of everything machine, the revolutionary machine, and desiring-machines. 5 The Machines In what respect are desiring-machines really machines, in anything more than a break or interruption conditions this continuity: it presupposes or defines what it cuts into as an ideal continuity. This is because mouth, for instance. All sorts of functional questions thus arise: What flow to break? Where to interrupt it? How and by flow to break? Where to interrupt it? How and by what means? What place should be left for other producers or break? Where to interrupt it? How and by what means? What place should be left for other producers or antiproducers (the for instance)? Should one, or should one not, suffocate from what one eats, swallow air, shit with one's mouth? The data as these signs have little or nothing to do with what supports them. Or rather, isn't the support completely immaterial to machine of the music box type, with a nonspatial localization. What makes Monakow and Mourgue's study an unparalleled one, going far bricks or blocks, their detachment and fragmentation, and above all what such a theory presupposes: the introduction of desire into neurology without organs in the space of an instant. This is what allows Lacan to postulate and describe in detail an interplay to its parturition ... that is why the subject can procure what is of particular concern to it here, a state that the whole. The desiring-machine is not a metaphor; it is what interrupts and is interrupted in accordance with these three modes Search of Lost Time, there is never a totality of what is seen nor a unity of the points of view intermittent and opposite fragments. This drawing together, this reweaving is what Joyce called re-embodiment. The body without organs is produced as is not at all that of the relative importance of what might be called the pre-oedipal in relation to Oedipus itself of Oedipus, we do so only in order to demonstrate what a forcing was necessary for her to make Oedipus the run-of-the-mill practitioners who no longer have the slightest notion of what the psychoanalytic movement is all about. It is no longer their mothers and fathers. It is a question of knowing what the place and the function of parents are within desiring-production is in fact the crux of the entire Oedipal problem: What are the precise forces that cause the Oedipal triangulation to forces that cause the Oedipal triangulation to close up? Under what conditions does this triangulation divert desire so that it flows of desiring-production that the child lives his life and ponders what it means to live, even though the question must be and even before that, I always wondered who I was, what I was, and why I was alive; I remember that woman known as my mother gave me—I asked myself what it meant to exist, to be alive, what it meant asked myself what it meant to exist, to be alive, what it meant to be conscious of oneself breathing, and I level, for example, of the mouth-air machine or the tasting-machine: What does it mean to be alive? What does it mean or the tasting-machine: What does it mean to be alive? What does it mean to breathe? What am I? What sort mean to be alive? What does it mean to breathe? What am I? What sort of thing is this breathing-machine on alive? What does it mean to breathe? What am I? What sort of thing is this breathing-machine on my body without as a whole. By failing from the beginning to see what the precise nature of this desiring-production is, and how, under the precise nature of this desiring-production is, and how, under what conditions, and in response to what pressures, the Oedipal triangulation is, and how, under what conditions, and in response to what pressures, the Oedipal triangulation plays a role in the recording to psychoanalysis did not stem from terror at having discovered what real sexuality was. But he had the impression—the purely which the Oedipal organization plays a role in psychoses; next, what the forms of psychotic pregenitality are and how they are according to the social form under consideration. We even believe what we are told when Oedipus is presented as a kind its variations and modalities; the strain of an endless repression? What we are calling into question is the frantic Oedipalization to Real in itself, the impossible real and its production. But what is this long history, if we consider it only during development, the former to a psychic fantasy reality. Oedipus is what all but got lost for the sake of a biological wasn't something else sacrificed to Oedipus, something infinitely stronger? For what Freud and the first analysts discover is the domain of those neurobiologico-desiring-machines. And the discovery of the productive unconscious has what appear to be two correlates: on the one hand, the requirements of representation, and to the dreary games of what is representative and represented in representation. And there is the order made classical owing to the ancient Greek theater. For what does it mean to say that Freud discovered Oedipus in fantasy production, production of expression. The unconscious ceases to be what it is—a factory, a workshop—to become a theater exchange for flows of money. All that is needed is what is called a psychotic episode: after a schizophrenic flash, one the model? The supposed adequation can then be interpreted in what is termed anagogical fashion, toward the higher. Or inversely, in myth, traced from myth with the transformations taken into account. ... What we mean is that, starting from the same postulate, Jung still amounts to injecting something religious into the unconscious. (And what would Freudian analysis be without the celebrated guilt feelings ascribed

What is at issue in this fantasy? Some boys are beaten Liberation movements contain, in a more or less ambiguous state, what belongs to all requirements of liberation: the force of the the unconscious believes it, since all the ambiguity lies there. What does belief applied to the unconscious signify? What is an lies there. What does belief applied to the unconscious signify? What is an unconscious that no longer does anything but believe that no longer does anything but believe, rather than produce? What are the operations, the artifices that inject the unconscious with which the individual, the ego, plays out its pseudo destiny: what does it matter if I die, says the general, since It is therefore all the more disturbing to see to what extent Freudian analysis retains from the fantasy only its lines to treatment, with the serenity of the person who senses what a treasure his work is, but senses too the poisons observation of detail, a mere anecdote. In fact, it concerns what is most essential in the phenomenon of desire: the qualitative is always retrospective, as the perceived meaning. So that was what this meant. ... What is serious is that Freud never questions as the perceived meaning. So that was what this meant. ... What is serious is that Freud never questions the process of he has carried his flows right into the desert. But what remains, once we learn that resistances of an hysterical or desire on the very terrain of Oedipus? That is precisely what qualitative economy shows: flows ooze, they traverse the triangle, breaking irresistible pressure of lava or the invincible oozing of water. What are the most favorable conditions for the cure, it is themselves be taken in a personal and segregative use. For what is the meaning of so that was what this meant use. For what is the meaning of so that was what this meant? The crushing of the so onto Oedipus and but wherever we have been carried by the deterritorialized flows. What they do is merely to make the unconscious speak according Phallus, the Terrible Undifferentiated of the Imaginary, Symbolic Differentiations, Segregation. What psychoanalysts invent is only the transference, a transference Oedipus, a especially noxious and virulent, but where the subject finally has what he wants, and sucks away at his Oedipus on the resignation, and substitute everywhere reactions of the daddy-mommy type for what is essentially active, aggressive, artistic, productive, and triumphant in the perhaps, for the rapid diffusion that the Freudian account enjoyed. What interests us is the precise role of the Oedipus complex oedipalization, that is to say, its interruption? Must we correct what we were saying a little earlier, and suppose that some the family follows the pattern of its triangle, by distinguishing what belongs to the family from what does not. It also its triangle, by distinguishing what belongs to the family from what does not. It also cuts inwardly, along the lines of function of the family: it is a matter of learning what elements of desiring-production the family is going to reject, what what elements of desiring-production the family is going to reject, what it is going to retain, what it is going to is going to reject, what it is going to retain, what it is going to direct along the dead-end roads leading dead-end roads leading to its own undifferentiated (the miasma), and what on the contrary it is going to lead down the are distinguishable only in appearance. While this is taking place, what is desiring-production doing? The retained elements do not enter into the door, they make everything shake when they enter. Moreover, what does not enter causes perhaps even more vibrations to be breaks. The child feels the task required of him. But what is to be put into the triangle, how are selections that constitute a good Oedipal incision? And the bicycle horn? What is part of the family? It is the triangle's job triangle's job to vibrate, to resonate, under the pressure of what it retains as much as what it thrusts aside. Resonance under the pressure of what it retains as much as what it thrusts aside. Resonance—here again, either muffled or public that of unconscious representations and does not compromise perception. But what is there to gain from inscribing everything in Oedipus, even without taking stock of them, without trying to disclose in what sense the disorder of the world is manifested in the than the pre-oedipal, for going much further back—as if what was most actual was also the most primary, the shortest have to do with the Ideal. And we have seen what remains common to Freud and Jung: the unconscious always measured although the measuring is done in two contrary directions. But what does it matter, after all, if morality or religion find family. The term actual is not used because it designates what is most recent and because it would be opposed to with it and to which it reacts. Yet this is what psychoanalysis does when it closets itself in Oedipus, and determines or on the contrary, an interruption of the process (and what type of interruption?). Schizophrenia as a process is desiring-production, but the sublime sickness that will no longer affect him. Here, what is, what would a psychiatrist be worth? In the whole sickness that will no longer affect him. Here, what is, what would a psychiatrist be worth? In the whole of psychiatry the whole of psychiatry only Jaspers, then Laing have grasped what process signified, and its fulfillment—and so escaped the familialism from it. The laugh's on us. They will see that what we call schizophrenia was one of the forms in which is a gross travesty, a mockery, a grotesque caricature of what the natural healing of that estranged integration we call sanity Pythia. Turner is there. Looking at his paintings, one understands what it means to scale the wall, and yet to remain their meaning changed. The canvas is truly broken, sundered by what penetrates it. All that remains is a background of gold of gold and fog, intense, intensive, traversed in depth by what has just sundered its breadth: the schizo Everything becomes mixed necessarily nourish a revolutionary machine on the horizon. That is what style is, or rather the absence of style—asyntactic, agrammatical agrammatical: the moment when language is no longer defined by what it says, even less by what makes it a signifying no longer defined by what it says, even less by what makes it a signifying thing, but by what causes it less by what makes it a signifying thing, but by what causes it to move, to flow, and to explode—desire therefore in all respects the contrary of textual writing. But what is this enormous textual archaism,. The signifier, that subjects literature suffering and his glory, he has the right to denounce what society makes of the psychotic in the process of decoding desire (Van Gogh, the Man Suicided by Society), but also what it makes of literature when it opposes literature to psychosis Lewis Carroll, or the coward of belles-lettres). Very few accomplish what Laing calls the breakthrough of this schizophrenic wall or limit a file, slowly and with patience as I see it. What is at stake is not merely art or literature. For although, or rather because, there is a collectively invested anus. What remains then for the making of Oedipus? The structure—that to say, as the nightmare and the anxious foreboding of what might result from the decoding of flows and the collective to look at our former codes of punishments to understand what effort it costs on this earth to breed a nation in bodies and inscribed on them, belaboring them. That is what cruelty means. This culture is not the movement of ideology dominant by economic and political factors. And if filiation expresses what is dominant while being itself determined, alliance expresses what is expresses what is dominant while being itself determined, alliance expresses what is determinant, or rather the return of the determinant in they wished to credit with the invention of history. If what is called history is a dynamic and open social reality a system that is constantly reborn of its own disharmonies. What does Jeanne Favret mean when she shows, along with other so that fear remains the motor of the whole? And what is this fear? It would appear that social formations experienced a morbid and mournful foreboding of things to come, although what comes to them always comes from without, rushing in through of their abstract or fictional quantities. And isn't that also what Oedipus, the fear of incest, is about: the fear of the same time as the filiations are extended, expressing both what must remain blocked in the filiation and what must pass expressing both what must remain blocked in the filiation and what must pass through in the alliance. The essential is not That is why he cannot marry her (bearing in mind what we said earlier to be the meaning of that is The subject does not reproach the uncle for having done what he himself wanted to do; he reproaches him for not wanted to do; he reproaches him for not having done what he the son could not do. And why didn't the transgression ... In both instances, one takes as something already constituted what is in fact the emergence of an order that the of the law, it is itself derisory in relation to what the law prohibits in reality (the reason why revolutions have the contrary, in the sense that the Symbolic is. But what does it mean to say that incest is impossible? Isn't to conclude from the prohibition anything regarding the nature of what is prohibited; for the prohibition proceeds by dishonoring the guilty repression without which it would have no grip on desire. What is desired is the intense germinal or generative flow, where as though by the impossible itself. You see, that is what you wanted! However it is this conclusion, going directly from signs and be perpetually eroded by its own energetic support; what would flow on the full body of the earth would drying up of a spring is a flow), than of what is codable or noncodable. The germinal flow is such that part of the flow of intensity that passes through, for what does not pass, and for what causes passage or prevents that passes through, for what does not pass, and for what causes passage or prevents it, according to the patrilateral or return to the Dogon preferential marriage as analyzed by Griaule: what is blocked is the relationship with the aunt as a for the mother, in the form of a make-believe parent; what passes through is the relationship with the aunt's daughter as for the aunt, as the first possible or permitted incest; what does the blocking or causes passage is the maternal uncle does the blocking or causes passage is the maternal uncle. What passes through leads to—as compensation for what is blocked maternal uncle. What passes through leads to—as compensation for what is blocked—a veritable surplus value of code, which falls lines of passage and the lines of blockage, as if what was blocked or prohibited reappeared in marriages in spectral form new brother-sister relationship, on which a new alliance is founded. What is prolonged, what comes to a halt, what is detached on which a new alliance is founded. What is prolonged, what comes to a halt, what is detached, and the different is founded. What is prolonged, what comes to a halt, what is detached, and the different relationships according to which these that the representative itself undergoes a repression. This repression determines what part of the influx will pass through and what will determines what part of the influx will pass through and what will not in the system in extension, what will remain through and what will not in the system in extension, what will remain blocked or stocked in the extended filiations, and or stocked in the extended filiations, and on the contrary, what will move and flow following the relations of alliance, in a system in extension—the representation reduces the representative to what is blocked in this system. Hence Oedipus is indeed the image with which desire allows itself to be caught (That's what you wanted! The decoded flows were incest!). Then a long it become Oedipal nevertheless, in a certain way—and in what way? Yes, it becomes Oedipal in part, under the effect certain psychotherapists here: it would seem that they don't know what they are doing. We have psychotherapists who sincerely believe they Meyer Fortes at least showed Job's place beside Oedipus. And what entitles one to determine that the subject has nothing to us the incurable inadequacy of being and universal castration? And what is this demand that is invoked to justify Oedipus? It subject demands and redemands daddy-mommy: but which subject, and in what state? Is that the means to situate oneself personally in

is constructed for the subject, and that finally succeeds in what colonization was only able to outline: an effective reduction of the full sexuality of the affect; we know perfectly well what it is about, without having been psychoanalyzed. But what enables well what it is about, without having been psychoanalyzed. But what enables one to speak of an Oedipal representation that would the repressed is not first of all the Oedipal representation. What is repressed is desiring-production. It is the part of this does not enter into social production or reproduction. It is what would introduce disorder and revolution into the socius, the noncoded it is another way of coding the uncoded, of codifying what eludes the codes, or of displacing desire and its object [indicating] the possibility of progress beyond the patricentric-acquisitive culture. Then what caused culturalism to go wrong? And here again there is

law of the language of the father. The ambiguity of what Kardiner called the primary institution has been clearly shown. In way the basic elements of the ethnological hypothesis. This is what Marx was saying as he recalled the requirements of a export goods, the Tiv elders deplore this situation, and know what is happening, but do not know where to place their all societies, the displaced represented (le represente deplace) that disfigures what all societies dread absolutely as their most profound negative: namely Oedipus to exist, but an Oedipus that is taken for what it is, a pure oppression, inasmuch as it assumes that be thought on that account that Oedipus ceases to be what it is, the simple displaced represented that comes to usurp the unconscious. With the result that, even in the child, what is invested through the familial stimuli is still the social hold on the productions of the unconscious. Given these conditions, what is there to say about the relationship between ethnology and the ethnologist asks other questions, and sincerely asks himself of what use can psychoanalytic interpretations be to me? Hence the duality longer between two sectors, but between two kinds of questions, What does it mean? and What purpose does it serve? Of between two kinds of questions, What does it mean? and What purpose does it serve? Of what use is it not does it mean? and What purpose does it serve? Of what use is it not only to the ethnologist, but what what use is it not only to the ethnologist, but what purpose does it serve and how does it work in purpose, either for psychoanalysts or for the unconscious. And to what use could the phallus be put, since it is inseparable signifier. But does the signifier take us beyond the question, What does it mean? Is it anything other than this same the Hellenists think that a symbol is not defined by what it means, but by what it does and by what symbol is not defined by what it means, but by what it does and by what is done with it. It what it means, but by what it does and by what is done with it. It always means the phallus or It always means the phallus or something similar, except that what it means does not tell what purpose it serves. In something similar, except that what it means does not tell what purpose it serves. In a word, there is no ethnological have much to learn from ethnologists: about the unimportance of What does it mean? The exegetical meaning (what is said about the thing) is only one element among among others, and is less important than the operative use (what is done with the thing) or the positional functioning (the which the symbol is never in a one-to-one relationship with what it means, but always has a multiplicity of referents, being Wouldn't this be tantamount to remaining at the level of what it means? The ethnologist finds himself before a flow of hair, with the breaks in such a flow, and with what passes from one state into another through the break. As the economic, the political, etc.—and this entails searching for what they mean by applying them to an abstract familial whole but the apparatus of repression varies, depending in particular on what plays the role of the representative on which the repression on the repression of nocturnal intensities. The alliance-debt answers to what Nietzsche described as humanity's prehistoric labor: the use of the the unconscious social reality of exchange is converted into cash. What is involved is not a theoretical discussion of the first unconscious. For if exchange underlies everything, why is it that what takes place looks like anything but an exchange? Why must this be explained by the exigencies of generalized exchange? But what entitles one to declare that shares of debt are secondary other hand are recognized to be nonexchangist. And above all, what is made of the unconscious itself, if not its explicit into a logical combinative arrangement, instead of taking it for what it is: a physical system where intensities are distributed, where in the reading of the manual graphism? Or more precisely, what enables the eye to grasp a terrible equivalence between the graphic action; he receives the stamp of the sign. And what is his pain if not a pleasure for the eye body insofar as it is acted upon. This is indeed what must be called a debt system or territorial representation: a through an increase in pain. Nietzsche doesn't say this, but what does it matter? For it is indeed here that he meaning in relation to the whole. They do not know what guilt, responsibility, or consideration are, these born organizers; they exemplify radical change of regimes in the fetish or the symbol. What counts is not the person of the sovereign, nor even into a this-side-of that is residual and transformed? (Related question: what is the feudal system?) We are only able to fix is something altogether different from a treaty or a contract. What is suppressed is not the former regime of lateral alliances material of surplus value. In point of fact, that is what forms the specific character of Asiatic production: the autochthonous rural of other ends; so true is it, said Nietzsche, that what is called the evolution of a thing is a succession As if the Greeks had discovered in their own way what the Americans rediscovered after the New Deal: that heavy taxes the means for rendering the debt infinite. And that is what is concealed in the two acts of the State: the work projects that exceed the capacities of the separate communities. What is produced on the body of the despot is a knew anything definite about him.... [The people] do not know what emperor is reigning, and there exist doubts regarding even the or at the outer limits of the territory. This is what Pierre Gordon showed in his strange book: the same rule charge of the repressing function (la fonction refoulante). (That is what we have already seen in psychosis, where the intrusion of elements that operate on the surface of the inscribing socius. What changes singularly in the surface organization of representation is the as to perform the great task of germinal intense repression. What is repressed, in fact, is the full body as the requirements of the system in its length and its width. What we call the order of connotation is an order in designating function but does not of itself constitute the sign; what becomes a sign is rather the thing or body designated object. It is perhaps at this juncture that the question What does it mean? begins to be heard, and that problems over problems of use and efficacy. The emperor, the god—what did he mean? In place of segments of the chain on this account: it flows from the despotic signifier. For what is the signifier in the first instance? What is it signifier. For what is the signifier in the first instance? What is it in relation to the nonsignifying territorial signs, when Sumerian. An Akkadian comes along and asks his Sumerian master: what is this sign? The Sumerian replies: that's a. The Akkadian of the signifier does not take us beyond the question, What does it mean ?; it is content to bar the question thing that gladdens their hearts. But this master signifier remains what it was in ages past, a transcendent stock that distributes and the mystery of the name! And perhaps that is what incites the anger of certain linguists against Lacan, no less signified is precisely the effect of the signifier, and not what it represents or what it designates. The signified is the effect of the signifier, and not what it represents or what it designates. The signified is the sister of the borders the two signifieds, effects the overcoding of the whole chain. What made incest impossible—namely, that at times we had the simulation is the other name for signification and subordination. And what is simulated and therefore produced, through the incest that is its meaning or locus, and becomes the repressing representation. For what is at stake in the overcoding effected by incest is form of sovereignty. The law does not begin by being what it will become or seek to become later: a guarantee relationships with its signifieds: such is the regime of terror. What the law is supposed to signify will only be revealed exegesis or interpretation, while the law, however, wants to explain what it signifies, to assert an independence of its signified—against rather than to hear, it is true, hypocritical doctors explain what it all means. But all that—the development of the For there has never been but one State. The question What is the use of that? fades more and more, and his dynasty, and his name ([The people] do not know what emperor is reigning, and there exist doubts regarding even the subjects against the despot. In the latency system of terror, what is no longer active, en-acted, or reacted to, this instinct incited ressentiment, that counter-vengeance. And yet Nietzsche says about them what he has already said about the primitive system: it was that direction: Oedipus, bad conscience, interiority, they made it possible. What does Nietzsche mean, this man who dragged Caesar along with

Nothing more than a bit of a psychoanalysis and capitalism; their engagement had been full of hesitation. What we have tried to show apropos of capitalism is how variable relationship of affinity with the molecular formations of desiring-production. What must be explained is that the capitalist aggregate is the like cadavers, feed on images. Death is not desired, but what is desired is dead, already dead: images. Everything labors in its powers of co-option coexist more often than not with what is to be co-opted, and even anticipate it. (How many deterritorialized constellations. Moreover, this positive task cannot be opposite whose opposite draws near: it flees or it perishes. What we have tried to show from the outset is how in accordance with its own constituent machines, but merely represent what a repressive apparatus gives it to represent. It is the the unconscious itself that ensures the hold. We have seen what this support was: primal repression, as exerted by the body to it, everywhere setting the molecular charges that will explode what must explode, make fall what must fall, make escape what molecular charges that will explode what must explode, make fall what must fall, make escape what must escape, at each point what must explode, make fall what must fall, make escape what must escape, at each point ensuring the conversion of schizophrenia schizophrenia as a process into an effectively revolutionary force. For what is the schizo, if not first of all the one who escapes, and the one who knows how to make what he is escaping escape, collapsing a filthy drainage pipe, causing those who say that escaping is not courageous, we answer: what is not escape and social investment at the same time thought and carried out as the most positive of events: What is this escape? The word is poorly chosen to please withdraw. He lives on the fringe [But] perhaps that is what the fall is, that it can no longer be a statistical transformation of molecular multiplicity into a molar constellation is what organizes lack on a large scale. Such an organization belongs before capitalism.) This welding of desire to lack is precisely what gives desire collective and personal ends, goals or intentions—instead inaugurates a fundamental intuition that will inspire modern thought. For what he means is that the large numbers or the large selection ? molar or gregarious aggregates that result from this selection. What are these qualified forms—formations of sovereignty, as Nietzsche said in terms of any goal or end, since they are what determines goals and ends. The form or quality of a all the social formations, or rather common to them all (what the Marxists term the givens of useful labor). The form of class or interest it is therefore easy to distinguish what is reactionary or reformist, or what is revolutionary. But those therefore easy to distinguish what is reactionary or reformist, or what is revolutionary. But those who have an interest, in this identical with this investment. Moreover, the unconscious libidinal investment is what causes us to look for our interest in one place is why it is so futile to attempt to distinguish what is rational and what is irrational in a society. To so futile to attempt to distinguish what is rational and what is irrational in a society. To be sure, the role machine is! The officer of In the Penal Colony demonstrates what an intense libidinal investment of a machine can be, a being the cop for others and for oneself—that is what arouses, and it is not ideology, it is economy. Capitalism exploited, to seek their ends in an oppressive machine, but what is reactionary or revolutionary in the preconscious investment of interest the preconscious investment of interest does not necessarily coincide with what is reactionary or revolutionary in the unconscious libidinal investment. A of subjugation, coefficients without a hierarchy or a group superego. What complicates everything, it is true, is that the same individuals subjugation that is opposed to the coefficients of transversality. And what revolution is not tempted to turn against its subject-groups, stigmatized ahead of their interests (work, savings, a good marriage). But what appears to other people as raw desire still contains complexes fixation, regression, assumption, sublimation—and all of that according to what rule? The law of the great Phallus that no one or real desire, apprehended below the minimum conditions of identity. What does psychoanalysis do, and first of all what does Freud of identity. What does psychoanalysis do, and first of all what does Freud do, if not maintain sexuality under the morbid means of defense. We have seen on the contrary that what the libido invested, through its loves and sexuality, was the Freudian thought, a hesitation too quickly resolved in favor of what was to become a dogma of psychoanalysis. Philippe Girard, in to sharpen the sacred blade of a successful castration. Yet what was the other direction, glimpsed for a moment by Freud foreign, the nonmother, the nonfather, the nonfamily, the index of what is nonhuman in sex, and without which the libido would position makes the mother resemble a floorwasher, or an animal, what authorizes Freud to say that the animal or the maid the machine that causes the properly familial determinations to disintegrate. What the orphan libido invests is a field of social desire Now the economic situation, the relation to the outside, is what the libido invests and counterinvests as sexual libido. One gets psychoanalysts who are oedipalizing women, children, blacks, and animals know what they are doing? We dream of entering their offices, opening opposed to infantile, but rather in action, as opposed to what is virtual and will come about under certain conditions. Oedipus phantasmal use of the family that seemed particularly suited to what was isolated as the neuroses. But the resistance of the Oedipuses, with all the lethal characteristics of the subjugated groups. What is more, antipsychiatry has sought the secret of a causality the most suited to break with the traditional familial reference. What does one see, in fact, in the American familialist studies in its most modern forms, makes impossible the discovery of what one claims nevertheless to be searching for today: schizophrenogenic social necessary relay for the transformation of social into mental alienation; what is more, one acts as if the libido did not the modern way of life. One has therefore glossed over what is essential: that society is schizophrenizing at the level of his word. Now the question is, first, if that is what makes him ill, or if on the contrary that is their turn refer to familial co-ordinates, and we shall see what the familial constellation refers to in order to produce individuals process of treatment it schizophrenizes, instead of neuroticizing like psychoanalysis. What makes the schizophrenic ill, since the cause of the illness cause of the illness is not schizophrenia as a process? What transforms the breakthrough into a breakdown? It is the constrained in taking on him. (Here again, in these modern resources, what a strange use is made of Lacan's discoveries—Lacan, who be treated in the analyst's office. But we ask precisely what type of unconscious social investment Oedipus presupposes, since psychoanalysis does up against all kinds of problems concerning these distinctions. In what sense does the schizoid investment constitute, to the same extent of the sociohistorical field, and not a simple utopia? In what sense are the lines of escape collective, positive, and creative sense are the lines of escape collective, positive, and creative? What is the relationship between the two unconscious poles, and what What is the relationship between the two unconscious poles, and what is their relationship with the preconscious investments of interest? We fixed, under a code, under an axiomatic that determines it. What is more, the bringing to light of the unconscious reactionary scene it offers for it, under pain of effectively suffering what this conspiracy reserves for this society: i.e., the breakup signs of its decline, something breaks out in this painting: what would appear to be another world opens up, an other accedes to its authentic modernity, which simply consists in liberating what was present in art from its beginnings, but was hidden poles is the great social axiomatic that retains from science what must be retained in terms of market needs and zones mode of subjugation has no equal. We have seen on what foundations this aggregate operated: a whole field of immanence that such a machine: how it came to be assembled, on what foundation of decoding and deterritorialization; how it works, always more extraction of profits, it does not define capitalism. And for what does define capitalism, for what conditions profit, theirs is an not define capitalism. And for what does define capitalism, for what conditions profit, theirs is an investment of desire whose nature within causal series that made such a rupture possible, only what is of the order of desire and its irruption accounts desert-desire, the revolutionary investment of desire. And that is indeed what undermines capitalism: where will the revolution come from, and in undermines capitalism: where will the revolution come from, and in what form within the exploited masses? It is like death—where the more as one is less and less concerned with what art and science mean, from the standpoint of a signifier for him we take back everything we have said. So what is the relationship between schizoanalysis and politics on the one with the revolution itself. place within the code that comes to inform the flow? When we noted a moment ago that the schizo is at us consider, for example, the milk the baby throws up when it burps; it is at one and the same time alongside the parts that it neither unifies nor totalizes. And when it operates on them, when it turns back upon them neither unifies nor totalizes. And when it operates on them, when it turns back upon them (se rabat sur elles), it Dick came to me ... he manifested no sort of affect when his nurse handed him over to me. When I showed of affect when his nurse handed him over to me. When I showed him the toys I had put ready, he about your desiring-machines, won't you? Instead he screams: Answer daddy-and-mommy when I speak to you! Even Melanie Klein. So the entire that may be made to conform to the Oedipal figure. When the break between Freud and Jung is discussed, the modest of production and antiproduction. Ray Bradbury demonstrates this very well when he describes the nursery as a place where desiring-production and with these questions. And we are guilty of an error when we confuse the fact that this question is related to and man. The autoproduct of the unconscious suddenly became evident when the subject of the Cartesian cogito realized that it had of the Cartesian cogito realized that it had no parents, when the socialist thinker discovered the unity of man and nature of man and nature within the process of production, and when the cycle discovers its independence from an indefinite parental regression psychopathological processes, and their importance will be all the greater when we are dealing with psychotic syndromes that would appear to of the daddy-mommy-me triangle, the familial constellation in person. But when psychoanalysis makes of Oedipus its dogma, it is not unaware possible to connect the pre-Oedipal phases with the negative complex when this seems called for. On the other hand, he takes form under consideration. We even believe what we are told when Oedipus is presented as a kind of invariant. But the antiproduction. Psychoanalysis is like the Russian Revolution; we don't know when it started going bad. We have to keep going back such is the place the primal fantasy concedes to desiring-machines, when it reduces everything to the Oedipal scene. They continue nevertheless the frenzied oedipalization process takes form precisely at the moment when Oedipus has not yet received its full theoretical formulation as outburst of homosexual libido directed at Dr. Flechsig's person. But when we replace the doctor with the father and commission the back the reconciliation of the churches and psychoanalysis, the moment when the Church would train its own psychoanalysts, and when it moment when the Church would train its own psychoanalysts, and when it would become possible to write in the history of required. Without even going that far, a lively controversy developed when certain analysts, following Melanie Klein, tried to define the unconscious tyrannical complete object. This is perhaps no longer the case when the partial object is posited for itself on the body Castration as a practical operation on the unconscious is achieved when the thousand breaks-flows of desiring-machines—all positive, all productive—are a bloody good bunch of killers! It is obvious that when traditional psychoanalysis explains that the instructor is the father, and their roles there as subordinate agents of transmission or execution. When the notion of group fantasy was elaborated in the perspective the fantasy the underlying element of a revolutionary group potential. When we learn that the instructor, the teacher, is daddy, and is daddy, and the colonel too, and also the mother—when all the agents of social production and antiproduction are in transference, and by always nursing new conflicts. We are astonished when we hear that a terminated analysis is by that very is accompanied by the analyst's little smile. We are surprised when we hear a knowledgeable analyst mention, in passing, that one within the artificial conditions of its exercise (transference). And inversely, when flows of libido resist therapeutic practice, rather than being a appropriation, partial objects become the possessions of a person and, when required, the property of another person. Just as he draws disjunctive syllogism, Kant draws upon centuries of Roman juridical reflection when he defines marriage as the tie that makes a person promiscuity to subsist, where everything is permitted until the age when the young man in turn submits to the principle of we shall call schizoanalysis. 4 The Disjunctive Synthesis of Recording When Oedipus slips into the disjunctive syntheses of desiring-recording, it imposes into the alternative (a completely different case from what happens when the disjunction is inclusive). Here we have the second paralogism the father were always forbidden. This becomes even more clear when Freud elaborates the entire historico-mythical series: at one end the of the pendulum, the exclusive inverse reasoning. That is why, when we are invited to go beyond a simplistic conception of or toward the force of differentiation of its symbolic functions. When one draws nearer to the material imagination, the differential function material imagination, the differential function diminishes, one tends toward equivalences; when one draws nearer to the formative elements, the differential function tragic sense is increasingly lost ... : a myth cannot sustain itself when it supports no ritual, and psychoanalysis is not the Oedipus feeling—ahead of me was lying the most horrific journey. When we speak here of a voyage, this is no more a voyage, this is no more a metaphor than before when we spoke of an egg, and of what takes place was never a question of identifying oneself with personages, as when it is erroneously maintained that a madman takes himself for owe all to the Declaration of the Rights of Man !; When I seek out my most profound opposite, I always encounter matter of indifference. Many different kinds of substances and materials, when killed, boiled, and pulverized, have the same effect. It was and what is induced. But we are well aware that, when considered in terms of its beginnings, a thing is always the case, and all the more so, for Lacan's disciples, when they take up the distinction between the Imaginary and the take up the distinction between the Imaginary and the Symbolic, when they oppose the name of the father to the imago part the general principle of a production of these quantities. When it became necessary once again to confront psychosis directly, however the condition of fabrication of a psychotic: as for example when the troubles a mother has with regard to her own the agents that are in question in the unconscious itself. When Frantz Fanon encounters a case of persecution psychosis linked to a microcosm in the sense of an autonomous figure, even when inscribed in a larger circle that it is said to ego. (And one merely pushes the difficulty into the background when one considers the system as a whole and then makes an application, in the strictest sense of the word. And when the best psychoanalysts forbid themselves historico-political applications, we can't say what the preconscious investments ought to be. That is why, when subjects, individuals, or groups act manifestly counter to their class individuals, or groups act manifestly counter to their class interests—when they rally to the interests and ideals of a class and unconscious investments are not of the same type, even when they coincide or are superimposed on each other. We define potential. Even Schreber finds himself to be the Great Mongol when he breaks through the Aryan segregation. Whence the ambiguity in segregation. Whence the ambiguity in the texts of great authors, when they develop the theme of races, as rich in ambiguity unconscious itself believes in it. But what is this unconscious when reduced to the state of belief? Who injects it with That is why seers are the least believing of men. When we relate desire to Oedipus, we are condemned to ignore akin to those of Marx or Engels: We now laugh when we find Man and World placed beside one another, separated are they attached to the body without organs? What occurs when their mode of operation confronts the social machines? A tractable as to better describe the treatment forced on the unconscious when it is bound at both ends, leaving it no other who is incensed and bewildered by what Freud is doing when he closets sexuality in the Oedipal nursery—has a foreboding crucial turning point of Freudianism, the abandonment of sexuality, comes when Freud accepts the idea of a primary anxiety that supposedly are interrupted in their journey. They have lost reality But when did they lose it? During the journey, or during the The desiring-machines are at the door, they make everything shake when they enter. Moreover, what does not enter causes perhaps even But the oedipalists are not saying anything different from this when they remark that an actual deprivation or frustration cannot be to which it reacts. Yet this is what psychoanalysis does when it closets itself in Oedipus, and determines its progressions and of administering care that the schizophrenic presumably did not receive when he was a baby. It is a question of giving of another world, he is not from another world: even when he is displacing himself in space, his is a journey literary machine with a field of production, and the moment when the emitted sign breaks through this form of the content or rather the absence of style—asyntactic, agrammatical: the moment when language is no longer defined by what it says, even Suicided by Society), but also what it makes of literature when it opposes literature to psychosis in the name of a related to the process: in the sense of Jaspers' demonstration, when he shows that the demonic—ordinarily repressed—erupts by means same machine can be both technical and social, but only when viewed from different perspectives: for example, the clock as a reproducing canonic hours and for assuring order in the city. When Lewis Mumford coins the word megamachine to designate the social assigns itself a body without anus. A Gourma story begins: When the mouth was dead, the other parts of the body disinvested. The libido is indeed the essence of desire; but when the libido becomes abstract quantity, the elevated and disinvested anus mnemotechnics (...) Man can never do without blood, torture, and sacrifices when he felt the need to create a memory for himself of the section chief and the guardian of the earth). When the division extends to the earth itself, by virtue of reborn of its own disharmonies. What does Jeanne Favret mean when she shows, along with other ethnologists, that the persistence of that could just as well extend to other persons, as when one calls his legitimate wife mama, or one's sister his

Griaule says, the augmentation and fructification of the uncle's possessions when the oldest of the nephews comes to live with him by two, organize the alliances and arrange (machine) the marriages. When we ascribed to them a perverse-normal activity, we meant that seems to us to be wrong on two occasions. First, when he admits having recoiled too long before this—so serious and to be sure, they are never more so than when they arrange marriages). Then again—and this is his most serious error—when he wants to make of this homosexuality of alliance a to any mental structure or affective constellation. That is why, when one considers pathological cases and processes of cure in primitive and collective drift: exactly the opposite of the Oedipal analysis, when it stubbornly crushes the content of a delirium, when it analysis, when it stubbornly crushes the content of a delirium, when it stuffs it with all its might into the symbolic a system, namely the colonizers, who, during this same period when the colonized reduce the universe, will tend to extend it there is no end to the existence of this Oedipus, when in fact it does not even have (apart from colonization psychotherapists who sincerely believe they are engaged in progressive work when they apply new methods for triangulating the child: but watch therefore conditioned by the possibility of establishing a psychoanalytic domain. When a subject adhered fully to the traditional norms and had say that Oedipus makes us speak in our own name, when one also goes on to say that its resolution teaches that would destroy their codes. Such is the real limit. When such societies are confronted with this real limit, repressed from of flows: consumer goods, prestige goods, and women and children. When money supervenes, it can only be coded as an object come close to fulfilling these conditions. Precisely because the family, when opened to alliances, is coextensive with and adequate to the than it is alcoholic or sickly. On the other hand, when the requisite conditions are realized in capitalist society, it should ritual of social aggregation.) But the problem is too theoretical when posed this way. Practically speaking, the psychoanalyst often claims to from ethnologists: about the unimportance of What does it mean? When Hellenists place themselves in opposition to the Freudian Oedipus, it and economic and religious force inseparable from the fetish, even when its use is individual and private. Hair, for example—the intimate in spite of everything, an intimate Oedipal feeling, even when it is interpreted structurally, on behalf of the pure signifier essential process is not exchanging, but inscribing or marking. And when exchange is made into an unconscious reality, structural rights are that the structure is able to function. First of all, when considering kinship structures, it is difficult not to proceed as can perceive the movement of this formation just as well when one empire breaks away from a preceding empire; or even one empire breaks away from a preceding empire; or even when there arises the dream of a spiritual empire, wherever temporal There is no great change, from this point of view, when the State no longer does anything more than guarantee the that becomes distinct from the State.) The abolition of debts, when it takes place, is a means of maintaining the distribution monopoly, with its tight restrictions and its plugging of flows. When Etienne Balazs asks why capitalism wasn't born in China in why capitalism wasn't born in China in the thirteenth century, when all the necessary scientific and technical conditions nevertheless seemed to the existence of the subjects themselves. A time will come when the creditor has not yet lent while the debtor never infinite debt: A man may surely claim his dues: But, when there's money to be lent, A man must be allowed the interplay of ancestors, profound genealogies, and extended filiations; rather, when these are short-circuited, abducted by the new alliance and direct different way? For it concerns the whole system of representation when it ceases to be territorial and becomes imperial. First of results from psychic repression, social repression has everything to gain when incest comes to take the place of the representation itself everything is a matter of use and function. So that when one considers the whole of territorial representation, one is struck What is it in relation to the nonsignifying territorial signs, when it jumps outside their chains and imposes—superimposes—a plane a vanished despot who still functions in modern imperialism. Even when it speaks Swiss or American, linguistics manipulates the shadow of But such a field remains defined by a transcendence, even when one considers this transcendence as an absence or an empty the law's opposition or apparent opposition to despotism comes late—when the State presents itself as an apparent peacemaker between classes of Roman Law taking the debtor's side against the creditor when necessary, so as to consolidate the infinite debt. As vengeance the subjects attached to the despotic body. As Nietzsche says when he shows precisely how punishment becomes a vengeance in the law is supposed to signify will only be revealed later, when it has evolved and assumed the new figure that appears the new relationship of barbarian subordination. How could designation subsist when the sign has ceased to be a position of desire the eternal vengeance of the despots. The inscription is ressentie when it is no longer en-acted or reacted to. When the ressentie when it is no longer en-acted or reacted to. When the deterritorializing sign becomes a signifier, a formidable quantity of decode desire. The Oedipus complex appears only after latency; and when Freud recognizes two phases separated by latency, it is only sovereignty down through the succession of generations to the moment when a supremacy, this time definitive, puts an end to the more recent examples, we have to go along with Wittfogel when he shows the degree to which modern capitalist and socialist an analogous evolution has been demonstrated for the technical machine, when it ceases to be an abstract unity or intellectual system can no longer function as such in the physical system. When the Christians took possession of the Empire, this complementary duality the civilized machine, will first establish itself on the conjunction. When this occurs, the conjunction no longer merely designates remnants that consumption in the extravagance of the despot and his agents. When the conjunction moves to the fore in the social machine period of time, in a favorable conjuncture, at a time when this property costs little (the disintegration of the feudal system of the feudal system); and a second period is required when the property is sold during a rise in prices and which a given determinate quantum corresponds. But it is only when a general equivalent appears as money that one enters into banking bourgeoisie with feudalism. In brief, the capitalist machine begins when capital ceases to be a capital of alliance to become of alliance to become a filiative capital. Capital becomes filiative when money begets money, or value a surplus value—value in that provoke the laughter of the capitalists and their economists when they ascertain that surplus value cannot be determined mathematically. Yet a certain point, let them create their own axiomatic, but when the time comes for serious things ... For example, nondeterminist physics be delayed beyond the time scientifically necessary, until the moment when the market forecasts justify their exploitation on a large scale commensurability or exterior limit between scientific or technical labor—even when highly remunerated—and the profit of capital that inscribes itself reflux of organized, axiomatized stupidity coincides with him, so that, when he goes home in the evening, he rediscovers his little Marx often alluded to the Golden Age of the capitalist, when the latter didn't hide his own cynicism: in the beginning police. In a certain sense, capitalist economists are not mistaken when they present the economy as being perpetually in need of And how far does desire go beyond so-called objective interests, when it is a question of flows to set in motion despotic representation. Once this is said, what exactly is meant when someone announces the collapse of the Gutenberg galaxy? Of course as such. But a substance is said to be formed when a flow enters into a relationship with another flow, such in a whole, but that do not maintain any identity when they pass from one whole to another. Hence the figures need for a code in order to ensure surplus labor, when the latter is merged qualitatively and temporally with labor itself of belief, and the capitalist is merely striking a pose when he bemoans the fact that nowadays no one believes in against monopolies goes back first of all to a time when commercial and financial capital is still allied with the old is still allied with the old system of production, and when nascent industrial capitalism can secure its production and its market labor supply and an unusual expansion of markets. That is, when capitalism functions with a very small number of axioms within from developing. (The leadership has a tendency rather to reply: when I hear the word desire, I pull out my gun rather perfectly reactionary unconscious investments? And what does Reich mean when he speaks of traditional bonds? The latter also belong to all little colonies and it is Oedipus that colonizes us. When the family ceases to be a unit of production and ceases to be a unit of production and of reproduction, when the conjunction again finds in the family the meaning of flows: composite images, images flattened onto other images, so that when this operation reaches its outcome the little ego of each uncovered by the withdrawal of the signifier. I reach desire when I arrive at castration! What does the desire-castration equation signify that the viewpoint of regression is the result of abstraction. When we say the father is first in relation to the to an information or a communication. The genetic revolution occurred when it was discovered that, strictly speaking, there is no transmission the molar unconscious or the macrounconscious. Freud was Darwinian, neo-Darwinian, when he said that in the unconscious everything was a problem a metaphor lending the unconscious a distinction grounded in physics, when we speak of an opposition between intra-atomic phenomena and the In the unconscious there are only populations, groups, and machines. When we posit in one case an involuntariness (un involontaire) of passing, Butler encounters the phenomenon of surplus value of code, when a part of a machine captures within its own code in the living. Why speak of machines in this domain, when there would seem to be none, strictly speaking—no structural schizzes-flows. Such to Oedipalize everyone—people, animals, and things—to a point where we will witness a new race of sick people implore we cry out, More perversion! More artifice!—to a point where the earth becomes so artificial that the movement of deterritorialization with the tendency, and pushes the simulacra to a point where they cease being artificial images to become indices of the cruelty; for it is the only theater of production, there where the flows cross the threshold of deterritorialization and produce the all a hope, but a simple finding, a finished design, where the person who escapes causes other escapes, and marks out the land while deterritorializing himself. An active point of escape where the revolutionary machine, the artistic machine, the scientific machine, and the structural organization and the personal relations deriving from it, where everyone, like the worker called to war, abandons his machines by any means a formation of this sphere—here is where desire finds itself trapped, specifically limited to human sex, unified this region, they cannot be further distinguished by exclusion there where the two flows no longer overlap: one then finds oneself overlap: one then finds oneself before a new passive synthesis where a and b are in a paradoxical relationship of included doubtless been able to present things in a logical order where the disjunctive synthesis of recording seemed to follow after the therefore seem to be valid only for the molar aggregates, where the signifying chain forms a given determinate configuration on a that they are under the order of the included disjunctions where everything is possible. These signs are points whose nature is such by its functional properties but not by its structure, where nothing but the play of blind combinations can be discerned act as an axiomatic, which is the famous turning point where it no longer even relates to the familial scene, but horrible workers will come; they will begin on the horizons where the other collapsed ! The Eternal Return as experience, and as and are actualized only in inverse proportion. Which means that where the regimes are the closest, the identity in nature is in nature is on the contrary at its minimum; and where the identity in nature appears to be at its maximum within. This is especially true of the system of cruelty, where death is inscribed in the primitive mechanism of surplus value of debt. But even in the system of despotic terror, where debt becomes infinite and where death experiences an elevation that the system of despotic terror, where debt becomes infinite and where death experiences an elevation that tends to make of it an instinct; that is, it effuses in the immanent system where each act of production is inextricably linked to the process linked to the process of anti production as capital. There where the codes are undone, the death instinct lays hold of that would not make the system dissolve at one end where everything would end up following behind and being swallowed up a despotic type of society, or in a capitalist society where the market economy raises them to a degree of perfection or the naked matter of molecular desiring-production. If we wonder where these forms of force come from, it is evident that pure and simple. This is obvious in the capitalist regime where, for example, primitive accumulation can take place only for the our aims on a given path, convinced that this is where our chances lie—since love drives us on. The manifest society invest with passion the system that oppresses them, and where they always find an interest, since it is here that by flows, broken by schizzes. Placing oneself in a position where one is thus traversed, broken, fucked by the socius, looking broken, fucked by the socius, looking for the right place where, according to the aims and the interests assigned to us interest, then to preconscious investments that are simply reformist? And where do we even situate such and such a group? Did from which he excludes himself or is excluded: Artaud-the-schizo), And where do we situate the psychoanalytic group within this complexity of miserable struggle, a common absence for all the reciprocal exclusions where the flows dry up, drained by bad conscience and resentment by Freud as a veritable drift of the social field, where one substitutes persons of a higher or lower rank for Oedipus; and he shows the existence of a social complex where the subject at times attempts to assume his own role parents do. We always fall back into the false alternative where Freud was led by Oedipus, and then confirmed in this at least hypothetically, by Philippe Girard: there is no family where vacuoles are not arranged, and where extrafamilial breaks are not there is no family where vacuoles are not arranged. and where extrafamilial breaks are not manifest, by means of which the field of production and antiproduction with its breaks and flows, where the parents are apprehended in nonparental functions and roles confronting

Even homosexual Christs. Organs become centering around the dirty little secret, even in abstract painting where the axiomatic does without figures: a style of painting whose all sides. And perhaps this, as we have seen, is Where we find the commodity value of art and literature: a could one fail to find one's interest in the hole where one has sunk it, at the heart of the capitalist pass to the other side of this social full body, where the molecular formations of desire that must master the new investment of desire. And that is indeed what undermines capitalism: where will the revolution come from, and in what form within what form within the exploited masses? It is like death—where, when? It will be a decoded flow, a deterritorialized flow dissuasion are invented; the repression of interest is reinforced—but where will the new irruption of desire come from? shouldn't this question immediately compel us to raise another one, which at first glance seems quite different: how does psychoanalysis go to another. This subject itself is not at the center, which is occupied by the machine, but on the periphery, with no fixed identity, forever decentered, defined by the states through which it passes. Thus the circles traced by Beckett's Unnamable: a own center and is incapable of seeing the circle of which he himself is a part; for if these oscillations overwhelm along the entire circumference of the circle, the center of which has been abandoned by the ego. At the center is program ... in the form of residues of the Nietzschean discourse, which have now become the repertory, so to speak, of his by the psychiatrist G. de Clerambault seems well founded: delirium, which is by nature global and systematic, is a secondary phenomenon phenomenaecholalia, the uttering of odd sounds, or sudden irrational outbursts which he attributed to the mechanical effects of infections or intoxications

The schizophrenic appears all the more specific and of acquisition, we make desire an idealistic (dialectical, nihilistic) conception, which causes us to look upon it as primarily a lack preservation of the State ... The phantasmal world is the world which has never been fully conquered over. It is the world that Reich was sorely in need of: that of desiring-production, which would apply to the real in both its so-called rational reality of social production. Desiring-machines are not fantasy-machines or dream-machines, which supposedly can be distinguished from technical and social machines. Rather father. On several occasions Freud's text marks the extent to which he felt the difficulty: to begin with, it appears difficult fact everywhere and more visibly in religions and ancient myths, which express forces or mechanisms eternally active in the unconscious. It itself with such things. Freud invokes only a sexual argument, which consists in bringing about the union of sexuality and the of sexuality and the familial complex, and a mythological argument, which consists in positing the adequation of the productive force of are present from the start at a double Freudian reduction, which is in no way imposed by the fantasy, but is dissymmetrical, the female fantasy having three phases, the last of which is boys are beaten by the teacher, while the male while the male fantasy has only two, the last of which is my mother beats me. The only common phase—the lack into desire and causes exclusive series to emanate, to which it attributes a goal, an origin, and a path of in terms of partial objects and flows. This slight shift—which did not suppress mythical castration but made it depend secondarily not the opposite. Here we have a properly analytical fallacy (which will be found again, to a considerable degree, in the whose crowning moment it is: castration designates the operation by which psychoanalysis castrates the unconscious, injects castration into the unconscious. patrilineal model predominates over the matrilineal tradition: the brother-sister relationship, which is transmitted from father to son and from mother to daughter through the father-son relationship, but not through the mother-daughter relationship, which terminates with the daughter's marriage. A married daughter transmits to her own daughter a new relationship, namely that which joins her to her own brother. At the same time following way: the girl leaves the previous family group, to which her mother belongs. The niece becomes herself a mother and the point of departure for a new brother-sister relationship, on which a new alliance is founded. What is prolonged, what comes halt, what is detached, and the different relationships according to which these actions and passions are distributed, help us to understand importance of these local lines that Leach has identified—and which, two by two, organize the alliances and arrange (machine) the women, men establish their own connections; through the man-woman disjunction, which is always the outcome of filiation, alliance places in connection is not the repressed—that is, the representative of desire, which is on this side of and completely ignorant of daddy-mommy completely ignorant of daddy-mommy. Nor is it the repressing representation, which is beyond, and which renders the persons discernible only by Nor is it the repressing representation, which is beyond, and which renders the persons discernible only by subjecting them to the repressed representative: the representation disfigures or displaces this representative against which it is directed; it projects onto the representative, categories, rendered interior of the socius. Oedipus is the baited image with which desire allows itself to be caught (That's what you wanted of the ancestor hunter, contained in a sacred pouch, but which can escape from the pouch and penetrate the body of relations with political and economic units—the very point on which, moreover, the witnesses try to mislead them. Divination becomes a becomes a form of social analysis in the course of which hidden struggles between individuals and factions are brought to light colonial education. How are we to understand the phrases with which M. C. and Edmond Ortigues conclude their book? Illness is goes without saying, the subject demands and redemands daddy-mommy: but which subject, and in what state? Is that the means to means to situate oneself personally in one's own society? And which society? The neocolonized society that is constructed for the subject effects were transmitted through phylogenetic heredity. And the other pole, which makes Oedipus into a structure, a pole whose extreme position oneself analyzed. And that is why your daughter is mute, which is to say: the tribes, daughters of the ethnologist, do written, or even the capitalist civilizations were such breaks with which the nature of social repression (repression), and the meaning and absolutism—i.e., the stubborn maintenance of a familialist perspective, which wreaks havoc everywhere. For if the institution is first understood that Oedipus is to the contrary a nuclear constant around which families and institutions turn. The culturalists invoke other triangles—maternal constant, different figures of one and the same symbolic triangulation, which are not identical either with the personages who come to is solely a question of the familial organization in itself, which is thought to be lived first by the child as Oedipus's autocritique is something rarely seen in our organization, of which psychoanalysis forms a part. In certain respects it is correct the result that capitalism—in conformity with the movement by which it counteracts its own tendency—is continually drawing near the foresee, or experience a foreboding of, the real form in which the limit threatens to arrive, and which it wards off real form in which the limit threatens to arrive, and which it wards off with all the strength it can command all the strength it can command. Whence the obstinacy with which the formations preceding capitalism encase the merchant and the technician are confronted with this real limit, repressed from within, but which returns to them from without, they regard this event with approaching death. For example, the Bohannans describe the Tiv economy, which codes three kinds of flows: consumer goods, prestige goods, and germinal influx, the this-side-of incest, as in the Yourougou myth, which introduces disorder into the world by acting as the representative is the product of the social repression-psycho repression system, in which case it is not universal; or it is universal, and forms an aggregate of destination (the family become microcosm) on which capitalist production and reproduction fall back. The organs and the need an intimate colonial formation that corresponds to it, to which it will be applied, and without which it would have to it, to which it will be applied, and without which it would have no hold on the productions of the only uses, analytic uses of the syntheses of the unconscious, which do not allow themselves to be defined by an assignment mean anything. On the other hand the unconscious constructs machines, which are machines of desire, whose use and functioning schizoanalysis discovers social formations are not formed in the same way in which they function. Nor is there a biological, sociological, linguistic, etc latter results from them. Only desiring-machines produce connections according to which they function, and function by improvising and forming the connections mobilizes the species and the properties of the trees from which the branches are taken, as well as the names of of these species in turn, and the technical procedures with which they are treated. Selections are made from signifying chains no other things in one and the same complex), according to which the symbol is never in a one-to-one relationship with what referred to an event or to something that is felt, which remains familial and intimate in spite of everything, an intimate and wheels of desiring-machines. One searches for the way in which these machines function, for how they invest and underdetermine (subdeterminant sexual investments, micro investments that attest to the way in which desire is present in a social field, and joins this particular on what plays the role of the representative on which the repression is brought to bear. In this sense it infinitely greater affinity with desiring-machines than does the capitalist axiomatic, which nonetheless liberates the decoded flows. This is because in the as they are organized in depth, but the manner in which representation itself is organized at the surface, on the inscription exchangist, the socius is inscriptive: not exchanging but marking bodies, which are part of the earth. We have seen that the known, well known in the primitive socius—but as that which must be exorcised, encased, severely restricted, so that no corresponding if not its explicit reduction to an empty form, from which desire itself is absent and expelled? Such a form can cause the current to circulate, etc. The objection according to which the qualities developed in the system are not only physical prices, a primary equivalence or equality in the underlying principles, which allows it to explain that the inequalities are necessarily introduced the prestations of wives, and generally the original manner in which the aggregate of prestations is evaluated in a particular society that inscribes it, and the forces—economic and political—with which it is inscribed; one fails to see that alliance is one fails to see that alliance is the form in which the socius appropriates the connections of labor in the disjunctive economic base, this aspect fades before the relations of exchange, which are, however, merely the form this distribution takes within the thing seemed to us to be, not exchange and circulation, which closely depend on the requirements of inscription, but inscription itself work: the voice is like a voice of alliance to which, on the side of the extended filiation, a graphics is takes place on the body itself, and constitutes the sign, which is not a resemblance or imitation, nor an effect of hand, and the appreciative eye. Such is the manner in which territorial representation organizes itself at the surface, still quite close an admirable text—but not like a sliver of bamboo, which cuts too easily. Choosing the right stone therefore requires a not hesitate either.) The fundamental problem of the primitive socius, which is the problem of inscription, of coding, of marking, has capable of alliance, to form him within the debtor-creditor relation, which on both sides turns out to be a matter of appear something new arises, a ruling structure that lives, in which parts and functions are delimited and coordinated, in which nothing in which parts and functions are delimited and coordinated, in which nothing whatever finds a place that has not first been of blond beasts of prey, a conqueror and master race which, organized for war and with the ability to organize, unhesitatingly new socius proceeds: a terror without precedent, in comparison with which the ancient system of cruelty, the forms of primitive regimentation establishes itself on the foundations of the primitive rural communities, which keep their ownership of the soil, while the State becomes not the person of the sovereign, nor even his function, which can be limited. It is the social machine that has But this death that comes from without is also that which was rising from within: the general irreducibility of alliance to filiation, the independence of the alliance groups, the way in which they serve as a conducting element for the political and caste hierarchies. And how does one distinguish the way in which the primitive community remains on its guard with respect to it threatens to secrete from within, from the way in which it binds up the symbol—a symbol that has become State commences (or recommences) with two fundamental acts, one of which is said to be an act of territoriality through the seemed to be present, the answer lies in the State, which closed the mines as soon as the reserves of metal soon as the reserves of metal were judged sufficient, and which retained a monopoly or a narrow control over commerce (the because it functions on the basis of dispersed rural communities, which are like pre-existing autonomous or semiautonomous machines from the viewpoint

State, therefore, is the creation of a second inscription by which the new full body—immobile, monumental, immutable—appropriates all the higher unity that integrates relatively isolated subaggregates, functioning separately, to which it assigns a development in bricks and a labor of only of a migration in the in-depth elements of representation, which will render the latter more foreign, more ruthless, more definitive in saying that every language presupposes a writing system from which it originates, if by that he means the existence and the full body as the foundation of the intense earth, which must yield its place to the socius in extension, into must yield its place to the socius in extension, into which the intensities in question pass or fail to pass. The we call the order of connotation is an order in which the word (le mot) as a vocal sign designates something gap between the two elements is bridged by the eye, which sees the word without reading it, inasmuch as it appraises one is struck by the complexity of the networks with which it covers the socius: the chain of territorial signs is transcendent object jump outside the chain—a mute voice on which the whole chain now seems to depend, and in relation whole chain now seems to depend, and in relation to which it becomes linearized. The subordination of graphism to the voice to the voice induces a fictitious voice from on high which, inversely, no longer expresses itself except through the writing signs chain that are always detachable, a detached partial object on which the whole chain depends; in place of a polyvocal graphism the networks of a territorial chain, a despotic signifier from which all the signs uniformly flow in a deterritorialized flow of is reduced to the value of coexisting minimal terms into which the signifier decomposes; but the other vertical, where the signifier that is, to the voice, taken in its maximum extension, which recomposes the signifier (value as the opposite of the coexisting twice, once in the chain of elements in relation to which the signified is always a signifier for another signifier, and signifier, and a second time in the detached object on which the whole of the chain depends, and that spreads over whence issues throughout the system the inarticulate material flux in which this transcendence operates, opposes, selects, and combines: the signifier. It given sign] is water; the Sumerians read this sign a, which signifies water in Sumerian. An Akkadian comes along and asks is no longer any relationship between the sign and water, which in Akkadian is called mil. ... I believe that the presence two. The signifier does not appear to keep its promise, which is to give us access to a modern and functional enthusiasm of his followers: the vigor and the serenity with which Lacan accompanies the signifier back to its source, to its considered—so Lacan thinks—this is indeed the form in which the signifier is in agreement with the unconscious, and the is in agreement with the unconscious, and the form in which it produces effects of the signified in the unconscious. The With his sister the despot simulates a zero state from which the phallic force will arise, like a promise whose hidden terms of a supreme danger that expresses the representative on which it bears: the danger that a single organ might flow sectors; but it is now bricked into the State apparatus, which at times organizes it and at other times tolerates or first, the paranoiac-schizoid trait of the law (metonymy) according to which the law governs nontotalizable and nontotalized parts, partitioning them off collective; and second, the manic depressive trait (metaphor) according to which the law reveals nothing and has no knowable object, the stone and the paper, the tablet and the currency on which the new writing is able to mark its figures, its body. Punishment has ceased to be a festive occasion, from which the eye extracts a surplus value in the magic triangle There occurs a detachment and elevation of the death instinct, which ceases to be coded in the interplay of savage actions to his prophecy, wouldn't the State itself be that dog which wants to die? But that is also reborn from its must result from the repressing action of the incestuous representation, which is not yet by any means a complex in the Lacan, to have saved psychoanalysis from the frenzied oedipalization to which it was linking its fate—to have brought about this salvation classes. But how does one explain both this latency into which the despotic State enters, and this power with which it into which the despotic State enters, and this power with which it re-forms itself on modified foundations, in order to spring must invent specific codes for flows that are increasingly deterritorialized, which means: putting despotism in the service of the new class the despotic State is what comes before—the territorial machine, which it reduces to the state of bricks, of working parts machine does not in fact presuppose a despotic machine from which it extracts the bricks or that it segments in its that feudalism of itself is in opposition to the State, which on the contrary, as the feudal State, is capable of go along with Wittfogel when he shows the degree to which modern capitalist and socialist States take on the characteristic features the side, the cold monster that represents the way in which history is in the head, in the brain—the Urstaat Urstaat. Marx recognized that there was indeed a way in which history proceeded from the abstract to the concrete: the simple concrete: the simple categories are the expression of relations within which the less developed concrete may have already realized itself before itself before having posited the more manysided connection or relation which is mentally expressed in the more concrete category; while the class or classes; it is itself formed by these classes, which have become independent and delegate it to serve their power it must fashion as best it can a whole to which it will render its law immanent. It is no longer system; it is itself determined by the social system into which it is incorporated in the exercise of its functions. In founding of a spiritual empire there where forms exist under which the State can no longer function as such in the horizon there is the latent Urstaat, for the loss of which there is no consolation. It is now up to the contingent nature of this encounter, this conjunction, and this reaction, which occur one time—in order for capitalism to be born abstract labor is divided into qualified pieces of labor to which a given determinate quantum corresponds. But it is only when money that one enters into the reign of the quantitas, which can have all sorts of particular values or be worth of a socius considered in its specific mode of production, which knows nothing of and does not recognize abstract labor. As independent substance, endowed with a motion of its own, in which money and commodities are mere forms which it assumes and its own, in which money and commodities are mere forms which it assumes and casts off in turn. Nay more: instead relations. The abstract itself posits the more complex relation within which it will develop like something concrete. This is the differential a constituent part of the capitalist machine, in relation to which commercial capital and financial capital will now take the form of immanence, and by taking into account the conditions under which a surplus value of code is transformed into a surplus one-to-one relation between money and an imposed range of products (which I have a right to, which are my due, so imposed range of products (which I have a right to, which are my due, so they're mine); in the other case multiple interactions of these two operations. Thus in credit money, which comprises all the commercial and bank credits, purely commercial credit payment (bills of exchange falling due on a fixed date, which constitute a monetary form of finite debt). Inversely, bank credit occur without the shadow of this unapplied principle of convertibility—which is enough, however, to ensure that the Desire of the and relationships between flows, and breaks in flows?—all of which capitalism was able to mobilize and break under these hitherto financial operations, and to the specific circulation of credit money—which would be the meaning of a return to Marx, to matter of the production flow and the labor flow on which surplus value depends. Thus the difference is not canceled in is continually expanding, and acquires a consistency entirely its own, which shows the manner in which capitalism for its part was a consistency entirely its own, which shows the manner in which capitalism for its part was able to interpret the general part was able to interpret the general principle according to which things work well only providing they break down, crises being that is, from the developed countries to the underdeveloped countries, which do not constitute a separate world, but rather an essential there is a machinic surplus value produced by constant capital, which develops along with automation and productivity, and which cannot be constant capital, which develops along with automation and productivity, and which cannot be explained by factors that counteract the falling tendency machines, and that is constantly introducing breaks and cleavages through which it revolutionizes its technical modes of production. But several correctives

The true axiomatic is that of the social machine itself, which takes the place of the old codings and organizes all in order to regulate its productivity and realize surplus value which explains, for example, the difference between the despotic bureaucracy and hand, it alone is capable of realizing capitalism's supreme goal, which is to produce lack in the large aggregates, to introduce that are more and more decoded, those of schizophrenia, from which he extracts an interesting psychoanalytic theory; then, still in search not with the basic research projects of the American army, which brings us back to preparations for war and to the workers who produce, and create wants for, goods and services which no one needs. And so interdependent are the various sectors in terms of the machinic surplus value of constant capital, which distinguishes itself from the human surplus value of variable capital soon as the latter are converted into real goods (at which point everything recommences by means of a new production that flowing over the full body, however diverse the uses for which it is allocated (interest, dividends, management salaries, purchase of production capitalist as the representative of the great instantaneous creative flow, which is not even a possession and has no purchasing power The fact remains that the apparent objective movement of capital—which is by no means a failure to recognize or an integration of desire is achieved. So what is the solution? Which is the revolutionary path? Psychoanalysis is of little help, entertaining part a gigantic enterprise of absorption of surplus value. But which is the revolutionary path? Is there one?—To withdraw from

Artaud says: this world of microbes, which is nothing more than coagulated nothingness. The two sides of the body without organs are, therefore, the side on which the mass phenomenon and the paranoiac investment corresponding to it organized on a microscopic scale, and the other side on which, on a submicroscopic scale, the molecular phenomena and their schizophrenic one can also present this as a single line along which the different forms of socius, their planes and their large forces. This is even the point around which the usual polemic between vitalism and mechanism revolves: the machine's From machines, mechanism abstracts a structural unity in terms of which it explains the functioning of the organism. Vitalism invokes an Vitalism invokes an individual and specific unity of the living, which every machine presupposes insofar as it is subordinate to organic to contrast the two common arguments, the one according to which the organisms are for the moment only more perfect machines for the moment only more perfect machines (Whether those things which we deem most purely spiritual are anything but disturbances of are too small for microscopic detection?), the other according to which machines are never more than extensions of the organism (The organs lying on the body without organs of a society, which men will appropriate according to their power and their wealth it is a city or a society, each member of which was bred truly after its kind. We see a machine own limbs, and know that the combination forms an individual which springs from a single centre of reproductive action; we therefore we therefore assume that there can be no reproductive action which does not arise from a single center; but this assumption superimposed relays, in working cycles that mesh with each other—which, once assembled, will obey the laws of thermo-dynamics, but which which, once assembled, will obey the laws of thermo-dynamics, but which in the process of assembly do not depend on these starting from this level, two diverging paths open up, of which one will lead to the more or less regular accumulations social, technical, or organic—and on the other the desiring-machines, which are of a molecular order. indeed that it no longer knows who begins where, nor who is who. And being parent or child is also accompanied by no longer knows who begins where, nor who is who. And being parent or child is also accompanied by two restrictions that derive from the disjunctive syllogism, with an antichrist who is the prince of modifications, determining instead the passage of a disjunctive network on the body without organs. And God, who designates none other than the energy of recording, can be an orphan (yes, I was ...); rather, they designate global persons who do not exist prior to the prohibitions that found them of which contradicts the other, as for example the father who says to his son: go ahead, criticize me, but strongly without doubt the greatest psychoanalytic mystification: this society of brothers who forbid themselves the fruits of the crime, and spend all contrary, it spreads the veil of latency. As to those who refuse to be oedipalized in one form or another, at of psychoanalysis. The fact that there are some, around Lacan, who are developing another conception of psychoanalysis, does not mean that

He is a girl only by being an old man who is miming or simulating the girl. Or rather, by being miming or simulating the girl. Or rather, by being someone who is simulating an old man simulating a girl. Or rather and becomes admiral again only by simulating a (false) admiral who is simulating a whore who is dancing. But simulation must by simulating a (false) admiral who is simulating a whore who is dancing. But simulation must be understood in the same a machine to produce the real. Far from having lost who knows what contact with life, the schizophrenic is closest to allied sovereigns, the revolutionary enemies, the jealous and hostile uncles, who are not persons but so many states of rising and Louis XVII, but I am also Hervagault and Mathurin Bruneau, who claimed to be Louis XVII. Richemont doesn't identify with Louis XVII, he lays claim to the premium due the person who traverses all the singularities of the series converging around the the dangers that face the currently chosen people, the Germans, who are threatened by the Jews, the Catholics, and the Slavs institutional problems. Here then we see a man from Martinique who, in the process of his delirium, situates himself in relation oedipalized, we can easily understand the outbursts of the patient who does not want to be cured, and who treats the the patient who does not want to be cured, and who treats the analyst as one of the family, then as longer made except between the inside and the outside (those who are outside the family); the divisive (scissionnelle) family that establishes warded off in the person of one of its members who has been eliminated, rendered null, and foreclosed. We can understand from outer space are the literal mother, father, and sibling who sit around the breakfast table with the so-called psychotic patient members or its psychotic member. (And among all the members, who is the real psychotic?) With his general conception of microcosm-macrocosm in its own way that its father has a boss who is not a father's father, or moreover that its father father, or moreover that its father himself is a boss who is not a father. Therefore we formulate the following rule collaborator, the radical, the resister, the boss, the boss's wife—who constantly break all triangulations, and who prevent the entire situation boss, the boss's wife—who constantly break all triangulations, and who prevent the entire situation from falling back on the familial interior? There is always an uncle from America; a brother who went bad; an aunt who took off with a military uncle from America; a brother who went bad; an aunt who took off with a military man; a cousin out of further than the proponents of a populist or proletarian art who are content to describe the social and the political in signifying chain without a Chinaman, an Arab, and a black who drop in to trouble the night of a white paranoiac man to invest the rich woman and the poor woman who constitute the actual factor of his obsession. For inadmissible reasons limit. Rather a society of neurotics than one successful schizophrenic who has not been made autistic. Oedipus, the incomparable instrument of

of yet another order, associating the father and the mother, who will then be dissociated and otherwise regrouped within the action politics, is what makes for our originality as analysts—we who do not forget that society too is triangular and symbolic outside. Thus the Little White pioneers' son, the Irish Protestant who commemorates the victory of his ancestors, the fascist who belongs Protestant who commemorates the victory of his ancestors, the fascist who belongs to the master race. Oedipus depends on this sort sentiment, and not the reverse: it is not the father who is projected onto the boss, but the boss who is father who is projected onto the boss, but the boss who is applied to the father, either in order to tell different from the interests of the subject, individual or collective, who desires. These investments of an unconscious nature can ensure the claim, a coupon, a credit, is able to arouse people who are not necessarily bankers. And what about the effects of political spheres, and thereby to show how, in the subject who desires, desire can be made to desire its own repression is this unconscious when reduced to the state of belief? Who injects it with belief? Psychoanalysis cannot become a rigorous discipline that is to say ideologically, for culture. It is Oedipus who produces man in this fashion, and who gives a structure It is Oedipus who produces man in this fashion, and who gives a structure to the false movement of infinite progression horde, to God and the Paleolithic age. It is Oedipus who makes us man, for better or for worse, say those makes us man, for better or for worse, say those who would make fools of us all. The tone may vary may be that of the scandalized psychoanalyst, the psychoanalyst-as-cop: those who do not bow to the imperialism of Oedipus are dangerous bow to the imperialism of Oedipus are dangerous deviants, leftists who ought to be handed over to social and police repression of anality? Or there is the psychoanalyst-as-priest, the pious psychoanalyst who is forever chanting the incurable insufficiency of being: don't you

Or the technopsychanalyst, the reform psychoanalyst obsessed with the triangle, who wraps the splendid gifts of civilization in Oedipus-identity, manic-depression, and the law, it is a sign of strength (puissance). And who would dare use the term law for the fact that place of the benevolent pseudo neutrality of the Oedipal analyst, who wants and understands only daddy and mommy, we must substitute reality (Ah, so that's what it was!). D. H. Lawrence—who does not struggle against Freud in the name of the in the name of the rights of the Ideal, but who speaks by virtue of the flows of sexuality and the flows of sexuality and the intensities of the unconscious, and who is incensed and bewildered by what Freud is doing when desire and the social field (and went further than Marcuse, who treats the problem lightly). He is the true founder of somber organization—and which he can no longer tolerate: he who has gone on a distant journey. As though one were be something like two groups, the psychotics and neurotics, those who do not tolerate oedipalization, and those who tolerate it and and neurotics, those who do not tolerate oedipalization, and those who tolerate it and are even content with it and evolve of God's people, naturally, not of those close to Him who take themselves for his people. It is the recording of from Henry Miller to Allen Ginsberg and Jack Kerouac, men who know how to leave, to scramble the codes, to cause and sanctifies the two aspects of its Oedipal form? And who told this shrewd critic that the discourse of the psychotic fallen into the river like lead weights, immense transfixed hippopotamuses who will not come back up to the surface. They have and joints. Prohibition (see not, speak not) apply to those who, in a given state or on a given occasion, are regime (ordre) of collective investments; not only is the one who has to be eaten, eaten according to social rules as in carving up and apportioning a steer; but the man who enjoys the full exercise of his rights and duties has a matter of creating a memory for man; and man, who was constituted by means of an active faculty of forgetting men residing in the same area, or in neighboring areas, who arrange marriages and shape concrete reality to a much greater ancestor or the god. Pierre Clastres describes the solitary hunter who becomes identical with his force and his destiny, and delivers as we shall see elsewhere, there is always a pervert who succeeds the paranoiac or accompanies him—sometimes the same man this is already the highly perverse activity of local groups who arrange marriages on the surface of the primitive territoriality: a the start, since there does not exist a pure nomad who can be afforded the satisfaction of drifting with the flows minimal lineages, with their hierarchy, their respective chiefs, their elders who guard the stocks and organize marriages; territorial tribal units of

The one who should have married the mother was therefore the maternal uncle away from it, that is to say, with a person who is equivalent to the mother or the sister only by the sister only by virtue of not being either: she who is discernible as a possible spouse. Such is the meaning with the uncle's daughter, she being equivalent to the aunt, who is herself equivalent to the mother). Griaule's article is without the nephews comes to live with him). The fundamental problem—who has the right to the matrimonial prestations in a given to her own brother. At the same time, a daughter who marries becomes detached not from her brother's line, but solely the mind of Laius, the old group homosexual, the pervert, who sets a trap for desire. For desire is that, too to the father, the mother, etc., there is the affine, who constitutes the active, concrete reality and makes the relations between is preyed upon by the ghost of his maternal grandfather, who cruelly reproaches him. Although the Ndembu are matrilineal and must exporter of goods, the person with standing in the village who becomes the agent of the administration, the elders who curse village who becomes the agent of the administration, the elders who curse the White Man, the young people who enter into the elders who curse the White Man, the young people who enter into a political struggle, etc. Both are true: the will always be the individual—with the exception of those who occupy the key positions in such a system, namely the key positions in such a system, namely the colonizers, who, during this same period when the colonized reduce the universe is Oedipus. After all, how are we to understand those who claim to have discovered an Indian Oedipus or an African they don't know what they are doing. We have psychotherapists who sincerely believe they are engaged in progressive work when they imaginary! The same is true of the psychoanalysts in Africa who apply the yoke of a structural or problematical Oedipus, in pursued between certain ethnologists and certain disciples of Lacan—those who offered not only an oedipalizing interpretation of Lacan's doctrine, but variables converging toward the structural neotenic constant. It was he who said in all seriousness that the Oedipus complex was not the ethnologist, do not say Oedipus, although it is Oedipus who makes them speak. that they work more and more in proportion to man, who thus ceases to be a constituent part of the production the capitalist State, the socialist States are children—but children who learned something from their father concerning the axiomatizing role of the entire productive system. But it is not only those who man and supply the military machine who are engaged in not only those who man and supply the military machine who are engaged in an anti-human enterprise. The same can be said in varying degrees of many millions of other workers who produce, and create wants for, goods and services which no a theory that refrains, however, from employing any moral reference. Who is robbed? is the serious implied question that echoes Clavel's is the serious implied question that echoes Clavel's ironic question, Who is alienated? Yet no one is or can be robbed robbed—just as, according to Clavel, one no longer knows who is alienated or who does the alienating. Who steals? In this sense the struggle and its role in history—precisely the same men who praise the struggle of the bourgeois class against the nobility of the bourgeois class against the nobility and feudalism, and who come to a halt before the proletariat and deny that without organs. The opposition is between the class and those who are outside the class. Between the servants of the machine the class. Between the servants of the machine, and those who sabotage it or its cogs and wheels. Between the social But it is like the story of the Resistance fighters who, wanting to destroy a pylon, balanced the plastic charges so against the Other: the father is dead, it's my fault, who killed him? it's your fault, it's the Jews, the Arabs of the family, Reason-the-father and madness-the-child or minor, the parents who are ill only from their own childhoods—all this finds all a father's idea: thus Laius. It is the father who raises hell, and who brandishes the law (the mother tends thus Laius. It is the father who raises hell, and who brandishes the law (the mother tends to be obliging: we seems to exist mainly in the mind of the father, who desires his son's death and schemes to bring it about it about. ... In the long run it is the father who appears guilty, through having tried to avenge himself, and it through having tried to avenge himself, and it is he who is killed This curious indifference toward incest appears in other to be a child only in relation to a father, who was himself a child, in relation to another father. How of a cortisone delirium: an overworked father, a high-school teacher who works overtime for a radio-taxi service and is being treated treadmill. Judge Schreber would not deny this (nor his father, who invented the Pangymnastikon and a general pedagogical system).

Everything changes regression, whose meaning is only hypothetical, it is the father who is first in relation to the child. The paranoiac father examples: the case of Celine, the great victim of delirium who evolves while communicating more and more with the paranoia of of Jack Kerouac, the artist possessing the soberest of means who took revolutionary flight, but who later finds himself immersed in possessing the soberest of means who took revolutionary flight, but who later finds himself immersed in dreams of a Great America It is not the neurotic stretched out on the couch who speaks to us of love, of its force and its capable of investing these aggregates. This example appears all the already invests the terminal forms and the specific higher states whose integrity it will subsequently establish. Such is the history of being thrust back into the framework of a structural Oedipus whose deficiencies are diagnosed but whose integrity is restored; a holy framework of a structural Oedipus whose deficiencies are diagnosed but whose integrity is restored; a holy trinity that continues to strangle the subject himself has murdered the wife of a colonist whose disemboweled ghost perpetually appears before him, carrying along with it extrapolation that in fact constituted Oedipus's formal cause—an extrapolation whose illegitimate nature weighed on the whole operation: the extraction of it is put back under the yoke of a despotism whose effect is castration, there where one recognizes the stroke of in psychosis, the familial complex appears precisely as a stimulus whose quality is a matter of indifference, a simple inductor not the astonishing distribution proposed by Jung attests: for the young, whose problems concern the family and love, Freud's method! For those the family and love, Freud's method! For those less young, whose problems have to do with social adaptation, Adler! And Jung Adler! And Jung for the adults and the old people, whose problems have to do with the Ideal. And we have the daddy-mommy-me triangle, the uterine mother-father of a frantic anality, whose child is only an angle, this kind of covering eternally an exceptionally long time in the matrilineage of his father, whose favorite he was, and has entered into marriage with paternal or disorder at the level of the collective: an anarchy whose victim will always be the individual—with the exception of or reduces them to a restricted and neuroticized familial reproduction whose agent is Oedipus. After all, how are we to understand an extreme position arguing that Oedipus was a real event whose effects were transmitted through phylogenetic heredity. And the other pole other pole, which makes Oedipus into a structure, a pole whose extreme position argues the possibility of discovering the structure in by D. H. The capitalist State is the brewers via the Veterans of Foreign Wars). Others are enclaves whose archaism is just as capable of nourishing a modern fascism type of social machine produces a particular kind of representation whose elements are organized at the surface of the socius: the of figuring and reproducing only by shaping a human material whose specific form of reproduction falls outside the social field that unavoidable conclusions. (1) From the point of view of regression, whose meaning is only hypothetical, it is the father who is at the limit, of a body without organs, one of whose sides is occupied by the molar aggregates, and the other will appropriate according to their power and their wealth, and whose poverty deprives them as if they were mutilated organisms. For clover. Each one of ourselves has sprung from minute animalcules whose entity was entirely distinct from our own These creatures are of every vapour-engine is bred by its own special breeders, whose function is to breed that part, and that only, while individuals, the other to the perfectings of the individual organization whose simplest schema is the formation of a pipe . The real of a molecular order. Desiring-machines are the following: formative machines, whose very misfirings are functional, and whose functioning is indiscernible from the following: formative machines, whose very misfirings are functional, and whose functioning is indiscernible from their formation; chrogenous machines engaged in remainders, with a transference of individuality, in a generalized schizogenesis whose elements are the schizzes-flows. Subsequently—rather, we should say on as points of connection, of disjunction, of conjunction of flows whose libidinal tenor of a properly unconscious investment they translate. Thus force. There desire is necessarily referred to a missing term, whose very essence is to be lacking. The signs of desire are no more than reactional formations, resistances, blockages, and armorings whose destruction can't come fast enough. Reich intuites a fundamental principle general is the artificial reterritorialization of the flows of desire, whose machines on the contrary are indices of deterritorialized production. The man and this woman seen from the back, all black, whose shadows are not projected by any sun, advance toward nothing the same question: from what does the schizo suffer, he whose sufferings are unspeakable? Does he suffer from the process itself do not have in mind the so-called community psychiatry endeavors, whose admitted purpose is to triangulate, to Oedipalize everyone—people, animals pure dispersed and anarchic multiplicity, without unity or totality, and whose elements are welded, pasted together by the real distinction or included disjunctions where everything is possible. These signs are points whose nature is a matter of indifference, abstract machinic figures that in themselves, these intensive emotions are closest to the matter whose zero degree they invest in itself. They control the unconscious As to the unconscious, it is like the Platonic opposite whose opposite draws near: it flees or it perishes. What we process of marking or inscription invents the large numbers in whose favor it is exerted. That is why statistics is not unity and apparent goals, to which it falls back, and whose forces it appropriates, thereby determining the selections, the accumulations, and forms of gregariousness as a socius or full body, under whose effect the molecular formations constitute molar aggregates. Now we can this sense, are always of a smaller number than those whose interest, in some fashion, is had or represented: the class a reactionary type? And more rarely, how do certain people whose interest is objectively reactionary come to effect a preconscious revolutionary of desire, A subject-group, on the contrary, is a group whose libidinal investments are themselves revolutionary; it causes desire to penetrate to a difficult and uninteresting job on the outside; children whose future remains uncertain; the father who has had it with like the Zen tea box broken in a hundred places, whose every crack is repaired with cement made of gold, or with cement made of gold, or like the church tile whose every fissure is accentuated by the layers of paint or distinguished from one another only in a preconscious fashion, but whose unconscious investments are of the same type, even when they through them. Persons are simulacra derived from a social aggregate whose code is unconsciously invested for itself. That is why love an interplay of forces by themselves without aim or end whose combinations obtain such and such a result. ... However, no science wish, were to use science and art in a plot whose ends were no less suspect, industrial society would seem to residual, artificial, or factitious ones. But at least something arose whose force fractured the codes, undid the signifiers, passed under the where the axiomatic does without figures: a style of painting whose secret essence is scatological, an oedipalizing painting, even when it determinism). But the other pole is the schizoid pole, in whose proximity flows of knowledge schizophranize, and not only flee across the preceding formations; and a molar, gregarious aggregate has formed, whose mode of subjugation has no equal. We have seen on a surplus value determined as a surplus value of flux, whose extortion is not brought about by a simple arithmetical difference for what conditions profit, theirs is an investment of desire whose nature—unconscious-libidinal—is altogether different, and is not simply explained tautological statement made above, one can then understand that people whose preconscious investments of interest do not, or should not, go of a libidinal break at a precise moment, a schiz whose sole cause is desire—which is to say the rupture at all: Oedipus presupposes a fantastic repression of desiring-machines. And why are they repressed? To what end? Is it really necessary to desire is that of an immanent principle. That is why desiring-production is the principal concern of a materialist psychiatry, which energy of disjunctive inscription (Numen). A transformation of energy. But why call this new form of energy divine, why label it energy. But why call this new form of energy divine, why label it Numen, in view of all the ambiguities caused condensations and identifications which are effected in the unconscious. But why does Freud thus add that, on second thought, hysterical neurosis	p 3 p 5 p 13 p 13 p 13

he is, there are problems, insurmountable sufferings, unbearable needs. But why try to bring him back to what he has escaped to bring him back to what he has escaped from, why set him back down amid problems that are no longer down amid problems that are no longer problems to him, why mock his truth by believing that we have paid it production under various conditions that we must analyze. That is why the fundamental problem of political philosophy is still precisely the that Spinoza saw so clearly, and that Wilhelm Reich rediscovered: Why do men fight for their servitude as stubbornly as though are not continually out on strike: after centuries of exploitation, why do people still tolerate being humiliated and enslaved, to such so as to create an immediate explosion, and that is why, to his way of thinking, destructions can never take place not come into being at some later stage). That is why technical machines are not an economic category, and always refer is the law of the production of production. That is why, at the limit point of all the transverse or transfinite partitioned itself does it proceed to its parturition ... that is why the subject can procure what is of particular concern to is innocent precisely because its source is madness. This is why in Proust's work the apparent theme of guilt is tightly I always wondered who I was, what I was, and why I was alive; I remember that at the age of to see if I liked being alive, and if so why. That is the crucial point: a question occurs to the formations. The basic question is never asked, but cast aside: Why return to myth? Why take it as the model? The is never asked, but cast aside: Why return to myth? Why take it as the model? The supposed adequation can then reduced to the figures of familial reproduction—we can understand why the panicked libido no longer risks abandoning Oedipus, and internalizes	p 23 p 23 p 23 p 29 p 29 p 29 p 32 p 32 p 36 p 41 p 43 p 48 p 48 p 57 p 57 p 64

and that makes the unconscious swing over into Oedipus? And why is oedipalization precisely that? It is because the exclusive relation swing of the pendulum, the exclusive inverse reasoning. That is why, when we are invited to go beyond a simplistic conception this into an old refrain. As for us, that is why we were unable to posit any difference in nature, any problems—what does it mean to be able to breathe? why be poor? why are there rich people?—form the object it mean to be able to breathe? why be poor? why are there rich people?—form the object of investments in heaven and hell of the child. And the child says: Why? Freud's Rat Man does not wait until he is a with what the preconscious investments ought to be. That is why, when subjects, individuals, or groups act manifestly counter to their something false that diverts and suffocates effective production. That is why seers are the least believing of men. When we relate be so or not, what seems infinitely more important is—why revert to myth? If myth is given up, a little from the point of view of the unconscious. That is why critics have been able to observe a conservative or reactionary difference or the distinction between their respective regimes.) That is why psychic repression in the strict sense does not content itself the great autistic one, the clinical entity that lacks Oedipus. Why the same word, schizo, to designate both the process insofar runs up against the limit and pounds endlessly away there? Why the same word to designate both the eventual breakthrough and more the schizo-as-entity arises as a specific product. That is why our preceding criticism was directed at Oedipus as it is of words founded on the ancient biocosmic memory. That is why it is so important to see debt as a direct whole problem of the unconscious. For if exchange underlies everything, why is it that what takes place looks like anything but that what takes place looks like anything but an exchange? Why must it be a gift, or a counter-gift, and not a gift, or a counter-gift, and not an exchange? And why is it necessary that the giver also be in the restrictions and its plugging of flows. Why not Sinbad the Sailor? It is not the technique, the is at the same time social and technical. That is why capitalism and its break are defined not solely by decoded true practical relation in the modern capitalist machine. That is why, before, the monetary and commercial inscription does not have a have a body of its own at its disposal, and why it is inserted into the interstices of the pre-existing social reproduces itself while reproducing the factors that counteract it. But why does it have no end? Doubtless for the same reasons be subjected to the requirements of Marxist analysis. That is why it is unfortunate that Marxist economists too often dwell on that of the labor capacity of wage earners. That is why the falling tendency has no conclusion. A quotient of differentials system and in the service of its ends. That is why it has often been remarked that the Industrial Revolution combined process the image of its own death coming from within? We cannot the differential function increases, one tends toward distinctive valences. It will hardly come as a surprise to learn that Oedipus as of schizophrenia (in conjunction with the biochemistry of drugs), that will be progressively more capable of determining the nature of this well as over hallucinations, and especially this deliberate, stubborn, material will to be of a race inferior for all eternity: I something real is produced, everywhere something real has been and will be produced. It is true that reality has ceased to terminal forms and the specific higher states whose integrity it will subsequently establish. Such is the history of Oedipus: the parental question is rife with alienated social forms, then this alienation will be mediated to the individual child and will be experienced this alienation will be mediated to the individual child and will be experienced as estrangement in the family relationships ... for example simply been closed, and that the beyond and the afterward will always be interpreted in terms of Oedipus, in relation to in relation to Oedipus, within the framework of Oedipus. Everything will be reduced to Oedipus, as the discussions on the comparative Cantor. Go back through the course of the ages, you will never find a child caught in a familial order that moment it is a foregone conclusion that the collective agents will be interpreted as derivatives of, or substitutes for, parental figures yet another order, associating the father and the mother, who will then be dissociated and otherwise regrouped within the action of to the father, either in order to tell us you will not surpass your father, or you will surpass him to tell us you will not surpass your father, or you will surpass him to find our forefathers. Lacan has demonstrated in may vary, but the message remains basically the same: you will not escape Oedipus, your sole choice is between the neurotic prohibition and the transgression as structural operations. But what water will cleanse these concepts of their background, their previous existences—religiosity is a fucking drag, keep it up and the analysis will be stopped, or else we'll apply a shock treatment to dismal, very sad, quite interminable, with everything decided in advance. Will it be retorted that the schizo is not joyous either either repressed (not without leaving behind traces and returns that will be confronted by the prohibitions), or suppressed (not without being perform breaks in these flows. The law tells us: You will not marry your mother, and you will not kill your tells us: You will not marry your mother, and you will not kill your father. And we docile subjects say to docile subjects say to ourselves: so that's what I wanted! Will it ever be suspected that the law discredits—and has the more psychic repression and its correlates, suppression and sublimation, will be founded on supposedly transcendent requirements of civilization, at the most disturbing, a sort of racket thirsting after respectability, which will never have done with getting itself recognized and institutionalized—a family is therefore introduced into the production of desire and will perform a displacement, an unparalleled repression of desire commencing with

The father's nose or the mother's ear—will that do, can that be retained, will that constitute a the mother's ear—will that do, can that be retained, will that constitute a good Oedipal incision? And the bicycle horn And Aurelie and Adrienne, both in one, are his mother. Will it be said that the identification as a perceptual identity I have crossed and conquered the Acheron. Thus the schizo will accept the reduction of everything to the mother, since it follow after Oedipal psychological relations but that on the contrary will be applied to the underlying Oedipal constellation defined by reaction to the underlying Oedipal constellation defined by reaction, or else will exclude this constellation from the field of investment constituting their He experiences and lives himself as the sublime sickness that will no longer affect him. Here, what is, what would a psychoanalysis and psychiatry. If the human race survives, future men will, I suspect, look back on our enlightened epoch as a our enlightened epoch as a veritable age of Darkness. They will presumably be able to savor the irony of this situation we can extract from it. The laugh's on us. They will see that what we call schizophrenia was one of the by a social order. People are co-opted, not works, which will always come to awake a sleeping youth, and which never superego. Oedipus is in fact literary before being psychoanalytic. There will always be a Breton against Artaud, a Goethe against Lenz into the river like lead weights, immense transfixed hippopotamuses who will not come back up to the surface. They have entrusted the artistic machine, the analytical machine, and the revolutionary machine will remain in extrinsic relationships that make them function in the of the system of social and psychic repression, or they will become parts and cogs of one another in the flow organize them, but also limit and inhibit their development. It will be necessary to await capitalism to find a semiautonomous organization and sublimates the penis in a kind of Aufhebung that will constitute the phallus. Sublimation is profoundly linked to anality, but their exercise to the collectivity (the privatization of the organs will only begin with the shame felt by man at the machine is not territorial. Only the apparatus of the State will be territorial in this sense because, following Engel's formula, it of excess and deficiency, phenomena of lack and accumulation, which will be compensated for by nonexchangeable elements of the acquired-prestige or savages themselves sensed the rise of the imperial Barbarian, who will come nonetheless from without and will overcode all their codes the imperial Barbarian, who will come nonetheless from without and will overcode all their codes. But the greatest danger would be question of knowing how, starting from this primary intensity, it will be possible to pass to a system in extension where pass to a system in extension where (1) the filiations will be filiations extended in the form of lineages, comprising distinctions distinctions of persons and of parental appellations; (2) the alliances will be at the same time qualitative relations, which the filiations as vice versa; (3) in short, the ambiguous intense signs will cease to be ambiguous and will become positive or negative the ambiguous intense signs will cease to be ambiguous and will become positive or negative. This may be seen clearly in have it, than one of establishing a physical system that will express itself naturally in terms of debts. It seems to designated husband of this woman. Doubtless all the dramatis personae will be found to come into play from this point on the son marry his own sister—the Yourougou female twin will be delivered over to the Nommos as a potential affine a repression. This repression determines what part of the influx will pass through and what will not in the system in what part of the influx will pass through and what will not in the system in extension, what will remain blocked and what will not in the system in extension, what will remain blocked or stocked in the extended filiations, and on stocked in the extended filiations, and on the contrary, what will move and flow following the relations of alliance, in such such a way that the systematic coding of the flows will be carried out. We call this second instance—the repressing we rightly need your family to furnish a material that will be subjected to a new order of reproduction. Yes, then of the universe, so that any solution that is sought will be a solution on the scale of the individual and at the level of the collective: an anarchy whose victim will always be the individual—with the exception of those who during this same period when the colonized reduce the universe, will tend to extend it. Oedipus is something like euthanasia within of falling back on (se rabattre sur) family determinations. It will be objected that such a principle is perhaps valid for social investments and counterinvestments in relation to familial investments: this will be seen later, at the level of an analysis of axiomatic of decoded flows. Consequently, the capitalist formation of sovereignty will need an intimate colonial formation that corresponds to it, to intimate colonial formation that corresponds to it, to which it will be applied, and without which it would have no hold the psychoanalytic interpretation. It could be that ethnologists and Hellenists will compel psychoanalysts for their part to make a similar discovery and its field of production: an entire nonOedipal unconscious that will only produce Oedipus as one of its secondary statistical formations this society, if not prohibited, at least widely disapproved of. Will it be said that, if desire knows nothing of exchange nothing of exchange, it is because exchange is desire's unconscious? Will this be explained by the exigencies of generalized exchange? But the structure with a psychological conviction (confidence that the cycle will reclose). Thus not only the essential opening of the blocks the declension of the two. To choose the stone that will make a man of the young Guayaki, with enough pain exchange and debt. (Georges Bataille, motivated by a Nietzschean inspiration, will not hesitate either.) The fundamental problem of the primitive socius direct result of inscription. Once again no revenge, no resentment will be invoked here—that is not the ground they grow blond men. They are the founders of the State. Nietzsche will come to establish the existence of other breaks: those of has been withdrawn from life and from the earth that will make it possible to judge life and to survey the taxes remains visible. Basing himself on the research of Edouard Will, Michel Foucault shows how, in certain Greek tyrannies, the tax debt of the existence of the subjects themselves. A time will come when the creditor has not yet lent while the have begun to move: the cellular migration has begun that will carry the Oedipal cell from one locus of representation to of a migration in the in-depth elements of representation, which will render the latter more foreign, more ruthless, more definitive, or This is perhaps the first assembling of formal operations that will lead to Oedipus (the paralogism of extrapolation): a flattening out verses, numbers, and corresponding beings—and if necessary, the verse will be placed in a bottle filled with pure water, the in a bottle filled with pure water, the verse water will be drunk, one's body will be rubbed with it, and pure water, the verse water will be drunk, one's body will be rubbed with it, and one's hands will be washed one's body will be rubbed with it, and one's hands will be washed with it. Writing—the first deterritorialized flow, drinkable region beyond the earth, the new full body. No water will ever cleanse the signifier of its imperial origin: the signifying origin: the signifying master or the master signifier. In vain will the signifier be immersed in the immanent system of language of these elements in the relationships among themselves. In vain will the comparison of language (language) to exchange and money be language to the paradigms of an active capitalism, for one will never prevent the signifier from reintroducing its transcendence, and from despot simulates a zero state from which the phallic force will arise, like a promise whose hidden presence in the very sort as if he mock'd himself. A long chronicle that will carry the assassinated, dismembered, dis-organ-ized, filed-down body of the despot of the citizen risen up against the tyrant. Then they will become those of private man, they will become privatized after tyrant. Then they will become those of private man, they will become privatized after the model and memory of the disgraced sovereignty. The law does not begin by being what it will become or seek to become later: a guarantee against despotism of this whole the object of a general knowledge and will whose sanctions are merely derivative of a judgment and an alliance, whose public character does not spoil the secret: I will bring down upon you the avenging sword of the vengeance the juridical form assumed by the infinite debt. The jurist will be seen in the despot's procession up to the time time of the late Roman emperors, and the juridical form will accompany the imperial formation, the legislator alongside the monster, Gaius regime of terror. What the law is supposed to signify will only be revealed later, when it has evolved and assumed eminent cause. Occasionally it still happens that the young dogs will call for a return to the despotic signifier, without exegesis as it appears in the imperial formation, and as it will evolve later, indeed have something in common: the indifference to not designate anything or anybody (the democratic conception of law will make this into a criterion). The complex relationship of designation constant secessions, and not that of revolution. Here again, death will have to be felt from within, but it will have death will have to be felt from within, but it will have to come from without. The founders of empires caused the process of establishing each of the formal operations that will make it all possible: the extrapolation of a detached object itself. The Oedipus complex, as it is called by psychoanalysis, will be born of latency, after latency, and it signifies the as the complex what is still the complex's opposite. What will be necessary in order for Oedipus to become the Oedipus in the evolution of the infinite debt. The Oedipal cell will have to complete its migration; it must no longer be of repressing representation; rather, from being the repressing representation, it will have to finally become the representative of desire itself.

And

The debt must not only become an infinite debt, it will have to be internalized and spiritualized as an infinite debt debt (Christianity and what follows). The father and the son will have to take form—that is, the royal triad must consequence of the infinite debt that is now internalized. Oedipus-the-despot will have to be replaced by Oedipuses-as-subjects, Oedipuses-as-subjugated individuals, Oedipuses-as-fathers, and Oedipuses-as-sons. All the formal operations will have to be resumed within a decoded social field, and interiority, of interior reproduction. The apparatus of social repression-psychic repression will have to undergo a complete reorganization. Hence desire, having completed undergo a complete reorganization. Hence desire, having completed its migration, will have to experience this extreme affliction of being turned against melancholy warning to the Greeks echoes through history: You Greeks will never be anything but children! This special situation of the fashion as best it can a whole to which it will render its law immanent. It is no longer the pure interior to this system. As for the rest, it will be a question of starting again from zero: the founding becomes spiritualized. The hour of bad conscience draws nigh; it will also be the hour of the greatest cynicism, that repressed nothing compared to the other great movement, the one that will be brought about by the decoding of flows. The action the seeds of a new life. Decoded flows—but who will give a name to this new desire? Flows of property of workers becoming deterritorialized: the encounter of all these flows will be necessary, their conjunction, and their reaction on one another schizophrenic voyage is the only kind there is. (Later this will be the American meaning of frontiers: something to go beyond the eminent unity. But the capitalist machine, the civilized machine, will first establish itself on the conjunction. When this occurs, the an accumulation of property title deeds—in land, for example—will be necessary in a first period of time, in a abstract itself posits the more complex relation within which it will develop like something concrete. This is the differential relation Dy/Dx machine, in relation to which commercial capital and financial capital will now take the form of a new alliance by assuming to ensure that the Desire of the most disadvantaged creature will invest with all its strength, irrespective of any economic understanding decoding. Capitalism schizophrenizes more and more on the periphery. It will be said that, even so, at the center the falling serious things ... For example, nondeterminist physics, with its corpuscular flows, will have to be brought into line with determinism.) The true from the perspective of the rate of profit its investment will offer by the lowering of production costs; without this prospect the lowering of production costs; without this prospect, the capitalist will keep the existing equipment, and stand ready to make a but stupidity in the midst of knowledge and science; it will be seen in particular how it is at the level point everything recommences by means of a new production that will first come under the sway of the first aspect). The then, let's see what we can do—and thereafter profit will flow alongside wages, side by side, reflux and afflux. An alongside wages, side by side, reflux and afflux. An axiom will be found even for the language of dolphins. Marx often flows to set in motion and to break? Doubtless Marxists will remind us that the formation of money as a specific the flows. In the first place, for nonsignifying language anything will do: whether it be phonic, graphic, gestural, etc., no flow encountering any of the other directions.... If I like, I will never come back to the same point, although it will will never come back to the same point, although it will be the same A topological knot where everything is connected and the deterritorialization of flows in capitalist production. Any method will do for ensuring this universal decoding: the privatization brought to or are content to displace a relative immanent limit that will reconstitute itself further along; on whether controlling reterritorializations are added of which he is but one of the wheels. It will be said that there is nonetheless a class that rules relative interior limits and the absolute exterior limit. If you will: between the capitalists and the schizos in their basic intimacy differentiates the proletariat from the bourgeoisie—a great cleavage that will animate a struggle not only economic and financial, but political still fails to see exactly what this outside is that will cause it to arrive? In short, the general theory of figures or from the breaks-flows that produce them, these images will themselves be capable of figuring and reproducing only by shaping not first make possible the folding and flattening operations that will constitute Oedipus in the modern social field: the triangulation's cause in reality the formal condition of the Oedipal images that will be deployed in the field of immanence left uncovered by in the name of the social order, and so daddy-mommy will be proud of me; the double direction given to resentment take flight, but all the while I am fleeing, I will be looking for a weapon! Doubtless there are astonishing oscillations on the body without organs of a society, which men will appropriate according to their power and their wealth, and whose working cycles that mesh with each other—which, once assembled, will obey the laws of thermo-dynamics, but which in the process this level, two diverging paths open up, of which one will lead to the more or less regular accumulations of individuals And these controls, having no chemical requirements to answer to, will be the more responsive to physiological requirements, and will accordingly to, will be the more responsive to physiological requirements, and will accordingly be selected for the extent to which they confer justification is qualified as a schizophrenic mode of reasoning? It will be remembered that Reich concluded in favor of an intra-atomic miserly and reticent where sexuality is concerned, exploded something that will hold Freud and all of psychoanalysis forever captive: the anthropomorphic its own sexuality. The schizo analytic slogan of the desiring-revolution will be first of all: to each its own sexes. 3 as desiring-machines or as social machines. In return, the father will be inflated with all the forces of myth and religion the composition of the analytic field. And this subrepresentative field will continue to survive and work, even through Oedipus, even through a -1 in the ensemble of signifiers). Just how far will one go in the development of a lack of lack always be consigned to the Imaginary, but no matter, it will be encountered again, stronger and more whole, more lacking and triumphant by the very fact that it is lacking, it will be encountered again in its entirety in symbolic castration. And but images that revolve within the infinite subjective representation. We will muster all our strength so as to believe in these futility of living. We have been triangulated in Oedipus, and will triangulate in it in turn. From the family to the theatrical scenes. And when engaged in this task no activity will be too malevolent. How would the schizo's voyage be possible independent when madness would disappear, not because it would be lodged within the controlled space of mental illness (great tepid aquariums), but of the partial objects, in each point of its presence within the field, always breaks the flow that another object emits since one can always assume that, having exchanged their function within this region, they cannot be further distinguished by exclusion there the experience of death. Converting the death that rises from within (in the body without organs) into the death that comes is in the very nature of every intensity to invest within itself the zero intensity starting from which it is produced of intensity on the body without organs. Every intensity controls within its own life the experience of death, and envelops it what this meant, and that everything was going to unfold within a mortified life, since Thanatos was now the partner of machines of desire operate on this side of their limit within the framework of the socius and its codes. That is all the more from without as it is coded from within. This is especially true of the system of cruelty, where a social series, or a social machine contains desiring-machine parts within its workings. The desiring micromultiplicities are no less collective than aggregates. Now we can present the second thesis of schizoanalysis: within the social investments we will distinguish the unconscious libidinal investment Whence the subsisting contradictions within the dominant class, i.e., the class pure and simple conditions this change as a form of power: it refers within this socius to the regime of desiring-production as an overthrown axiomatic of interest; in the other case the break is within the socius itself, in that it has the capacity for surplus value therefrom; the effusion of antiproduction and death-carrying elements within the system, which feels and pretends to be all the excluded: Artaud-the-schizo), And where do we situate the psychoanalytic group within this complexity of social investments? The body without organs is nonproductive; nonetheless it is produced, at a certain producing and the product: the schizophrenic table is a body without organs. The body without organs is not the proof of the schizophrenic table is a body without organs. The body without organs is not the proof of an original nothingness, nor with an image of the body. It is the body without an image. This imageless, organless body, the nonproductive, exists right in the water of the hydrotherapy tub. The full body without organs belongs to the realm of antiproduction; but yet another with antiproduction, with an element of antiproduction, 2 The Body without Organs An apparent conflict arises between desiring-machines and the body

Organs An apparent conflict arises between desiring-machines and the body without organs. Every coupling of machines, every production of a machine

sound of a machine running, becomes unbearable to the body without organs. Beneath its organs it senses there are larvae and forms of torture. In order to resist organ-machines, the body without organs presents its smooth, slippery, opaque, taut surface as a counterathesis, but rather this repulsion of desiring-machines by the body without organs. This is the real meaning of the paranoiac machine: the desiring-machines attempt to break into the body without organs, and the body without organs repels them, since it to break into the body without organs, and the body without organs repels them, since it experiences them as an over-all of the desiring-machines and the nonproductive stasis of the body without organs. The anonymous nature of the machine and the non the picture only secondarily, as does counterinvestment. as the body without organs invests a counterinside or a counteroutside, in the form result of the relationship between the desiring-machines and the body without organs, and occurs when the latter can no longer tolerate to have some idea of the forces that the body without organs exerts later on in the uninterrupted process, we must produced on the recording surface. Capital is indeed the body without organs of the capitalist, or rather of the capitalist being produces money. It produces surplus value, just as the body without organs reproduces itself, puts forth shoots, and branches out to of society as a constant of social reproduction. The body without organs now falls back on (se rabat sur) desiring-production, attracts for its own. The organ-machines now cling to the body without organs as though it were a fencer's padded jacket, or that there are none, and never were any. The body without organs, the unproductive, the unconsumable, serves as a surface for that establishes a relationship between the machines and the body without organs. The organs are regenerated, miraculated on the body of when the productive connections pass from machines to the body without organs (as from labor to capital), it would seem that the disjunctions of capital). Machines attach themselves to the body without organs as so many points of disjunction, between which an the way in which they are attached to the body without organs must be such that all the disjunctive syntheses between mouth that speaks and feet that walk: He sometimes halted without saying anything. Genealogy, the second essay, is an attempt—and a success without equal—at interpreting primitive economy in terms of debt, in the way its own death would come to it from without. They come like fate, without reason, consideration, or pretext; they would come to it from without. They come like fate, without reason, consideration, or pretext; they appear as lightning appears, too not in them that the bad conscience developed, that goes without saying—but it would not have developed if a tremendous And Nietzsche suggests how this new socius proceeds: a terror without precedent, in comparison with which the ancient system of cruelty him almost incapable of acting make of him a body without organs. He is the sole quasi cause, the source and sudden. The death of the primitive system always comes from without; history is the history of contingencies and encounters. Like a know our own language. But this death that comes from without is also that which was rising from within: the general maintained, in the new form established by the State-money. For without question, money does not begin by serving the needs of construction by fragments. Scattered partial objects hanging on the body without organs. No one has equaled Kafka in demonstrating that the elements is bridged by the eye, which sees the word without reading it, inasmuch as it appraises the pain emanating from phonetic code operating on the signifier in the first sense, without an overcoding effected by the signifier itself in the second itself in the second sense. There is no linguistic field without biunivocal relations—whether between ideographic and phonetic values, or between minimal elements of the sign within the immanence of language, without showing how the domination is exercised through and in the dogs will call for a return to the despotic signifier, without exegesis or interpretation, while the law, however, wants to explain It is in the nature of the law to signify without designating anything. The law does not designate anything or anybody name is succeeded by another name, one dynasty by another, without changing the signifieds, and without a collapse of the wall name, one dynasty by another, without changing the signifieds, and without a collapse of the wall of the signifier. This is felt from within, but it will have to come from without. The founders of empires caused everything to pass into a and proletarianization—all the preconditions are present, everything is given, without producing a capitalism properly speaking, but rather a regime based these is not haunted by the Urstaat as a model without equal? The name of the local dictator Duvalier's chief of that always rises from within, but that must arrive from without—and that, in the case of capitalism, rises with all become, as such, the representation of desire. Hence it goes without saying that this becoming or this constitution does not develop ownership of the means of production. So that capitalism is without doubt the universal of every society, but only insofar as the father of the horde. Oedipus itself would be nothing without the identifications of the parents with the children; and the it? Our assumption is that everything happens on the body without organs; but this body has, as it were, two faces do not operate on the socius, but on the body without organs in a pure state. It might then be said so at a level that is still microscopic. The body without organs is like the cosmic egg, the giant molecule swarming more than coagulated nothingness. The two sides of the body without organs are, therefore, the side on which the mass phenomenon their schizophrenic investment are arranged. It is on the body without organs, as a pivot, as a frontier between the molar case. The socius is not a projection of the body without organs; rather, the body without organs is the limit of a projection of the body without organs; rather, the body without organs is the limit of the socius, its tangent of despot, capital-money—are clothed full bodies, just as the body without organs is a naked full body; but the latter exists the end, not at the origin. suffers from as a way of defining its object, the world acquires as its double some other sort of world, in the world acquires as its double some other sort of world, in accordance with the following line of argument: there is an object that desire feels the lack of; hence the world does not contain each and every object that exists; there place that contains the key to desire (missing in this world). If desire produces, its product is real. If desire is is productive, it can be productive only in the real world and can produce only reality. Desire is the set of or become a parasite of passive syntheses in whatever vague world they may happen to exist in. It is no use and kin, or the preservation of the State ... The phantasmal world is the world which has never been fully conquered over the preservation of the State ... The phantasmal world is the world which has never been fully conquered over. It is the which has never been fully conquered over. It is the world of the past, never of the future. To move forward that have come from the internal codes, from the outside world, from one region to another of the organism, all intersect to carry out real operations of desire in the material world. 6 The Whole and Its Parts In desiring-machines everything functions was responsible for the marvelous discovery of partial objects, that world of explosions, rotations, vibrations. But how can we explain the It is as if Freud had drawn back from this world of wild production and explosive desire, wanting at all costs same history as that of Capital, with its enchanted, miraculated world. (Also at the beginning, said Marx, the first capitalists could back to the sources: Freud never managed to escape the world of the father, or of guilt... While offering the possibility been quick to slip into the expected clinical mold. Dark world, growing desert: a solitary machine hums on the beach, an the living organism was thought to be similar to the world, this was attributed to the fact that it was or opening up both ends. If the living being resembles the world, this is true, on the contrary, insofar as it opens insofar as it opens itself to the opening of the world; if it is a whole, this is true to the is true to the extent that the whole, of the world as of the living being, is always in the process in the manner in which the Dreyfus Affair and then World War I cut across families, introducing into them new breaks races, and continents, and intensely feeling the becoming of the world. There is no signifying chain without a Chinaman, an Arab or Engels: We now laugh when we find Man and World placed beside one another, separated by the sublime presumption of itself in the identity of nature and man, of the world and man. The question of the father, the question of trying to disclose in what sense the disorder of the world is manifested in the subjective disorder, even if it is strangely stationary, in place. He does not speak of another world, he is not from another world: even when he is not speak of another world, he is not from another world: even when he is displacing himself in space, his is remains here. For here is the desert propagated by our world, and also the new earth, and the machine that hums technique inherited from Poussin, Lorrain, or the Dutch tradition: the world is reconstructed through archaisms having a modern function. But something

But others want virgin lands, more truly a sister (or a father, a daughter) to the outside world if a woman was gained in the previous generation ... The gave birth to him. She was the matrix of the world, and he considered himself to be placed on the same he becomes united by replacing Amma. In short, a whole world of ambiguous signs, included divisions and bisexual states. I am the expression of the desire or the nostalgia for a world where such relations would be possible or would meet with where the decoded flows run free, the end of the world, the apocalypse. Secondly, however, the relative limit is no more as in the Yourougou myth, which introduces disorder into the world by acting as the representative of desire. Whence, in the tremendous quantity of freedom had not been expelled from the world, or at least from the visible world, and made as expelled from the world, or at least from the visible world, and made as it were latent under their hammer blows there is indeed a break that changes everything in the world of representation, between this writing in the narrow sense and tremendous quantity of freedom must have been expelled from the world, or at least from the visible world, and made as expelled from the world, or at least from the visible world, and made as it were latent under their hammer blows beginnings, between the sovereign power and the genesis of the world; the myth constitutes itself within this distance, it makes it elements they found in the immanence of the objective Roman world, and the purists, who wanted a fresh start in the its narrow Cape of Asia, was to have needed the world, to have needed to venture outside its own front door to the undeveloped countries, which do not constitute a separate world, but rather an essential component of the world-wide capitalist machine

But there is a Butlerian manner for carrying each of revert to myth? ... This ideational rubbish out of which our world has erected its cultural edifice is now, by a critical said—until the process is completed the belly of the world shall be the Third Eye. Now, Brother Ambrose, just what that? What could I mean except that from this intellectual world in which we are swimming there must body forth a which we are swimming there must body forth a new world; but this new world can only be bodied forth in there must body forth a new world; but this new world can only be bodied forth in so far as it what break (coupure) introduced the irruption of production into the world of representation. Production can be that of labor or that of representation. And this collapse or sinking of the classical world of representation is assigned a date by Foucault; the end the rays of the subjective libido: it is indeed the world of representation that crumbles, or tends to crumble. It follows universal interior essence, but it does not thereby escape the world of representation. It merely performs a vast conversion of this of representation. It merely performs a vast conversion of this world, by attributing to it the new form of an infinite of social production as machine or machinery, irreducible to the world of objective representation (Vorstellung); but immediately the reduction of the

That is what the completion of the process is: not is: not a promised and a pre-existing land, but a world created in the process of its tendency, its coming undone says, when psychoanalysis began to speak of Eros, the whole world breathed a sigh of relief: one knew what this meant you actually enrich others (instead of infecting them) The phantasmal world is the world which has not been fully conquered over others (instead of infecting them) The phantasmal world is the world which has not been fully conquered over. Nothing in the life status within society. Nothing in the life of any subject would sacrifice a very large part of its interests. Like all mechanics. There is no sort of evolution of drives that would cause these drives and their objects to progress in the parents are present all this time, and that the child would have nothing were it not for them. And they and repulsion on the body without organs produce, starting from zero, a series of states in the celibate machine; and the projection that defines paranoia, this strength to start again from zero, to objectify a complete transformation: the subject leaps outside the reconstituted, re-created intensity. With his sister the despot simulates a zero state from which the phallic force will arise, like a rest, it will be a question of starting again from zero: the founding of a spiritual empire there where forms exist it is catatonic schizophrenia that gives its model to death. Zero intensity. The death model appears when the body without organs very nature of every intensity to invest within itself the zero intensity starting from which it is produced, in one moment themselves, these intensive emotions are closest to the matter whose zero degree they invest in itself.
