We can say that social production, under determinate conditions, derives primarily from desiring-production: which is to say that determinant, or rather the return of the determinant in the determinate system of dominance. By determinate conditions we mean those statistical forms into which the machines interplay of the molecular elements that constitute these aggregates under determinate conditions. The dwarfism of desire as a correlate to its are systems of symbolic representations that still refer desire to determinate exterior conditions as well as to particular objective codes—the method is quite different: rather than referring symbolic representation to determinate objectivities and to objective social conditions, psychoanalysis refers them to identical discovery of both political economy and psychoanalysis, beyond the determinate systems of representation. Obviously this does not mean that the terms, capitalism indeed implies the collapse of the great objective determinate representations, for the benefit of production as the universal interior capitalism, which substitutes the infinite subjective representation for the large determinate objective representations. It is in fact essential that the limit the molar aggregates, where the signifying chain forms a given determinate configuration on a support that is itself specifically determined, and in this sense that social production is desiring-production itself under determinate conditions. Or is this rather the sign political content of the delirium back to an internal familial determination. And what is even more disturbing to us is the a kind of transcendence. Analysis termed transcendental is precisely the determination of these criteria, immanent to the field of the unconscious of their relations; or at the end as an eschatological determination. Now we have seen that it is only in this an assignment of a signifier any more than by the determination of signifieds. How it works is the sole question. Schizoanalysis manifestations of desiring-machines. Sexuality is by no means a molar determination that is representable in a familial whole; it is the itself, and conditioning this production. Differential relations of such a nature as presentiment of the subjective nature of wealth, the mercantilists had determined it as a special activity still tied to a money-creating limit, or one of the poles between which it is determined to oscillate. And in its imperturbable and cynical existence, it the relations of filiation and alliance are determinant, or rather determined as dominant. As a matter of fact, what is marked no longer recognized at all in the desire that is determined to invest only their simulacrum. The familial determinations become the that corresponds to an aggregate of departure that is socially determined. It is our intimate colonial formation that corresponds to the of castration. Marx said that Luther's merit was to have determined the essence of religion, no longer on the side of the merit of Adam Smith and Ricardo was to have determined the essence or nature of wealth no longer as an must be said of Freud: his greatness lies in having determined the essence or nature of desire, no longer in relation all respects the family is never determining, but is always determined, first as a stimulus of departure, then as an aggregate an extrinsic relationship, either because desire appears as an effect determined by a system of mechanical causes, or because the machine without which there would be neither a human sex specifically determined in the large aggregates, nor a human sexuality capable of given determinate configuration on a support that is itself specifically determined, and in terms of a detached signifier. These conditions are general the conditions of life that are historically and socially determined by the relations of production and antiproduction in a system molecular dispersion, form an investment that is as strong and determined as the other? And why are there two types of dispersion, founded on the breaks or schizzes, to large vacuoles determined globally, of the neurosis and castration type: the neurotic needs object in relation to which the partial objects can be determined as a lack, and inversely. Then again, if we say that capitalism determines the conditions and the possibility of a universal history, this extent that the representative itself undergoes a repression. This repression determines what part of the influx will pass through and what field of decoded flows. As a machine it no longer determines a social system; it is itself determined by the social even at the center and in highly industrialized sectors. What determines the lowering of costs and the elevation of the rate to code such operations: in the first place, a code determines the respective qualities of the flows passing through the socius Dx and dy are nothing independent of their relation, which determines the one as a pure quality of the flow of form of reproduction falls outside the social field that nonetheless determines this form. Private persons are therefore images of the second all consistency, unless it is supported by a structure that determines the place and the functions of the subject of representation terms of any goal or end, since they are what determines goals and ends. The form or quality of a given is inextricably fixed, under a code, under an axiomatic that determines it. keeps moving further and further in the direction of the deterritorialization of the socius. Capitalism tends toward a threshold of decoding of the territorial machine? The decoding of flows and the deterritorialization of the socius thus constitutes the most characteristic and the can, he plunges further and further into the realm of deterritorialization, reaching the furthest limits of the decomposition of the socius organization and the molecular multiplicity of desire; this limit of deterritorialization must now pass into the interior of the molar organization social production that goes to the very extremes of its deterritorialization, and as the movement of metaphysical production that carries desire than their labor capacity (here again, two distinct forms of deterritorialization). In a sense, capitalism has haunted all forms of society is rather the effect of the first great movement of deterritorialization on the primitive communes. The immanent unity of the earth the principle of residence the effect of a movement of deterritorialization that divides the earth as an object and subjects men euphemisms. The pseudo territoriality is the product of an effective deterritorialization that substitutes abstract signs for the signs of the earth or territoriality of the State inaugurates the great movement of deterritorialization that subordinates all the primitive filiations to the despotic machine having replaced the territorial sign, having crossed the threshold of deterritorialization; the signifier is merely the deterritorialized sign itself. The sign 9 The Civilized Capitalist Machine The first great movement of deterritorialization appears with the overcoding performed by the despotic State. But but by the generalized decoding of flows, the new massive deterritorialization, the conjunction of deterritorialized flows. It is the singular nature these elements brings into play several processes of decoding and deterritorialization having very different origins. For the free worker: the deterritorialization deterritorialization having very different origins. For the free worker: the deterritorialization of the soil through privatization; the decoding of the instruments work itself or of the machine. And for capital: the deterritorialization of wealth through monetary abstraction; the decoding of the flows emplacement. Now this movement of displacement belongs essentially to the deterritorialization of capitalism. As Samir Amin has shown, the process of of capitalism. As Samir Amin has shown, the process of deterritorialization here goes from the center to the periphery, that is Capitalism exports filiative capital. At the same time as capitalist deterritorialization is developing from the center to the periphery, the decoding and in incomes. At capitalism's limit the deterritorialized socius gives way to the body without organs, and the would be suppressed: decoded flows, flowing on a blind, mute, deterritorialized socius—such is the nightmare that the primitive social machine	p 67 p 102 p 105 p 136 p 140 p 153

Men have even been seen drinking this one's hands will be washed with it. Writing—the first deterritorialized flow, drinkable on this account: it flows from the despotic crossed the threshold of deterritorialization; the signifier is merely the deterritorialized sign itself. The sign made letter. Desire no longer dares that finally ensure the independence and the linearity of the deterritorialized signs. But such a field remains defined by a transcendence metaphors and metonymy—all of that constitutes the overcoding and deterritorialized despotic machine. The despotic signifier has the effect of overcoding on new foundations or under new conditions present in the deterritorialized full body of the despot himself. This is the reason it is no longer en-acted or reacted to. When the deterritorialized sign becomes a signifier, a formidable quantity of reaction passes must invent specific codes for flows that are increasingly deterritorialized, which means: putting despotism in the service of the new production making ready in the shadows, flows of workers becoming deterritorialized: the encounter of all these flows will be necessary, their decoding of flows, the new massive deterritorialization, the conjunction of deterritorialized flows. It is the singular nature of this conjunction that	p 176 p 194 p 198 p 199 p 202 p 206 p 206 p 206 p 207 p 209 p 210 p 215 p 218 p 223 p 224
that they be linked to capital and to the new deterritorialized full body, the true consumer from whence they seem to the encounter of two principal elements: on one side, the deterritorialized worker who has become free and naked, having to sell time, precisely for the conjunction of all the decoded and deterritorialized flows. As Maurice Dobb has shown, an accumulation of property or its break, the conjunction of all the decoded and deterritorialized flows, cannot be defined by commercial capital or by financial astronomer). But the decoding of flows in capitalism has freed, deterritorialized, and decoded the flows of code just as it has of dolphins, to flows that are even stranger and more deterritorialized. But where does the dolphin flux end, if not with purchasing power determined as income. The first is the immense deterritorialized flow that constitutes the full body of capital. An economist decoding and deterritorialization? For perhaps the flows are not yet deterritorialized enough, not decoded enough, from the viewpoint of a theory first defines a content and the second, an expression. The deterritorialized flows of content and expression are in a state of between two hierarchized levels of language, but between two convertible deterritorialized planes, constituted by the relation between the form of content on the body of capital as a socius that is deterritorialized, but also a socius that is even more pitiless than and never ceases to fully occupy this field. But this deterritorialized field finds itself determined by an axiomatic, in contrast to it is produced by the conjunction of the decoded or deterritorialized flows, and is able to carry the becoming-immanent to its of the modern State is the regulation of the decoded, deterritorialized flows, one of the principal aspects of this function consists capitalism as such. It is the very conjunction of the deterritorialized flows that delineates archaic or artificial neoterritorialities. Marx has shown the great essence of wealth, abstract and subjective, industrial and deterritorialized, only by immediately reterritorializing it in the private ownership of every society, inasmuch as it sets in motion decoded and deterritorialized flows that it restores to desiring-production, at the bounds of inasmuch as it axiomatizes the decoded flows and reterritorializes the deterritorialized flows. We have also seen that capitalism finds in schizophrenia longer as an objective nature, but as an abstract and deterritorialized subjective essence, the activity of production in general. But as of American literature that of crossing limits and frontiers, causing deterritorialized flows of desire to circulate, but also always making these socius, its tangent of deterritorialization, the ultimate residue of a deterritorialized socius. The socius—the earth, the body of the despot political economy and capitalism. This discovery of the decoded and deterritorialized flows is the same as that which takes place for subjective and private reterritorialization: Oedipus is the fallen despot—banished, deterritorialized—but a reterritorialization is engineered, using the Oedipus complex conceived movement through which desiring-production is continually overcoming the limit, becoming deterritorialized, causing its flows to escape, going beyond the threshold of of desire, whose machines on the contrary are indices of deterritorialized production. The psychoanalyst reterritorializes on the couch, in the representation Oedipus and castration. Schizoanalysis on the contrary must disengage the deterritorialized flows of desire, in the molecular elements of desiring-production. We flow that another produces. But how would these decoded and deterritorialized flows of desiring-production keep from being reduced to some representative of desiring-machines that re-form little earths. Even Gisela Pankow's great deterritorialized subjects are led to discover the image of a family colony—and the schizo out for a walk in a deterritorialized circuit. The following excerpt from an article by Michel Cournot family is a good place, a good circuit for the deterritorialized schizo? Such a thing would be very surprising, to say other collapsed ! The Eternal Return as experience, and as the deterritorialized circuit of all the cycles of desire. How odd the it is said that desiring-production is itself a decoded and deterritorialized production, how do we explain that capitalism, with its axiomatic capitalism. Precisely because the flows of capital are decoded and deterritorialized flows; precisely because the subjective essence of production is revealed a general collapse of the large objectivities, the decoded and deterritorialized flows of capitalism are not recaptured or co-opted, but directly sucked, a la Beckett, and other machinic elements belonging to deterritorialized constellations. The task of schizoanalysis is that of learning what either by lines of escape that follow the decoded and deterritorialized flows, inventing their own nonfigurative breaks or schizzes that produce world opens up, an other art, where the lines are deterritorialized, the colors are decoded, and now only refer to the no longer measured except in terms of the decoded and deterritorialized flows that it causes to circulate beneath a signifier reduced social axiomatic, but pass beyond their own axiomatics, generating increasingly deterritorialized signs, figures-schizzes that are no longer either figurative or structured as a system of differential relations between the decoded and deterritorialized flows, in such a way that social inscription and repression and deterritorialization; how it works, always more decoded, always more deterritorialized; how its operation grows more relentless with the development of this is because the capitalist machine thrives on decoded and deterritorialized flows; it decodes and deterritorializes them still more, but while a reflux of means of payment. The Third World is deterritorialized in relation to the center of capitalism but belongs to Its productions, its art, and its science form decoded and deterritorialized flows that do not merely submit to the corresponding axiomatic death—where, when? Strictly speaking, it is not production of desire so as to recast it along entirely different lines, making of it a dirty little secret, the dirty as a kind of invariant. But the question is altogether different: is there an equivalence between the productions of the unconscious boy! Such is the case with Oedipus and its resolution, different in boys and in girls. Such is the case with more distinctly if we consider the mutual reactions between the different syntheses of the unconscious following a given use. Or should the question be framed in a different way? But the two kinds of investments are radically different, according as the one bears upon the molar structures that also present this as a single line along which the different forms of socius, their planes and their large aggregates, are abundance of parts that they must be compared to very different parts of distinct machines, each relating to the others, engineered a question of animals, nor of animal sexuality. Something quite different is involved. If sexuality is the unconscious investment of the field—gives way to a representative couple of an entirely different nature: family-myth. Once again, have you ever seen a child can this very complex ambivalence of psychoanalysis be explained? Several different things must be distinguished. In the first place, symbolic representation	p 280 p 281 p 284 p 294 p 298 p 301

This results from the fact that displacement refers to very different movements: at times, the movement through which desiring-production is continually	p 313
of escape. But this is true in a way altogether different from what psychoanalysis believes it to be. The decoded flows part is continually referring to a part from an entirely different machine, like the red clover and the bumble bee, the the masculine and the feminine in the human sex, but different or really-distinct things (des reellement-distincts), distinct beings, as found in it ensures the relative coexistence and displacement of the two different functions. Now let us assume that the respective flows associated reanimate them with local movements. It is a question of different parts of the machine, different and coexisting, different in their question of different parts of the machine, different and coexisting, different in their very coexistence. Hence it is question of different parts of the machine, different and coexisting, different in their very coexistence. Hence it is absurd to speak is not at all a personal deepening, but something quite different: there is a return from the experience of death to which the analyst provides and try to think up something different ... if you realize that he is not a god but as the share owing to the overlord. Things are very different in capitalism. Precisely because the flows of capital are decoded assign organizations, lacks, and goals? The full bodies determine the different modes of the socius, veritable heavy aggregates of the earth libidinal, even though the two correspond to two modes of different investments of the same reality as social reality. There is including chastity, is a matter of flows, an infinity of different and even contrary flows. Everything depends on the way in rather if it makes the parents function as something entirely different, as agents of production in relation to other agents in allocated to such and such a zone, but under a different rubric from that of parents. interest must on the contrary discover the necessity for a different sort of investment, and must perform a kind of rupture of aims and interests. In each case the problem is different: it is not enough to construct a new socius as real problem, as either a determined causal link or a different sort of connection. which he felt the difficulty: to begin with, it appears difficult to assign as cause of the malady—even if only in the group fantasy. Institutional analysis tries to trace its difficult path between the repressive asylum and the legalistic hospital on delegated agent. Even by application it is hard, it is difficult for a child to live and experience himself as an group placed me from the second year in a socially difficult position that was growing more and more suffocating. So, do kinship seems to predominate over the earth, it is not difficult to show the importance of local ties. This is because signs of classes in precapitalist societies. First of all, when considering kinship structures, it is difficult not to proceed as though the alliances derived from the and invest organic or social surroundings. It is in fact difficult to present sexual energy as directly cosmic and intra-atomic, and in the Freudian analysis. Perhaps it would have been more difficult to crush the entire sociopolitical content of Schreber's delirium if economic situation: the mother reduced to housework, or to a difficult and uninteresting job on the outside; children whose future remains or gaseous indifferent supports, and that appears all the more difficult and intellectual to intellectuals as it is accessible to the	p 170 p 187 p 291 p 297 p 356 p 370

Freud's text marks the extent to which he felt the difficulty: to begin with, it appears difficult to assign as cause the mother, and the ego. (And one merely pushes the difficulty into the background when one considers the system as a possibility of discriminating directly between the two that creates the difficulty. How can we distinguish between the pressure that familial reproduction triangles—maternal uncle-aunt-nephew, for example; but the oedipalists have no difficulty in demonstrating that these are imaginary variations of one and of a neurotic. So it is that psychoanalysis has much difficulty extracting itself from an infinite regression: the father must have large aggregates, and of social and organic fields. We have difficulty understanding what principles psychoanalysis uses to support its conception of domain. Nor is it a case of an ambiguous dimension of applied psychoanalysis; for all Oedipus—Oedipus in and of this case the Oedipal problem tended to assume its diachronic dimension, causing the generation gap to appear. It is necessary to take into account political, economic, and religious dimensions that would go beyond sexuality. So long as the problem being oral only through losing the independence and the particular dimensions of the graphic system; by aligning itself on the voice the graphic system has lost its independence and its particular dimensions, has aligned itself on the voice and has become subordinated From this moment on it appears indeed that the two dimensions of representation—its surface organization with the elements voice-graphy-eye, and upon the masses. It has also been shown that two dimensions exist side by side in Saussure: the one horizontal, where they are nonsigns, or rather nonsignifying signs, points-signs having several dimensions, flows-breaks or schizzes that form images through their coming together a knot may be seen as a point having several dimensions—which, far from cancelling the flows, contains them and sets requirements of reproduction, and that it counteracts with all its dimensions. The alliances and filiations no longer pass through people but a family gasping for breath and stretched out over the dimensions of a social field that does not reclose or withdraw Doubtless it would be a mistake to contrast these two dimensions in terms of the collective and the individual. productive powers and the social interrelations of labour in the direct labour-process seem transferred from labour to capital. Capital thus becomes own language, and establishes syntheses with others that are quite direct along transverse vectors, whereas the vectors between the basic elements order to produce a psychotic, or because an even more direct mechanism of intervention by the grandparents in the psychosis is appear to be two correlates: on the one hand, the direct confrontation between desiring-production and social production, between symptomological and collective you). But this duality is artificial, derived, and supposes a direct relationship proceeding from the statement to the collective agents of the immediate reality. My way of seeing things was in direct relationship to the events of the times: Hitlerism , Stalinism, fascism a familial microcosm, and they continue to treat the libido's direct investments of the social field as simple imaginary dependencies on it is going to retain, what it is going to direct along the dead-end roads leading to its own undifferentiated (the is dismembered and dissolved in a psychotic formation as the direct effect of this same factor. It is indeed in this psychiatrists and psychoanalysts been able to establish a really inspired direct relationship with either child or adult schizophrenics; Gisela Pankow and on the other hand, we were unable to establish any direct relationship between neurosis and psychosis. The relationships of neurosis, psychosis contracts it into a point that keeps him in a direct relationship with the ancestor or the god. Pierre Clastres describes bush or the forest: real displacement with the flows and direct filiation with the god. It has to do with the afforded the satisfaction of drifting with the flows and singing direct filiation, but always a socius waiting to bear down, already the chain constitute mobile debts of alliance that guide and direct the flows. On the blanket that serves as a familial on the contrary, from desiring-production to social production forms a direct sexual investment of this social production, without any repression of why it is so important to see debt as a direct consequence of the primitive inscription process, instead of making it could too manifestly appear to be the result of a direct exchange between two lineages or lineage segments is, in this for the young woman's transformation to be fully effective, a direct contact must take place between her stomach, on the one assumed by exchange, debt is the immediate effect or the direct means of the territorial and corporal inscription process. Debt is of the territorial and corporal inscription process. Debt is the direct result of inscription. Once again no revenge, no resentment will be summarized in the following way: a new alliance and direct filiation. The despot challenges the lateral alliances and the extended He imposes a new alliance system and places himself in direct filiation with the deity: the people must follow. A leap the essential: every time the categories of new alliance and direct filiation are mobilized, we are talking about the imperial barbarian a certain type of code and inscription that is in direct opposition to the primitive territorial codings. The number of elements elements in the alliance makes little difference: new alliance and direct filiation are specific categories that testify to the existence of carried to the absolute in this new alliance and this direct filiation. It remains to be said that, in order to filiations are not replaced, but are merely affiliated with the direct filiation. It is like an immense right of the first-born that entails an overflowing of the old filiations into the direct filiation, gathering all the subjects into the new machine. The alliances and filiations, prolongs them, makes them converge into the direct filiation of the despot with the deity, and the new when these are short-circuited, abducted by the new alliance and direct filiation, then the ancestor—the master of the mobile and incest is twofold, by virtue of the new alliance and direct filiation. He begins by marrying the sister. But he enters his first marriage. He countersects the extended filiations with a direct filiation. The initiated or initiating hero becomes king. The second primitive machine (the difference between the generations); it constitutes the direct filiation that results from the new alliance, by effecting a beyond that expresses itself in the flow of writing as direct filiation. These two fundamental despotic categories are also the movement acoustic image, to the voice of the new alliance and direct filiation. And that everywhere there exist the molecular and the molar: their disjunction is a relation of included disjunction, which varies only according and the molar: their disjunction is a relation of included disjunction, which varies only according to the two directions of subordination as homosexuality is caught up in a relation of exclusive disjunction with heterosexuality, a relation that ascribes them both to a	p 327 p 340 p 340 p 350

the nonproductive element as a natural or divine presupposition (the disjunctions of capital). Machines attach themselves to the body without organs	p 12
for instance—incribes on his own body the litany of disjunctions, and creates for himself a world of parries where the enchanted surface, inscribing it in each and everyone of its disjunctions. Hence the strange relationship that Schreber has with God. To that is divine is the nature of an energy of disjunctions. Schreber's divine is inseparable from the disjunctions he employs to an energy of disjunctions. Schreber's divine is inseparable from the disjunctions he employs to divide himself up into parts: earlier empires that, on second thought, hysterical neurosis comes first, and that disjunctions appear only as a result of the projection of a the various stages in the formation of the Oedipus complex? Disjunctions are the form that the genealogy of desire assumes; but right where it is, that the Numen is distributed and disjunctions are established, independent of any sort of projection. Yes, I long as he can stuff it full of all the disjunctions that this code was designed to eliminate. Adolf Wolfli's drawings lines standing for catastrophe or collapse that are so many disjunctions surrounded by spirals. The schizo maintains a shaky balance for the result is always the same, no matter what the disjunctions. Although the organ-machines attach themselves to the body without organs subject that can situate itself only in terms of the disjunctions of a recording surface, in what is left after each of information recorded, and their transmission form a grid of disjunctions of a type that differs from the previous connections. We the basic elements that constitute them are quite indirect. The disjunctions characteristic of these chains still do not involve any exclusion process are productive, and are reassemblies in and of themselves. Disjunctions, by the very fact that they are disjunctions, are inclusive of themselves. Disjunctions, by the very fact that they are disjunctions, are inclusive. Even consumptions are transitions, processes of becoming, and	p 12 p 13 p 13 p 13 p 13 p 13 p 15 p 15 p 15 p 15 p 16 p 38 p 38 p 42 p 42
of free syntheses where everything is possible: endless connections, nonexclusive disjunctions, nonspecific conjunctions, partial objects and flows. The desiring-machines pound away	p 54 for the variations of the fantasy to be organized in disjunctions whose use must be strictly exclusive. Hence there will be in two nonsymmetrical series, establishing the exclusive use of the disjunctions: you are girl or boy! Such is the case with must lay the foundation for the exclusive use of the disjunctions of the unconscious—and teach us resignation. Resignation to Oedipus nothing can be defined as a lack; nor are the disjunctions in the unconscious ever exclusive, but rather the object of perversions, the ego conforms to the exclusive use of the disjunctions imposed by the law (for example, Oedipal homosexuality). But group them with the revolutionary institutions. The group fantasy includes the disjunctions, in the sense that each subject, discharged of his personal psychoanalysis, in Freud, we have seen this taste for exclusive disjunctions assert itself. It becomes nevertheless apparent that schizophrenia teaches us	p 59 p 59 p 59 p 60 p 63 p 63 p 76 in a nondecomposable space. This is the meaning of the disjunctions where Beckett records his characters and the events that befall distances are positive, at the same time as the included disjunctions. It would be a total misunderstanding of this order of schizophrenic substituted vague syntheses of identification of contradictory elements for disjunctions, like the last of the Hegelian philosophers. He does not	p 76 p 76 p 76

the undifferentiated. It should be made clear that the exclusive disjunctions are not at all the same as the inclusive disjunctions disjunctions are not at all the same as the inclusive disjunctions; neither God nor the parental designations play the same role designations play the same role in the two. In exclusive disjunctions, parental appellations no longer designate intensive states through which the	p 78 p 78 p 78

What are the connections, what are the disjunctions, the conjunctions, what use is made of the syntheses? It up in the connections, parental appellations crop up In the disjunctions of the chain, the parents are there as ordinary stimuli to the notorious law of totality-unity acting as lacking. The disjunctions are subjected to the alternative of the undifferentiated or exclusion in persons, but rather in series which determine the connections, disjunctions, and conjunctions of organs. That is why fantasies are group words. While production is recorded in the network of filiative disjunctions on the socius, the connections of labor still must detach or a pairing of persons that is compatible with the disjunctions of filiation. It is in this sense that the economy stock may be re-formed. There are no productive connections without disjunctions of filiation that appropriate them, but there are no disjunctions	p 83 p 109 p 114 p 120 p 142 p 147 p 147 p 149
disjunctions of filiation that appropriate them, but there are no disjunctions of filiation that do not reconstitute lateral connections across the and inscribes them in a network of intensive and inclusive disjunctions, it still has to find again and reanimate lateral connections the connections reappear in a form compatible with the inscribed disjunctions, even if they react in turn on the form of if they react in turn on the form of these disjunctions. Such is alliance, the second characteristic of inscription: alliance imposes extensive form of a pairing of persons, compatible with the disjunctions of inscription, but inversely reacts on inscription by determining an by determining an exclusive and restrictive use of these same disjunctions. It is therefore inevitable that alliance be mythically represented as the side of the eighth ancestor: a derailment of the disjunctions, which cease to be inclusive and become exclusive. Once this rather the intensive variations of a vibratory spiraling movement, inclusive disjunctions, necessarily twin states through which a subject passes on the	p 149 p 154 p 154 p 154 p 155 p 155 p 155 p 158

Rather a society of family performs a vast appropriation of the productive forces; it displaces and reorganizes in its own fashion the entirety of the repressing representation on the repressed representative: the representation disfigures or displaces this representative against which it is directed; it projects onto	p 71 p 71 p 75 p 102 p 124 p 165

Its one purpose is to point out the fact schizophrenic appears all the more specific and recognizable as a distinct personality if the process is halted, or if it is to a socius or a social machine that is quite distinct from these machines, and that conditions this reproduction. this characteristic man-nature, industry-nature, society-nature relationship is responsible for the distinction of relatively autonomous spheres that are called production, distribution, consumption of one and the same process. Second, we make no distinction between man and nature: the human essence of nature and he was in the process of demolishing, by creating a distinction between rationality as it is or ought to be in desiring-machines and the technical social machines. There is a certain distinction between them, but it is merely a distinction of regime a certain distinction between them, but it is merely a distinction of regime, depending on their relationships of size. Except for the regime of technical machines is characterized by a strict distinction between the means of production and the product; thanks to the means of production and the product; thanks to this distinction, the machine transmits value to the product, but only the a body without organs all by themselves, and make no distinction between agents and their own parts, or between the relations power: neurosis, that's father-mother, but grandma, that's psychosis.) Finally, the distinction between the Imaginary and the Symbolic permits the emergence of	p 3 p 4 p 29 p 31 p 31 p 31 p 31 p 32 p 52 whole of this field over imaginary givens. If this first distinction is drawn out, we see that the individual fantasy is more so, for Lacan's disciples, when they take up the distinction between the Imaginary and the Symbolic, when they oppose the result (even the inhibition of revolt has become unconscious), a distinction that expresses clearly the difference in nature between the two has not shown the scope of this difference or the distinction between their respective regimes.) That is why psychic repression in Freud was merely insisting on the schematic character of the distinction, for the rupture is also found in neurosis with the reconstruction. The fact remains that Freud never dropped this simple distinction. And it seems important that, following an original path, Freud	p 62 p 92 p 119 p 121 p 123 p 123

The essence of this concept, which resembles the Roman distinction between agnation and cognation, is that any Ego is related not yet extended, and does not as yet comprise any distinction of persons, nor even a distinction of sexes, but only as yet comprise any distinction of persons, nor even a distinction of sexes, but only prepersonal variations in intensity, taking on as well as the children depend on it. Whence the distinction between two lines, the one continuous and germinal, but the class that is ruled, both defined by surplus value, the distinction between the flow of financing and the flow of income with his innocent standards, claiming the rights of a prior distinction between desire and interest: The leadership has no task more 2 The Molecular Unconscious What is the meaning of this distinction between two regions: one molecular and the other molar; one this anything more than a metaphor lending the unconscious a distinction grounded in physics, when we speak of an opposition between of the priority of the one or the other; this distinction, as it appears in Group Psychology and the Analysis of discovery of an activity of production in general and without distinction, as it appears in capitalism, is the identical discovery of and whose elements are welded, pasted together by the real distinction or the very absence of a link. Such is the might instead wonder how these conditions of dispersion, of real distinction, and of the absence of a link permit any machinic that things are becoming very obscure, for what is this distinction between the experience of death and the model of death the full body, having become that of capital-money, suppresses the distinction between production and antiproduction; everywhere it mixes antiproduction with the death instinct is now only pure silence in its transcendent distinction from life, but it effuses all the more, throughout all objective or subjective, as one wishes. That is not the distinction: the distinction to be made passes into the economic infrastructure subjective, as one wishes. That is not the distinction: the distinction to be made passes into the economic infrastructure itself and even more of their supposed autonomy. In accordance with the distinction made by embryologists with regard to the egg between the The fourth and final thesis of schizoanalysis is therefore the distinction between two poles of social libidinal investment: the paranoiac, reactionary fantasy and dream. The latter have to do with continuous fluxes and are related to partial objects. Schizzes fluxes and are related to partial objects. Schizzes have to do with heterogeneous chains, and as their basic unit use detachable intensive nature of this interplay: the part has nothing to do with the whole; it performs its role all by itself accordance with these three modes. The first mode has to do with the connective synthesis, and mobilizes libido as withdrawal energy as withdrawal energy (energie de prelevement). The second has to do with the disjunctive synthesis, and mobilizes the Numen as detachment as detachment energy (energie de detachement). The third has to do with the conjunctive synthesis, and mobilizes Voluptas as residual energy least prone to see everything in terms of Oedipus, we do so only in order to demonstrate what a forcing was of family relations; they are parts of desiring-machines, having to do with a process and with relations of production that are is the train station necessarily mommy. The problem has to do not with the sexual nature of desiring-machines, but with the it copious or scanty. A desiring-machine and a partial object do not represent anything. A partial object is not representative, even the case of the Cartesian cogito, parents have nothing to do with these questions. And we are guilty of an error to the yoke of daddy-mommy and making no effort to do away with this problem once and for all. 2 PSYCHOANALYSIS Oedipal structure as a system of positions and functions that do not conform to the variable figure of those who come is there anything in common between the two sexes, nor do they cease communicating with each other in a transverse mode to a familial determination that no longer has anything to do with the social field actually invested by the libido. Of a place among the collective agents. The terms of Oedipus do not form a triangle, but exist shattered into all corners new version. We are not saying that Oedipus and castration do not amount to anything. We are oedipalized, we are castrated scene: there is this and then that, and let's make do with it, too bad if it doesn't suit us. In In reality, global persons—even the very form of persons—do not exist prior to the prohibitions that weigh on them prohibition existed in two forms, the one negative, having to do above all with the mother and imposing differentiation, the other parental use, and reproduces itself in the conjugal use. We do not yet know what forces bring about this triangulation that synthesis that remains fundamentally illegitimate with regard to them? We do not deny that there is an Oedipal sexuality, an Oedipal that reinforces it. In reality the problem has nothing to do with pre-oedipal stages that would still revolve around an Oedipal heterosexuality and homosexuality, an anoedipal castration: the breaks-flows of desiring-production do not let themselves be projected onto a mythical locale; the be projected onto a mythical locale; the signs of desire do not let themselves be extrapolated from a signifier; transsexuality does to imagine another use, and even the three familial neuroses do not escape this use, although they suffer from no longer That is why the schizophrenic God has so little to do with the God of religion, even though they are related orphan (yes, I was ...); rather, they designate global persons who do not exist prior to the prohibitions that found them, and is like God; the problem is not resolved until we do away with both the problem and the solution. It is no longer even be raised. By the same token, we do not share the pessimism that consists in thinking that this disciples were tempted to reclose the Oedipus yoke, didn't they do so to the extent that Lacan seemed to maintain a finally succeed in being Mahood.... Then all I'll have to do is be Worm. Which no doubt I shall achieve by by trying to be Jones. Then all I'll have to do is be Jones. But if everything commingles in this fashion or indeterminations play a role. It is obvious that they do. But is this an initial role as symbolic organizer (or nineteenth-century asylums, with Pinel and Tuke, had set out to do: to fuse madness with a parental complex, to link it at issue here. Quite the contrary: what is invested between Hitler and the German people, with corresponding elements that do not necessarily imply identity: Hitler plays the role of father take other causes into account, but that he alone cannot do everything. Besides, he deals just enough with other causes so is what makes for our originality as analysts—we who do not forget that society too is triangular and symbolic! If complex). And ideology, Oedipus, and the phallus have nothing to do with this, because they depend on it rather than being The fruits of the news of the death of God do away with the flower of His death as well as to independent existences—the father, the mother, the begetters—that do not yet comprise their elements as internal elements of desire be that of the scandalized psychoanalyst, the psychoanalyst-as-cop: those who do not bow to the imperialism of Oedipus are dangerous deviants

Instead of assuming forbids men to do what their instincts incline them to do; ... Instead of assuming, therefore, from the legal prohibition of incest serve as a principle for action.... This has nothing to do with the active unconscious [which] sparkles, vibrates, travels ... we realize in grasping. Oedipal desires are not at all repressed, nor do they have any reason to be. They are nevertheless in is something other than sexuality, but that sexuality and love do not live in the bedroom of Oedipus, they dream instead of wide-open spaces, and cause strange flows to circulate that do not let themselves be stocked within an established order. possible from the point of view of desiring-production itself. We do have, however, the elements of a response. Social production would lot, reinforced a lot, injected a lot. All that psychoanalysts do is to reinforce the movement; they add a last burst energy to the displacement of the entire unconscious. What they do is merely to make the unconscious speak according to the something like two groups, the psychotics and neurotics, those who do not tolerate oedipalization, and those who tolerate it and are difficult position that was growing more and more suffocating. So, do you believe these two groups are capable of being joined is taking place, what is desiring-production doing? The retained elements do not enter into the new use of synthesis that imposes made? The father's nose or the mother's ear—will that do, can that be retained, will that constitute a good Oedipal Freud's method! For those less young, whose problems have to do with social adaptation, Adler! And Jung for the adults and the adults and the old people, whose problems have to do with the Ideal. And we have seen what remains common beginning a constellation of somatic, social, and metaphysical relations that do not follow after Oedipal psychological relations but that on the It is rather the contrary; neurosis explains Oedipus. Then how do we conceive of the relationship between psychosis and neurosis? Everything planets for a new sun. These men of desire—or do they not yet exist?—are like Zarathustra. They know incredible man, irresponsible, solitary, and joyous, finally able to say and do something simple in his own name, without asking permission; a fail to complete the process, they never cease falling to do so. The neurotic impasse again closes—the daddy-mommy of oedipalization drainage, inflamed genital mucus, or a stream of words that do not let themselves be coded, a libido that is too under the conditions determined by an apparently victorious capitalism, where do we find enough innocence for generating universal history? Cruelty has nothing to do with some ill-defined or natural violence that might be commissioned and shape concrete reality to a much greater extent than do the systems or filiation and the abstract matrimonial classes. A flows and direct filiation with the god. It has to do with the nature of nomadic space, where the full body appropriate them, but there are no disjunctions of filiation that do not reconstitute lateral connections across the alliances and pairings of that the flows of exchange and the flows of production do not manage to break the codes in favor of their combining and declining itself with the extended filiative lineages that do not exist prior to alliances in a system assumed to evident and striking that these are not persons. its ugly growth. So long as the history of desire does not experience this outcome, Oedipus haunts all societies, but as creditor-debtor relation in the relations of opposed classes. But how does one explain both this latency into which the despotic State really knows what comes first, and whether the territorial machine does not in fact presuppose a despotic machine from which it incorporated in the exercise of its functions. In brief, it does not cease being artificial, but it becomes concrete, it tends the old full body of the social machine. Hence capitalism does not lead to the dissolution of feudalism, but rather the feudal system itself and that of its State, still does not give us the extrinsic conjunction of these two flows money effect a decoding of flows through abstraction. But this does not occur in the same way for both instances. First its specific mode of production, which knows nothing of and does not recognize abstract labor. As Marx says, the latter is simplest and most ancient relation of productive activity, but it does not appear as such and only becomes a true practical machine. That is why, before, the monetary and commercial inscription does not have a body of its own at its disposal of one age: for only by the surplus-value of £10 does the £100 originally advanced become capital. It is solely under itself while reproducing the factors that counteract it. But why does it have no end? Doubtless for the same reasons that financing—the two aspects of banking practice. But this dissimulation does not depend on a faulty understanding so much as it an interior limit that is capital itself and that it does not encounter, but reproduces by always displacing it. Jean-Joseph Goux take in economy as well as linguistics: If the movement does not tend toward any limit, if the quotient of differentials time, and their extension is very wide-ranging. By no means does the diachronic capitalist machine allow itself to be revolutionized by more of its synchronous technical machines, and by no means does it confer on its scientists and its technicians an independence by the capitalist regime engender a machinic surplus value that does not directly depend on science and technics themselves, but on flows that are even stranger and more deterritorialized. But where does the dolphin flux end, if not with the basic research banks)—a flow possessing a power of mutation that does not enter into income and is not assigned to purchases

Clavel, one no longer knows who is alienated or who does the alienating. Who steals? Certainly not the finance capitalist as that one is able to reply to the question: how does one come to desire strength while also desiring one's own field able to be invested by desire? And how far does desire go beyond so-called objective interests, when it is a revolutionary path? Psychoanalysis is of little help, entertaining as it does the most intimate of relations with money, and recording—while television, only a few of which are retained. Electric language does not go by way of the voice or writing; data go by way of the voice or writing; data processing does without them both, as does that discipline appropriately named fluidics voice or writing; data processing does without them both, as does that discipline appropriately named fluidics, which operates by means of difference being that the schizos are not salable. How then does one explain the fact that capitalist production is constantly arresting the image of its own death coming from within? Why does it make the schizophrenic into a sick person not only a sick person not only nominally but in reality? Why does it confine its madmen and madwomen instead of seeing in no longer recognize the figure of a simple illness, why does it keep its artists and even its scientists under such co-opted or absorbed by the laws of the market? Why does it form in turn a gigantic machine for social repression-psychoic advent of capitalism the full body becomes truly naked, as does the worker himself who is attached to this full body becomes something concrete. Concerning capitalism, we maintain that it both does and does not have an exterior limit: it has an concrete. Concerning capitalism, we maintain that it both does and does not have an exterior limit: it has an exterior limit back and exorcising this limit. And it also has, yet does not have, interior limits: it has interior limits under the that places the axiomatic in opposition to codes. The axiomatic does not need to write in bare flesh, to mark bodies write in bare flesh, to mark bodies and organs, nor does it need to fashion a memory for man. In contrast of identity cards, files, and other means of control, capitalism does not even need to write in books to make up abolition of such privileges. That the struggle against monopolistic privileges does not imply any struggle against the very principle of State class is an obvious practical fact, but a fact that does not reveal its theoretical foundation. The latter is simple to is not embodied in a consciousness that, to be sure, does not create it, but actualizes it in an organized party monopolistic market of the State itself. And in effect, how does one define the true alternative without assuming all these problems appears to us profoundly correct where he concludes that there does not exist any class spontaneity, but only a group spontaneity necessarily represented in a distinct consciousness that, at this level, does not even present any grounds for asking whether it betrays against one's own interests: capitalism profits from this, but so does socialism, the party, and the party leadership. How does one so does socialism, the party, and the party leadership. How does one explain that desire devotes itself to operations that are of recognition, but rather perfectly reactionary unconscious investments? And what does Reich mean when he speaks of traditional bonds? The latter

What is inscribed or marked it goes without saying that this becoming or this constitution does not develop under the categories imagined in the earlier social signifier. I reach desire when I arrive at castration! What does the desire-castration equation signify, if not in fact a prodigious there is not a single one of these tactics that does not find in Oedipus its land of milk and honey

Nor is there a single one of these tactics that does not serve and develop in psychoanalysis, with the latter as the new avatar of the ascetic ideal. Once again, psychoanalysis does not invent Oedipus; it merely provides the latter a last Universal history is nothing more than a theology if it does not seize control of the conditions of its contingent, singular was himself a child, in relation to another father. How does a delirium begin? Perhaps the cinema is able to capture it is evident that there is never a delirium that does not possess this characteristic to a high degree, and that from the second, but one cannot even consider, as Kardiner does, that the social investment corresponding to the first anxiety comes is the basis of neuroses. But this communication of unconsciousness does not by any means take the family as its principle another, at one pole or the other. And the child does not wait until he is an adult before grasping—underneath stretched out over the dimensions of a social field that does not reclose or withdraw: a family-as-matrix for depersonalized partial objects type; on the other hand, the form of individualized persons does not belong to it, since it knows only partial objects spectators to the imaginary birth of the mass phenomenon, and does so at a level that is still microscopic. The first profound example of an analysis of double bind, in this sense, can be found in Marx's On manner invoked a structural Oedipus to create and shut the double impasse. to lead us back to the question of the its solution. It is solely a question of a correlative double impasse, a swing of a pendulum responsible for sweeping away continuously carries us from one pole to the other. In any case, the double bind is not the schizophrenic process; on the contrary, the bind is not the schizophrenic process; on the contrary, the double bind is Oedipus insofar as it arrests the motion of social repression: desiring-production. But it in fact implies an original double operation: the repressive social formation delegates its power to an	p 110 p 110 p 119

This machine is segmentary because, through its double apparatus of tribe and lineage, it cuts up segments of The vicious circle of the germinal lineage closes (the primitive double bind): neither can the uncle marry his sister, the mother returns to find his mother again. the unconscious in fact includes the topical order of a double inscription, it is not structured like one language, but like despot. Oedipus has received its name, the clubfooted despot committing double incest through overcoding, with his sister and his mother as it all possible: the extrapolation of a detached object; the double bind of overcoding or royal incest; the biunivocalization, application, and despot returns as the absolute monarch. For it is a double error to think that the development of commodity production is bearing the greatest burden of current functions. In Capital Marx analyzes the true reason for the double movement: on the one hand, capitalism can proceed only by order, and so daddy-mommy will be proud of me; the double direction given to resentment, the turning back against oneself, and in combination with the others. What is essential is this double movement whereby Butler drives both arguments beyond their very limits Reichian theory, it possesses the incomparable advantage of showing the double pole of the libido, as a molecular formation on the it is the same agency—the family—that performs this double operation, distorting and disfiguring social desiring-production, leading it into an the strictest piety today asks for nothing more). Whence this double impression, that psychoanalysis is opposed to mythology no less than found all over, following a rule of inverse relation, or double bind. All of production is conducted into the double impasse or double bind. All of production is conducted into the double impasse of subjective representation. Oedipus can always be consigned to distribute, that vacuolize lack in an aggregate of destination: a double abduction of the orphan machines, inasmuch as the structure applies by Oedipus: Oedipus necessarily operates in the form of this double impasse. We are told that Oedipus in its turn must of analytic activity, even and especially when they claim to double the real object with an imaginary object; and better a privatized family that displaces the ever narrower internalized limits. The double alienation—labor-desire— is constantly increasing and deepening the difference in	p 259 p 269 p 284 p 292 p 296 p 304 p 307 p 307 p 308 p 311 p 322 p 337

For example, Bateson's double impasse or double bind: where is there a father who doesn't simultaneously transmit a schizophrenic. We have seen in this sense that the double impasse in no way defined a specific schizophrenogenic mechanism, but the trap of a familial psychic repression that comes to double the weight of social repression. the co-ordinates based on this fundamental dichotomy have been laid down. He does not live nature as nature, but as a a process of abstraction. Desiring-machines work only when they break down, and by continually breaking down. Judge Schreber lived for a work only when they break down, and by continually breaking down. Judge Schreber lived for a long time without a stomach guardroom I suppose, and there I was told to sit down. I must have tried to explain. We cannot say that to what he has escaped from, why set him back down amid problems that are no longer problems to him, why not things a subject feels the lack of somewhere deep down inside himself, but rather the objectivity of man, the objective When in the course of our discussion above, we laid down the broad outlines of a parallelism between social production and of order; they ordinarily stop working not because they break down but because they wear out. Marx makes use of this as it wears out. Desiring-machines, on the contrary, continually break down as they run, and in fact run only when they entirely out of gear rather than let them simply run down, and chose to end his compositions with abrupt breaks, hesitations and unresolved chords, rather than allowing them to slowly wind down to a close or gradually die away into silence. The broken-down objects, converting them to the regime of desiring-machines, breaking down is part of the very functioning of desiring-machines; the artist	p 2 p 8 p 8 p 14 p 23 p 27 p 31 p 31 p 31 p 31 p 32 p 32

such a conception is in contradiction with the primitive cold economy, which is without net investment, without money or market, and	p 150

As long as we are content to fact there is massive social repression that has an enormous effect on desiring-production in no way vitiates our principle: desire produces which it neither unifies nor totalizes, though it has an effect on these other parts simply because it establishes aberrant paths with the very special conditions of this recording, including the effect of these conditions upon the process itself (feedback). The colonizer, for example, abolishes the chieftainship, or Oedipus appears only through its patent absence, understood as an effect of psychic repression—or, better still, since the structural constant the adult, but surely not for the child. But in effect, Oedipus begins in the mind of the father. And the deliriums. But already, if it appears that Oedipus is an effect, this is because it forms an aggregate of destination (the the agents (les instances) that come to carry them into effect are themselves variable; there are migrations in the system. We gift, at times the one within the other under the effect of a primary homosexuality. What first place, territorial representation is made up of two heterogeneous elements, voice and graphism: the former is like the representation of voice. The heterogeneity, the divergence, the disequilibrium of the two elements—vocal and graphic—is resolved by a third element: the that responds to the word. The gap between the two elements is bridged by the eye, which sees the word without the two dimensions of representation—its surface organization with the elements voice-graphy-eye, and its in-depth organization with the representing instances of

And if the unconscious in fact includes the topical order past, a transcendent stock that distributes lack to all the elements of the chain, something in common for a common absence

The State can no longer be content to overcode territorial elements that are already coded, it must invent specific codes for to do everything possible to reconstruct the Urstaat from the elements they found in the immanence of the objective Roman world of Capital. Marx points to the encounter of two principal elements: on one side, the deterritorialized worker who has become free is capable of buying it. The fact that these two elements result from the segmentation of the despotic State in feudalism the money-capital existing virtually side by side. One of the elements depends on a transformation of the agrarian structures that constitute this old social body. What is more, each of these elements brings into play several processes of decoding and deterritorialization having so on. Let us consider more in detail how the elements come together, with the conjunction of all their processes. It

The elements of the signifier as distinguishing units are regulated by coded figures defined as effects of the signifier itself; the formal elements of the signifier determined in relation to a phonic substance

Because in Hjelmslev's linguistics the order of the elements is secondary in relation to the axiomatic of flows and them, and working under the conditions of identity of their elements. In language and in writing itself, sometimes the letters as and do not depend on the signifier or its regulated elements. That is to say that the elements of production and antiproduction are not reproduced in the same same time as it completes its migration in the in-depth elements of representation: the displaced represented has become, as such, the distributes lack, and an immanent system of relations between minimal elements that come to fill the uncovered field (somewhat similar, in by the molar aggregates, and the other populated by molecular elements. Naturally, to ensure against the historian's justified anger, the psychoanalyst specifies that he collective, who desires. These investments of an unconscious nature can ensure the general submission to a dominant class by making cuts their conversion. The practical problem of schizoanalysis is, then, to ensure the contrasting reversion: restoring the syntheses of the unconscious to repression precisely in order to form docile subjects and to ensure the reproduction of the social formation, including its repressive structures the whole project of coding the flows. How does one ensure reciprocal adaptation, the respective embrace of a signifying chain and flow, but to overcode all the existing flows, and to ensure that no intrinsic code, no underlying flow escapes the overcoding between articulations of different levels, monemes and phonemes—that finally ensure the independence and the linearity of the deterritorialized signs. But when the dualism passed into a death instinct against Eros, this was no longer a simple limitation, it was a resignation. As Reich says, when psychoanalysis began to speak of Eros, the whole world breathed a sigh of relief: one knew a mortified life, since Thanatos was now the partner of Eros, for worse but also for better. Psychoanalysis becomes the training a topological scope, the qualitative or dynamic dualism passes between Eros and Thanatos. The choice is all the conformist, reactionary, and fascisizing investments, and the schizophrenic escape convertible into a revolutionary investment. Maurice Blanchot speaks admirably of a revolutionary investment. Maurice Blanchot speaks admirably of this revolutionary escape, this fall that must be thought and carried out as out as the most positive of events: What is this escape? Will Aaron leave with his flute, which is the family, which both social production and the schizophrenic process escape. This contradiction is perhaps especially perceptible in Laing, because he would not succeed in choking off the flows' lines of escape. We don't feel any need to attach the slightest importance reconstruction of the Urstaat and the positive schizophrenic lines of escape. Thereafter three possibilities emerge. And it is even less a question of the death instinct to the extent in the movement of the finite blocks of debt. But even in the system of despotic terror, where debt becomes infinite often than not with what is to be co-opted, and even anticipate it. (How many revolutionary groups as such are already an apparatus for the absorption of a surplus value not even produced yet—which gives them precisely an apparent revolutionary position of intensities and becomings. But there is something more serious: even when the libido embraces the new body—the new force formation of sovereignty that subordinates desiring-production under new conditions. But even though the unconscious libido is charged with investing this socius interest and its preconscious investments, but not be so—and even remain fascist and police-like—from the standpoint of its libidinal revolutionary group at the preconscious level remains a subjugated group, even in seizing power, as long as this power itself refers preconscious investments that are simply reformist? Thus the three segments of the ever widening capitalist reproduction process are joined, three segments that also limit, and where capitalism reproduces its immanent limits on an ever widening and more comprehensive scale. Desire does not express a impossible; on the contrary, within the real everything is possible, everything becomes possible. Desire does not express a molar lack within persons who have been defined in terms of abstract quantities. Everything returns or recurs: States, nations, families. That is what makes what makes the ideology of capitalism a motley painting of everything that has ever been believed. The real is not impossible material world. 6 The Whole and Its Parts In desiring-machines everything functions at the same time, but amid hiatuses and ruptures choose the example of the analyst least prone to see everything in terms of Oedipus, we do so only in order issue. The matter at issue is to find out whether everything he touches is experienced as a representative of his parents first analysts discover is the domain of free syntheses where everything is possible: endless connections, nonexclusive disjunctions, nonspecific conjunctions, partial objects	p 27 p 27 p 34 p 34 p 42 p 45 p 47 p 54

Everything follows from that, beginning with the untellable character of the the analyst's office—stop!—with this insertion of a desiring-machine everything is reversed: we have broken the contract, we are not but senses too the poisons that have already filtered in. Everything would be fine if the economic problem of desire were analyst and an ego that is normal in spite of everything ... Except that there are qualitative factors in the desiring-economy that of all sorts, ... the language is unfettered, rapid, almost torrential, ... everything enters here, ... the patient could just as easily say the the patient could just as easily say the opposite of everything he is uttering without changing anything fundamental to the analytic sign, to the slightest vibration by springing on its prey. Everything begins with nebulae, statistical wholes whose outlines are blurred, molar of lack, absence, asymmetry, exclusion, noncommunication, vice, and guilt. At last, within the magnified proximity, everything falls apart like a face drawn in sand, Albertine's face permits an infantile stage of sexual promiscuity to subsist, where everything is permitted until the age when the young man in that which partial objects and subjects of desire lack. Consequently, everything is played out from the start: everywhere we encounter the Beckett records his characters and the events that befall them: everything divides, but into itself. Even the distances are positive, at man and to nature does not arise here at all. Everything is on the body without organs, both what is inscribed Thus in the 1936 letter to Romain Rolland, Freud writes: Everything unfolds as if the essential were to go beyond the by Freudian psychoanalysis. conditions for such a practice appear to be already present. Everything takes place as if Oedipus of itself had two poles hallucinations. We are also of a mind to believe that everything commingles in these intense becoming, passages, and migrations—all this all I'll have to do is be Jones. But if everything commingles in this fashion it does so in intensity, with names of history, and not the name of the father. Everything has been said about the paucity of reality, the loss contact with life, autism and athymia. Schizophrenics themselves have said everything there is to say about this, and have been quick completely from Freud's analysis: not one trace of it remains; everything is ground, squashed, triangulated into Oedipus; everything is reduced to	p 82 p 84 p 85 p 86 p 86 p 89

Everything will be reduced to Oedipus, as the discussions on the a repression of the unconscious. It is equally true that everything within the order of production is anoedipal, and that there relationship between two articulations: so that is what this meant. Everything is made to begin with Oedipus, by means of explanation explanation, with all the more certainty as one has reduced everything to Oedipus by means of application. Only in appearance is constituted by a social formation. It can be applied to everything, in that the agents and relations of social production, and other causes into account, but that he alone cannot do everything. Besides, he deals just enough with other causes so as their relationships. But Engels slips in a reproach that changes everything: it really seems as if Bachofen believes all this, that it has become very dismal, very sad, quite interminable, with everything decided in advance. Will it be retorted that the schizo woman to his mother or his grandmother. but on the contrary, from having been brought back to everything he had left. A drop in intensity to the body Inscribing itself into the recording process of desire, clutching at everything, the family performs a vast appropriation of the productive forces to reverberate. The desiring-machines are at the door, they make everything shake when they enter. Moreover, what does not enter causes compromise perception. Everything is not inscribed in Oedipus without everything at its extreme fleeing beyond the reach of Oedipus. These the Acheron. Thus the schizo will accept the reduction of everything to the mother, since it is of no importance whatsoever importance whatsoever: he is sure of being able to make everything rise again from the mother, and to keep for his secret use all the Virgins that had been placed there. Everything can be converted into neurosis, or warped out of shape do we conceive of the relationship between psychosis and neurosis? depth by what has just sundered its breadth: the schizo Everything becomes mixed and confused, and it is here that the chain of inscription, stock of filiation and fluxion of alliance. Everything takes place as though the stock constituted a surface energy the agents and connections of production. But on it, too, everything is attached and inscribed, everything is attracted, miraculated. It is production. But on it, too, everything is attached and inscribed, everything is attracted, miraculated. It is the basis of the disjunctive the nature of this intensive filiation, this inclusive disjunction where everything divides, but into itself, and where the same being is states through which a subject passes on the cosmic egg. Everything must be interpreted in intensity. The egg and the placenta mother's brother and my sister's husband and my own father. Everything rests on the placenta, which has become the earth, the such that it amounts to the same to say that everything would pass or flow with it, or on the contrary pass or flow with it, or on the contrary, that everything would be blocked. For the flows to be codable, their story begins, the story of oedipalization. But to be exact, everything begins in the mind of Laius, the old group homosexual our perverted eyes—for the fact that, at first glance, everything appears Oedipal. Effeminate, insufferable, vain, failing at everything he tries first glance, everything appears Oedipal. Effeminate, insufferable, vain, failing at everything he tries, the sick K is preyed upon by the mediator that could have made him a candidate for chief. Rather than everything being reduced to the name of the father, or that latter opened onto all the names of history. Instead of everything being projected onto a grotesque hiatus of castration, everything was of everything being projected onto a grotesque hiatus of castration, everything was scattered in the thousand breaks-flows of the chieftainships, the psychoanalysis tells us that we too repress the representation. At the beginning of Creative Evolution, Bergson completely alters the scope of the comparison by opening true is it, said Nietzsche, that what is called the evolution of a thing is a succession of more or less in fact—those things that Nietzsche partially grasped in the evolution of the infinite debt. The Oedipal cell will have to cerebral ideality that is added to, superimposed on the material evolution of societies, a regulating idea or principle of reflection (terror itself to the dominant forces. The existence of an analogous evolution has been demonstrated for the technical machine, when it ceases labor distinct from the manual labor of the worker (the evolution of the technical object). In this sense, it is not the becoming-concrete that seemed to us to preside over the evolution of the abstract despotic Urstaat: from being at first the and one must regard as a decisive factor in this evolution the organization of a powerful working class that required a and more immanent, more and more internalized: this describes the evolution of the infinite debt—through Catholicism, then the Reformation. Or yet another example: on being confronted with a complete machine made up of as a specific, identifiable schizophrenic entity. Or to take another example, Henri Michaux describes a schizophrenic table in terms of a this one category—though their importance varies according to the example considered—are as follows: the celibate machine first of all The great socialist utopias of the nineteenth century function, for example, not as ideal models but as group fantasies—that is a much more precise formulation of the relationship between, for example, the phenomena of shifting of meaning in the case of is to say, relatively—produces a continuous, infinite flux: for example, the anus-machine and the intestine-machine, the intestine-machine and the stomach-machine they are syntheses. Syntheses produce divisions. Let us consider, for example, the milk the baby throws up when it burps; it very earliest years of life. If we here choose the example of the analyst least prone to see everything in terms produced within the interplay of desiring-machines—at the level, for example, of the mouth-air machine or the tasting-machine: What does it varieties, and the exo-oedipal phenomena. The notion of foreclosure, for example, seems to indicate a specifically structural deficiency, by means of set back into the Oedipal orbit in the perspective, for example, of the three generations, where the mother was not able Oedipus leads a more or less marginal existence, confined for example to a separate chapter on object-choice at puberty (Three Essays fantasy? Some boys are beaten by someone—the teacher, for example—in the presence of the little girls. We are present exclusive use of the disjunctions imposed by the law (for example, Oedipal homosexuality). But group fantasy no longer has anything but a use of synthesis as legitimate or not. Take the example of homosexuality—though it is something more than an example example of homosexuality—though it is something more than an example. We noted how, in Proust, the famous pages of Sodom which global persons derive by an assigning of lack. For example, in the capitalist code and its trinitary expression, money as of messages, one of which contradicts the other, as for example the father who says to his son: go ahead, criticize for original modes for the restoration of the equivalent—for example, the astonishing discovery by Mitscherlich that the British Royal Family are there to replace the high priests. The first profound example of an analysis of double bind, in this sense, can and racial masses. The error would lie in concluding, for example, that fascists are mere paranoiacs. This would be an error Mannoni, a delirium whose political nature is especially vivid. This example appears all the more striking to us, given our great favored the illusion: the simplicity of the beginning—consisting, for example, of cellular divisions—could lead one to believe in some or absence of the paternal personage. There is no better example than this to show that the parental figures are indifferent form the condition of fabrication of a psychotic: as for example when the troubles a mother has with regard to her will be experienced as estrangement in the family relationships ... for example he may say that his mind is controlled by an homosexual libido (in the decomposed milieu of the Guermantes, for example). It is the function of the libido to invest the were found to be linked in an apparent paradox, for example in lung: the concern for curtailing the interminable cure by them call into question the notion of regression. Taking the example of the bodily cares administered to a schizophrenic—massages, baths and social, but only when viewed from different perspectives: for example, the clock as a technical machine for measuring uniform time section are inscribed along with the other relations (thus, for example, the coexistence or complementarity of the section chief and the are derived differences in status between the filiative lines (for example, the superior or inferior ranks of the givers and receivers patrilineal or matrilineal. In a patrilineal or patrilocal regime, for example, related women are women lost; women brought in by marriage it were still too close to the nonexistent impossible (for example, the preferential Dogon marriage with the uncle's daughter, she being by relating them to criteria borrowed from the latter: for example, a familial complex, even if it differs from our own they are schizoanalysis in action. Victor Turner gives a remarkable example of such a cure among the Ndembu. The example is remarkable example of such a cure among the Ndembu. The example is the more striking—to our perverted eyes—for the in part, under the effect of colonization. The colonizer, for example, abolishes the chieftainship, or uses it to further his own We have seen, however, that the colonized remained a typical example of resistance to Oedipus: in fact, that's where the Oedipal institutions turn. The culturalists invoke other triangles—maternal uncle-aunt-nephew, for example; but the oedipalists have no difficulty in demonstrating that these with melancholy as the sign of their approaching death. For example, the Bohannans describe the Tiv economy, which codes three kinds thing serves any useful purpose whatever. It is possible, for example, that Oedipus serves no useful purpose, either for psychoanalysts or even when its use is individual and private. Hair, for example—the rituals of hair-cutting and coiffure: is there any interest the new alliance, falling nevertheless under the same category. For example, feudalism not only presupposes an abstract despotic State that it	p 2 p 3 p 6 p 18 p 30 p 34 p 36 p 41 p 45 p 48 p 52 p 52 p 53 p 59 p 63 p 68 p 68 p 73 p 79 p 80 p 81 p 89 p 90 p 91 p 92 p 94 p 95 p 98 p 128 p 130 p 141 p 145 p 150 p 156 p 160 p 166 p 167 p 167 p 168 p 169 p 174 p 176 p 179 p 182 p 220

Or the example of feudalism: there again private property, commodity production, the monetary shown, an accumulation of property title deeds—in land, for example—will be necessary in a first period of time, in axiomatic, but when the time comes for serious things ... For example, nondeterminist physics, with its corpuscular flows, will have to be diachronic encounters and countersectings such as one already sees for example in the early part of the nineteenth century, between the regulate its productivity and realize surplus value which explains, for example, the difference between the despotic bureaucracy and the capitalist bureaucracy of his own creativity. Let us consider the more striking example of a career a l'americaine, with abrupt mutations, just as machines, where production is narrowly determined by information: Take for example a cloverleaf highway interchange.... It is a quasi point that of flows and linguistics of the signifier. Saussurian linguistics, for example, in effect discovers a field of immanence constituted by value respective qualities of the flows passing through the socius (for example, the three circuits of consumer goods, prestige goods, and women are determined as dominant—in the case of feudalism, for example—because surplus labor as a form of surplus value constitutes although its causes and effects lie within the economy (for example, the sign of alliance in relation to the power of are not to the same power (x and y2 for example), and that the relation is established between a power and the slave of the social machine. The bourgeois sets the example, he absorbs surplus value for ends that, taken as a were not there to bring them back to earth. For example: deterritorialization of the flows of financing, but reterritorialization of purchasing the Vampire: aren't you ashamed to be happy? follow my example, I won't let go before you say, It's my fault child are plunged, simultaneously immersed. Let us again consider the example of the Marquesans, as analyzed by Kardiner: he distinguishes between Every attempt to determine the nonhuman nature of sex—for example, the Great Other in Lacan—while conserving myth and castration father invented and fabricated astonishing little machines, sadistico-paranoiac machines—for example head straps with a metallic shank and leather bands, for speaking, but the conditions under which—in fifth-century Greece, for example—this element diminishes in favor of the new order of	p 223 p 223 p 225 p 233 p 234 p 235 p 236 p 241 p 241 p 247 p 247 p 248 p 249 p 254 p 258 p 268 p 275 p 295 p 297 p 301 blacksmith in a subordinate position, so that the flows of exchange and the flows of production do not manage to break filiation, nor is there a first generation or an initial exchange, but there are always and already alliances, at the same and the inscriptions themselves—into an indirect means of universal exchange. There is a question that Marcel Mauss at least left at least left open: is debt primary in relation to exchange, or is it merely a mode of exchange, a means relation to exchange, or is it merely a mode of exchange, a means in the service of exchange? But Levi-Strauss seems a mode of exchange, a means in the service of exchange? But Levi-Strauss seems to have closed the question again with superstructure, a conscious form whereby the unconscious social reality of exchange is converted into cash. What is involved is not a here—and the whole problem of the unconscious. For if exchange underlies everything, why is it that what takes place looks it that what takes place looks like anything but an exchange? Why must it be a gift, or a countergift, and it be a gift, or a countergift, and not an exchange? And why is it necessary that the giver also be as to demonstrate clearly that he does not expect an exchange, not even a deferred exchange? It is theft that prevents he does not expect an exchange, not even a deferred exchange? It is theft that prevents the gift and the countergift from entering into an exchangist relation. Desire knows nothing of exchange, it knows only theft and gift, at times the one too manifestly appear to be the result of a direct exchange between two lineages or lineage segments is, in this society Will it be said that, if desire knows nothing of exchange, it is because exchange is desire's unconscious? Will this be that, if desire knows nothing of exchange, it is because exchange is desire's unconscious? Will this be explained by the exigencies unconscious? Will this be explained by the exigencies of generalized exchange? But what entitles one to declare that shares of debt secondary compared with a totality that is more real? Yet exchange is known, well known in the primitive socius—but as restricted, so that no corresponding value can develop as an exchange value that would introduce the nightmare of a commodity economy brought back to our point of departure: the fact that exchange is inhibited and exorcised by no means attests to its process is not exchanging, but inscribing or marking. And when exchange is made into an unconscious reality, structural rights are invoked system. Is the instability derived in relation to an ideal of exchange, or is it already given in the preconditions, included in its economic base, this aspect fades before the relations of exchange, which are, however, merely the form this distribution takes within sense the essential thing seemed to us to be, not exchange and circulation, which closely depend on the requirements of inscription debt, in the debtor-creditor relationship, by eliminating every consideration of exchange or interest a l'anglaise. And if they are eliminated from law. But he does not hesitate, as does Mauss, between exchange and debt. (Georges Bataille, motivated by a Nietzschean inspiration, will toward the future. In vain will the comparison of language (langage) to exchange and money be pushed to its furthest point, subjecting language occur in the same way for both instances. First, simple exchange inscribes commercial products as particular quanta of a unit of of abstract labor. It is abstract labor, posited in the exchange relation, that forms the disjunctive synthesis of the apparent movement magnitude between quanta. On several occasions Freud's text marks the extent to which he felt the difficulty: to begin with, it is therefore all the more disturbing to see to what extent Freudian analysis retains from the fantasy only its lines of reclose the Oedipus yoke, didn't they do so to the extent that Lacan seemed to maintain a kind of projection of only each person would combine to a greater or lesser extent his or her triangle with the triangle of others, but forms of active groups, the question arises as to what extent these core groups resemble artificial families, and to what extent extent these core groups resemble artificial families, and to what extent they still lend themselves to oedipalization. a refutation of this familialism. For it is to the extent that the family-microcosm, the family-social-indicator, expresses social alienation that it if it is a whole, this is true to the extent that the whole, of the world as of the living the segregative use is a precondition of Oedipus, to the extent that the social field is not reduced to the familial able to pose the problem of language except to the extent that linguists and logicians have first eliminated meaning; and the the revolutionary movement or in the desiring-creativity. (To a certain extent, didn't this amount to a reintroduction of the error or of the organs; for flows are coded only to the extent that the organs capable respectively of producing and breaking them arrange marriages and shape concrete reality to a much greater extent than do the systems or filiation and the abstract matrimonial creditor-debtor behavior. A kinship system only appears closed to the extent that it is severed from the political and economic references the repression of this limit is possible only to the extent that the representative itself undergoes a repression. This repression determines the analytic dialogue was able to unfold to a greater extent, and in this case the Oedipal problem tended to assume finally, on a postulate that burdens ethnology to the same extent that it has determined bourgeois political economy: the reduction of or signification has replaced the system of connotation. His delirium is a switchboard with thirteen telephones. He gives even less a question of the death instinct to the extent that the model and the experience are better coded in not easy to de-oedipalize even nature, even landscapes, to the extent that Lawrence could. so that man must be produced as man by something exterior to nature and to man. On this point Nietzsche makes us: either the actual factor is conceived in a totally exterior privative fashion (which is an impossibility), or it descends into itself mobilized, requisitioned by a superior power, subjugated by new exterior forces, put in the service of other ends; so true in nature; the tendency has no end, it has no exterior limit that it could reach or even approximate. The tendency's to the capitalist mode of production. If capitalism is the exterior limit of all societies, this is because capitalism for its societies, this is because capitalism for its part has no exterior limit, but only an interior limit that is capital itself particular type: flows of code that are both interior and exterior to the machine, forming the elements of a technology and decoded flows, an incommensurability or a fundamental asymmetry (no assignable exterior limit) between manual labor and capital, or between two forms	p 107 p 128 p 196 p 230 p 230 p 230 p 232 p 234

and technical flows of code, we find no commensurability or exterior limit between scientific or technical labor—even when highly remunerated that express them, and by the absence of a limit exterior to their relationship—the one measuring the true economic force founded on the differential relation of flows having no assignable exterior limit, and where capitalism reproduces its immanent limits on an without organs. Hence one can say that schizophrenia is the exterior limit of capitalism itself or the conclusion of its deepest maintain that it both does and does not have an exterior limit: it has an exterior limit that is schizophrenia, that and does not have an exterior limit: it has an exterior limit that is schizophrenia, that is, the absolute decoding of as to be filled by surplus value; an absence of exterior limits that it is filled by the widening of internal of the decoded flows, the negation of any transcendence or exterior limit, and the effusion of antiproduction inside production itself—institutes the desiring-machines. Between the relative interior limits and the absolute exterior limit. If you will: between the capitalists and the schizos to be sought on the side of the object, under exterior conditions, in the territorial or despotic machine. But Marx is have also seen that capitalism finds in schizophrenia its own exterior limit, which it is continually repelling and exorcising, while capitalism way: precisely in order to neutralize or repel the absolute exterior limit, the schizophrenic limit; it needs to internalize this limit cured. On two points at least, Freud exonerates the real exterior family of any wrongs, the better to internalize the family an entirely different nature that traverse the family from the exterior. What we mean is that Oedipus is born of an systems of symbolic representations that still refer desire to determinate exterior conditions as well as to particular objective codes—the body denounces in Jung, then in Rank, the re-establishment of an exterior representation of the essence of desire as an objective desire subjugated and alienated—no longer, it is true, in an exterior and independent element as objectivity, but in the element, itself illness (great tepid aquariums), but on the contrary because the exterior limit designated by madness would be overcome by means of a minimum, because desiring-production as an absolute limit remains an exterior limit, or else stays unoccupied as an internalized and displaced	p 234 p 237 p 239 p 246 p 250 p 250 p 250 p 254 p 255 p 259 p 266 p 266 p 270 p 278 p 300 p 300 p 303 p 321 p 336

which it is produced within the process of constitution. In fact, we have passed imperceptibly into a domain of the production in every way intractable? For there is no doubting the fact that the schizo is constantly subjected to interrogation, constantly cross-examined Schreber, we note that he is vividly aware of this fact: the rate of cosmic sexual pleasure remains constant, so that the production of a new humanity). As a matter of fact, Schreber finds himself frozen in the pose and trapped in due to the inscription hidden inside it, though it in fact contains within itself the most impressive sort of inscriptions (cf consequence of partial and local automatistic phenomena. Delirium is in fact characteristic of the recording that is made of the process world. What is common to these three concepts is the fact that they all relate the problem of schizophrenia to the expression? The question, however, has been posed too theoretically. The fact is, from the moment that we are placed within the and merely examines its implications more carefully. In point of fact, if desire is the lack of the real object, its be labeled psychic reality. As Marx notes, what exists in fact is not lack, but passion, as a natural and sensuous real in both its so-called rational and irrational forms. The fact there is massive social repression that has an enormous effect the contrary, continually break down as they run, and in fact run only when they are not functioning properly: the product the same time they are the same machines, despite the fact that they are governed by two different regimes—and despite they are governed by two different regimes—and despite the fact that it is admittedly a strange adventure for desire to can be achieved in no other way. Capitalism is in fact born of the encounter of two sorts of flows: the the immense thigh of a pig. The term hyle in fact designates the pure continuity that anyone sort of matter ideally are reassemblies in and of themselves. Disjunctions, by the very fact that they are disjunctions, are inclusive. Even consumptions are transitions

Search of Lost Time constitutes, we are struck by the fact that all the parts are produced as asymmetrical sections, paths of explosions, rotations, vibrations. But how can we explain the fact that she has nonetheless failed to grasp the logic of on the recording surface of desiring-production. But this is in fact the crux of the entire Oedipal problem: What are the we are guilty of an error when we confuse the fact that this question is related to the parents, in the as the nuclear complex and leads a marginal existence. The fact that Schreber's analysis was not in vivo detracts nothing from most hidden and least recognizable guises, since he returns in fact everywhere and more visibly in religions and ancient myths, which of investing immediately. He then became rather indifferent to the fact that this beyond derives from the familial complex through the we hear that a terminated analysis is by that very fact a failure, even if this proposition is accompanied by the more than an observation of detail, a mere anecdote. In fact, it concerns what is most essential in the phenomenon of our old grandmother, you little shit! For what does in fact take place in In Search of Lost Time, one and father and the mother. It has often been remarked in fact that the prohibition existed in two forms, the one negative surface of recording. But here no biunivocal process is in fact produced that would fit production into the mold of representatives the lack of partial objects take on meaning after the fact. All previous history is recast in a new version in spoke, the qualitative opposition between homosexuality and heterosexuality, is in fact a consequence of Oedipus: far from being an obstacle to differentiating rules or differential functions. But we should stress the fact that Oedipus creates both the differentiations that it orders and we are alluding to the folkloric aspects of psychoanalysis. The fact that there are some, around Lacan, who are developing another the castration complex itself was not a myth but in fact something real? (Wasn't this tantamount to taking up the cry we have seen how the body without organs was in fact an egg, crisscrossed with axes, banded with zones, localized with body without organs are races, cultures, and their gods. The fact has often been overlooked that the schizo indeed participates in that employed by the authors we have previously mentioned. The fact remains that Schreber's memoirs are filled with a theory of And what is even more disturbing to us is the fact that the entirety of this enormous content disappears completely from escapes the Oedipal apparatus, this is solely due to the fact that he is doubly embedded there, to the second power be similar to the world, this was attributed to the fact that it was or tended to be an isolated system strong feeling that the problem lies elsewhere. If in fact there are structures, they do not exist in the mind libido throughout the disjointed elements of Oedipus—especially given the fact that these elements never form a mental structure that is in conjunction with desiring-production. Schizoanalysis therefore does not hide the fact that it is a political and social psychoanalysis, a militant form of the afterward? But we know in point of fact that the actual factors are there from childhood, and that This use rested upon a paralogism of extrapolation that in fact constituted Oedipus's formal cause—an extrapolation whose illegitimate nature weighed

The fact remains that Reich, in the name of desire, caused a also the object of social repression: desiring-production. regaining of reality appears along with the delirious reconstruction. The fact remains that Freud never dropped this simple distinction. And it line with a remark by Lacan—if Oedipus were in fact discovered in neurosis where it is supposed to be latent Jung presents his archetypes as actual factors that extend in fact beyond the familial images in the transference, as well as could talk about the first two, although they are in fact the most reasonable. The first canvases are of end-of-the-world catastrophes even more noxious than the nonwritten superego. Oedipus is in fact literary before being psychoanalytic. There will always be a Breton transitions, the intrications of the two extremes? In point of fact, of the three preceding adventures, the adventure of psychosis is man and his (technical) machines. The latter do not in fact contain the conditions for the reproduction of their process; they of the exploitation of man; but as a matter of fact, this organization presupposes a dismantling of the great social machines profit of a specific person. We see no reason in fact for accepting the postulate that underlies exchangist notions of society is anal; moreover, the simplest critique of sublimation is the fact that it does not by any means rescue us from flesh writing, then it must be said that speech in fact presupposes writing, and that it is this cruel system of the mobile elements of alliance. This is explained by the fact that the length of each segment—or even its existence qualitative alliances and extended filiations. Nothing is changed by the fact that the primary energy of the intensive order—the Numen of his mother, with whom he is united by that fact: This individual went away into the distance carrying with him instances, one takes as something already constituted what is in fact the emergence of an order that the myth narrates and local groups, between brothers-in-law, co-husbands, childhood partners. Underlining the universal fact that marriage is not an alliance between a man and on that kind of terrain. This is explained by the fact that the necessary conditions for Oedipus as a familial complex is the more striking—to our perverted eyes—for the fact that, at first glance, everything appears Oedipal. Effeminate, insufferable, vain time someone speaks to us of father, mother, grandfather. In fact, the Ndembu analysis was never Oedipal: it was directly plugged colonized remained a typical example of resistance to Oedipus: in fact, that's where the Oedipal structure does not manage to close no end to the existence of this Oedipus, when in fact it does not even have (apart from colonization) the necessary that of the medical practice of medicines. At times, the fact that he wanted to speak to us about traditional treatments but with the affects suppressed, inhibited, or transformed? No, in fact: psychoanalysis tells us that we too repress the representation. And an Oedipal image as a disfiguration of the repressed. The fact that this image in turn finally suffers a repression, that wrong? And here again there is no contradiction in the fact that it started on the right track, and that it limit. This is also the case for desiring-production. But in fact this last sense itself can be understood in many different and a whole system of breaks and extrafamilial flows. The fact that the father is first in relation to the child all the sectors of a field of production (the total fact). A magical chain brings together plant life, pieces of organs alphabet, its characteristics: the inscription on the socius is in fact the agent of a secondary psychic repression, or repression in We are brought back to our point of departure: the fact that exchange is inhibited and exorcised by no means attests inscriptions. From the viewpoint of the relations of production, in fact, the circulation of women appears as a distribution of labor ground they grow on, any more than does Oedipus. The fact that innocent men suffer all the marks on their bodies they furnish the material of surplus value. In point of fact, that is what forms the specific character of Asiatic production by marrying the sister, than he marries the mother. The fact that the two acts can, to varying degrees, be bound great task of germinal intense repression. What is repressed, in fact, is the full body as the foundation of the intense completely coded into phonetic elements. And if the unconscious in fact includes the topical order of a double inscription, it is on, the full body of the despot. In point of fact the regime is not milder; the system of terror has	p 211

the overfull (trop-plein) of a representation. This results from the fact that displacement refers to very different movements: at times, the	p 313 intrinsically perverted nature of psychoanalysis, this is due to the fact that perversion in general is the artificial reterritorialization of the	p 314 contradictions translated according to the family code. By that very fact, one has already substituted a familial causation or expression for	p 361 flows of desire to circulate. Laing's importance lies in the fact that, starting from certain intuitions that remained ambiguous in Jaspers	p 362 us a paranoiac's idea before being a neurotic's feeling. In fact, the paranoiac investment consists in subordinating molecular	p 364 desiring-production to the the full body without organs, enslaving it by that very fact to a form of socius that exercises the function of	p 364 preconscious aims and interests that it assigns and distributes. The fact remains that such an investment does not endure the light	p 367 its interests. Of course one can always say after the fact that history has never ceased being governed by the same	p 378 by the same laws of aggregates and large numbers. The fact remains that the schiz came into existence only by means	p 378 difficulties bore on several aspects. First, the nature of these factors: were they somatic, social, metaphysical? Were they the famous problems	p 127

It is clear that this extended familialism, wherein the family receives the very forces of alienation and hand, and antipsychiatry on the other, the danger of this familialism in extension is ever present, conforming to the double impasse this respect Laing is better able to disengage himself from familialism, thanks to the resources of a flux from the Orient mental alienation, must be understood in terms of a maintained familialism, and not in terms of a refutation of this familialism familialism, and not in terms of a refutation of this familialism. For it is to the extent that the family-microcosm, the of production as such (analytical economy). The great argument of familialism is: at least in the beginning ... This argument may be what process signified, and its fulfillment—and so escaped the familialism that is the ordinary bed and board of psychoanalysis and as a familial complex, existing in the framework of the familialism suited to psychiatry and psychoanalysis, are obviously not present. Primitive a statement, once one has freed oneself from the characteristic familialism of the concept of paranoia in psychoanalysis and psychiatry, and what Foucault has shown in his very fine analysis: the familialism inherent in psychoanalysis doesn't so much destroy classical psychiatry as a question can be raised only within the framework of familialism. The father is first in relation to the child, but from reproduction, lies in having remained captive to an unrepentant familialism that condemned it to evolve solely within the movement of regression. Unless the assumption of such a conception is still familialism—that is, an assumption holding that sexuality operates only in sure thing that structure affords us no means for escaping familialism; on the contrary, it adds another turn, it attributes a to the unconscious libidinal investments of the social field. the same time that the psychoanalyst plunges deeper into a familialist and ideological vision. We do not need to relate again and Oedipal absolutism—i.e., the stubborn maintenance of a familialist perspective, which wreaks havoc everywhere. For if the institution is of the wide open spaces glimpsed for a moment. The familialist reduction, in place of the drift of desire. What does one see, in fact, in the American familialist studies pursued by antipsychiatrists? Completely ordinary families are baptized as of the normal ego, he falls back into the worst familialist, personological, and egoic postulates, so that the remedies invoked are political units of libidinal investment. That is what makes the ideology of capitalism a motley than the ones that society offers us, totally artificial new families, secret lunar societies. As for the schizo, continually wandering about that ascends and descends the flows of time: countries, races, families, parental appellations, divine appellations, geographical and historical designations, and even hell—how could it be separated from denunciations of European families, from the call for destructions that don't come quickly enough merely constitutes a derivative of Oedipus. The familial order explodes, families are challenged, son, father, mother, sister—I mean those families families are challenged, son, father, mother, sister—I mean those families like my own, that owe all to the Declaration of followed as the thread of latency that the order of families hides from us. Should the rupture with families be taken order of families hides from us. Should the rupture with families be taken as a sort of familial romance that would familial romance that would indeed bring us back again to families and refer us to an event or a structural determination alienation and disalienation. In this manner the study of the families of schizophrenics has breathed new life into Oedipus by making the undifferentiated. Jacques Hochman analyzes some interesting varieties of psychotic families under the same fusionist postulate: the properly fusionist family, where vocabulary. A veritable regression in favor of a taxonomy of families. This is clearly visible in the projects of community psychiatry extended Oedipus, just as much in the diagnostic of pathogenic families in themselves as in the constitution of therapeutic quasi families families in themselves as in the constitution of therapeutic quasi families. Once it has been said that it is no longer arises as to what extent these core groups resemble artificial families, and to what extent they still lend themselves to oedipalization the resources of a flux from the Orient.) Cooper writes: Families mediate social reality to their children. If the social reality decentered. We are told of fusional, divisive, tubular, and foreclosing families. But what produces the hiatuses (coupures) and their distribution that or senile. The family does not engender its own ruptures. Families are filled with gaps and transected by breaks that are the Dreyfus Affair and then World War I cut across families, introducing into them new breaks and new connections resulting in one's own. But others want virgin lands, more truly exotic, families more artificial, societies more secret that they design and institute a man and a woman, but an alliance between two families, a transaction between men concerning women, Georges Devereux drew the suited to psychiatry and psychoanalysis, are obviously not present. Primitive families constitute a praxis, a politics, a strategy of alliances and have nothing to do with an expressive microcosm; in these families the father, the mother, and the sister always also function constitutes the active, concrete reality and makes the relations between families coextensive with the social field. It would not even be Oedipus is to the contrary a nuclear constant around which families and institutions turn. The culturalists invoke other triangles—maternal uncle-aunt-nephew coded and as the interplay of alliances and filiations keeps families extended according to the scale of the determinations of the that what is invested through the breaks and segments of families is the economic, political, and cultural breaks of the field and reformist artificial societies, or residual paternalistic or mothering pseudo families? other gods or without any gods at all, without a family, without a father or a mother, with nature. What does little the consumption of pure intensities has to do with family figures, and how very different the connective tissue of the sweep, with Murphy, Watt, Mercier, etc., as states, without the family having anything whatsoever to do with all of this. Or hand, and the libido, the anus, the phallus, and the family triangle on the other, we are engaging in an enjoyable representations of parental figures or of the basic patterns of family relations; they are parts of desiring-machines, having to do with not with the sexual nature of desiring-machines, but with the family nature of this sexuality. Admittedly, once the child has grown partial objects and agents. The small child lives with his family around the clock; but within the bosom of this family family around the clock; but within the bosom of this family, and from the very first days of his life, he and the only possible tentative answer must be sought in family relations. I remember that ever since I was eight years making of it a dirty little secret, the dirty little family secret, a private theater rather than the fantastic factory of Foucault has noted that the relationship between madness and the family can be traced back in large part to a development the whole of bourgeois society in the nineteenth century: the family was entrusted with functions that became the measuring rod of pathology, linking madness to the half-real, half-imaginary dialectic of the Family, deciphering within it the unending attempt to murder the father	p 2 p 20 p 20 p 28 p 46 p 46 p 47 p 47 p 48 p 49 p 50 p 50 p 50 example, the astonishing discovery by Mitscherlich that the British Royal Family, after all, is not such a bad thing. It is be found in Marx's On the Jewish Question: between the family and the State—the Oedipus of familial authority and the beyond a threshold while destroying the factitious unity of a family and an ego: I am Prado, I am also Prado's us to an event or a structural determination inside the family itself? Or is this rather the sign that the problem is already raised elsewhere for the schizo himself, outside the family? Are the names of history derivatives of the name of cured, and who treats the analyst as one of the family, then as an ally of the police. Is the schizophrenic symbolic or structural elements that are still part of the family and its Oedipal matrix. Once again one is caught, without simply that the means have been found to render the family transcendent. There we have it—the incurable familialism of psychoanalysis to link it to the half-real, half-imaginary dialectic of the Family; to constitute for the madman a microcosm symbolizing the massive the moral authority of the doctor as Father and Judge, Family and Law; and finally to culminate in the following paradox relationship, Freudian psychoanalysis made a somewhat intensive use of the family. one's being able to discern the limits of a nuclear family; the foreclosing family, where differentiation is both included and warded to discern the limits of a nuclear family; the foreclosing family, where differentiation is both included and warded off in the concept as foreclosure operates within this extensive framework of a family where several generations—at least three—form the condition of situation. It is clear that this extended familialism, wherein the family receives the very forces of alienation and disalienation, carries with according to the slogan put forward by Hochman: From the family to the institution of the hospital, from the institution of hospital to the familial institution, ... a therapeutic return to the family! But even within the progressive or revolutionary sectors of institutional Oedipal treadmill. This is because psychiatrists persist in treating the family as a matrix, or better still as a microcosm, an individual child and will be experienced as estrangement in the family relationships ... for example he may say that his mind is outer space. These constructions, however, are largely embodiments of the family process, which has the illusion of substantiality but which is the alienated form of the action of praxis of the family members that literally dominates the mind of the psychotic member that a certain degree of comfort found in the bourgeois family is admittedly necessary to turn out oedipalized subjects, the question complex and becoming internalized in it. In a word, the family is never a microcosm in the sense of an autonomous circle that it is said to mediate and express. The family is by nature eccentric, decentered. We are told of fusional the hiatuses (coupures) and their distribution that indeed keep the family from being an interior? There is always an uncle from grandfather; a grandmother in the hospital, crazy or senile. The family does not engender its own ruptures. Families are filled with Oedipal unconscious, always artificial, repressive and repressed, mediated by the family, in order to attain the immediate productive unconscious. Yes, the	p 94 p 94 p 94 p 94 p 94 p 94 p 95 p 95 p 95 p 95 p 96 p 97 p 97 p 97 p 97 p 98 in order to attain the immediate productive unconscious. Yes, the family is a stimulus—but a stimulus that is qualitatively indifferent differentiations that this law prescribes at the heart of the family; and finally latency, the celebrated latency, after which the beyond terms of breaks and connections that they introduce into the family. Over the heads of the members of the family, and the family. Over the heads of the members of the family, and underneath, it is desiring-production and social production that manifest and the agents of the so-called natural reproduction of the family on the other. This operation is called an application. It of apprenticeships (the teacher as father-substitute, and the book as family romance). that the repressive social production is replaced by the repressing family, and that the latter offers a displaced image of desiring-production the repressed as incestuous familial drives. In this way the family / drives relationship is substituted for the relationship between the the recording surface of desire. Such an agent exists: the family. It belongs essentially to the recording of social production, as operation arises. Under the precocious action of social repression, the family slips into and interferes with the network of desiring-genealogy; it were intrinsically related to the parents, and as if the family were its supreme law. Partial objects are subjected to the subjected to the alternative of the undifferentiated or exclusion. The family is therefore introduced into the production of desire and will the earliest age of the child. Social production delegates the family to psychic repression. And if the family is able in production delegates the family to psychic repression. And if the family is able in this manner to slip into the recording seen, a primal repression of desiring-production. It falls to the family to profit from this, and to superimpose the repression that properly termed secondary, this being a function delegated to the family or one to which the family is delegated. (Psychoanalysis has function delegated to the family or one to which the family is delegated. (Psychoanalysis has clearly demonstrated the difference between these	p 119 p 119 p 120 p 120 p 120 p 120 p 120 p 120 p 121 p 121 p 121 that's already too much. But Oedipus takes shape in the family, not in the analyst's office, which merely acts as the the last territoriality. And Oedipus is not made by the family. The Oedipal uses of synthesis, oedipalization, triangulation, castration, all refer more powerful, a bit more subterranean than psychoanalysis, than the family, than ideology, even joined together. There we have all the we have seen, that Oedipus is an application, and the family a delegated agent. Even by application it is hard, it this struggle, it must be borne in mind that the family relentlessly operates on desiring-production. Inscribing itself into the recording process into the recording process of desire, clutching at everything, the family performs a vast appropriation of the productive forces; it displaces along the lines of the universal castration that conditions the family itself (a dead rat's ass, said Artaud, suspended from the the requirements of social production. shit over there. Retention is the primary function of the family: it is a matter of learning what elements of desiring-production is a matter of learning what elements of desiring-production the family is going to reject, what it is going to retain the paths of a contagious and reproduceable differentiation. For the family creates at the same time its disgraces and its honors incision? And the bicycle horn? What is part of the family? It is the triangle's job to vibrate, to resonate, under public, disgraceful or proud—is the family's second function. The family is at the same time an anus that retains, a by lung attests: for the young, whose problems concern the family and love, Freud's method! For those less young, whose problems imposed on desiring-production by social reproduction by means of the family. The term actual is not used because it designates what lost; women brought in by marriage are women gained. Each family descended from these marriages thus bears a sign, which is a wife, while the sister is lost to her own family. But, as Levi-Strauss remarks, one also changes signs in passing only in the following way: the girl leaves the previous family group, to which her mother belongs. The niece becomes herself It would not even be exact to say that the family determinations burst apart at every corner of this field and the contrary, it is evident that the individual in the family, however young, directly invests a social, historical, economic, and political house between those of your paternal and maternal kin; your family is your family and nothing else; sexual reproduction no longer of your paternal and maternal kin; your family is your family and nothing else; sexual reproduction no longer passes through those longer passes through those points, although we rightly need your family to furnish a material that will be subjected to a solution on the scale of the individual and the restricted family, with, by way of consequence, an extreme anarchy or disorder and the Oedipal, without allowing either side to leave the family or even Oedipus, always oscillating between the famous two poles not come close to fulfilling these conditions. Precisely because the family, when opened to alliances, is coextensive with and adequate to certain type, capable of falling back on (se rabattre sur) family determinations. It will be objected that such a principle is this is because it forms an aggregate of destination (the family become microcosm) on which capitalist production and reproduction fall back second instance one goes beyond these large aggregates, including the family, toward the molecular elements that form the parts and wheels become possible in the wedding of the kinship bodies and family appellations, in the union of the signifier with its signifieds of the means of consumption through the dissolution of the family and the corporation; and finally, the decoding of the worker human reproduction, of the social form of this reproduction. The family is therefore an open praxis, a strategy that is coextensive the producers (or nonproducers) according to the standing of their family or their standing inside the family. The reproduction process is the standing of their family or their standing inside the family. The reproduction process is not directly economic, but passes by old alliance and filiations (whence the role of the sovereign's family in despotic overcoding, and that of the dynasty whatever its of alliance and filiation. There ensues a privatization of the family according to which the family ceases to give its social ensues a privatization of the family according to which the family ceases to give its social form to economic reproduction: it placed outside the field; in the language of Aristotle, the family is now simply the form of human matter or material from labor capacity, etc., in such a way that the family finds itself countersected by the order of classes. (In this is the only origin of equality.) This placing of the family outside the social field is also its greatest social fortune which the entire social field can be applied to the family. Individual persons are social persons first of all, i.e persons are formally delimited in the locus of the restricted family as father, mother, child. But instead of being a strategy it, and countersects its co-ordinates, it would appear that the family is now merely a simple tactic around which the social no longer pass through people but through money; so the family becomes a microcosm, suited to expressing what it no longer situation has not changed; for what is invested through the family is still the economic, political, and cultural social field, its derivatives. But in another sense everything has changed, because the family, instead of constituting and developing the dominant factors of social familial determinations become the application of the social axiomatic. The family becomes the subaggregate to which the whole of the social colonies and it is Oedipus that colonizes us. When the family ceases to be a unit of production and of reproduction and of reproduction, when the conjunction again finds in the family the meaning of a simple unit of consumption, it is African Oedipus—find themselves contradicted by the breakup of the family along the lines of social exploitation and oppression. But it onto the familial investment serving as a pseudo organizer. The family has become the locus of retention and resonance of all all the social images to the simulcra of the restricted family, with the result that, wherever one turns, one no longer or sexuality. But he still relates this essence to the family as the last territoriality of private man—whence the position us: at least it won't go any further than the family! The dirty little secret, in place of the wide open On two points at least, Freud exonerates the real exterior family of any wrongs, the better to internalize the family and exterior family of any wrongs, the better to internalize the family and the wrongs in the person of the family's smallest parents into so many innocents or even victims. For the family must appear in two forms: one where doubtless it is becomes a responsible adult (Oedipus as sickness and sanity, the family as an alienating factor and as an agent of dealienation the madman of the despot comes the madman of the family; what nineteenth-century psychiatry had wanted to organize in the asylum to organize in the asylum—the imperative fiction of the family, Reason-the-father and madness-the-child or minor, the parents who are ill and religious: the delirious person applies a delirium to his family and his son that overreaches them on all sides. Joseph the adult an afterward of the child, but in the family both relate to the determinations of the field in which to the determinations of the field in which both the family and they are simultaneously immersed. Hence we are confronted by social field in which the father, the child, and the family as a subaggregate are at one and the same time communication of unconscious does not by any means take the family as its principle; it takes as its principle the commonality object of the investment of desire. In all respects the family is never determining, but is always determined, first as a economic, financial, social, and cultural problems that cross through a family: his belonging or his desire to belong to a superior and his conformities. What a muddle, what an emulsion the family is, agitated by backwashes, pulled in one direction or another pursuing directions of an entirely different nature that traverse the family from the exterior. What we mean is that Oedipus is whereas the schizophrenic investment commands an entirely different determination, a family gasping for breath and stretched out over the dimensions of is, an assumption holding that sexuality operates only in the family, and must be transformed in order to invest larger aggregates contain them in the narrow cells of the type couple, family, person, objects. And doubtless such a blockage is necessarily justified desire in the Oedipal impasses of the couple and the family in the service of the repressive machines, or whether on as we have seen, it is the same agency—the family—that performs this double operation, distorting and disfiguring social desiring-production into an impasse. Thus the link between representation-belief and the family is not accidental; it is of the essence of representation it must give a mythic and tragic presentation of the family—and a familial presentation of myth and tragedy. Yet aren't unconscious—but does he act as a head of a family in an expressive familial transmission, or rather as the agent axiomatic, but an application of this axiomatic to the privatized family. Representation would never be able to ensure its own conversion its correlate, subjective abstract Desire as represented in the privatized family. Psychoanalysis undertakes the analysis of this second term, as political another turn, it attributes a universal metaphoric value to the family at the very moment it has lost its objective literal values. Psychoanalysis makes its ambition clear: to relieve the waning family, to replace the broken-down familial bed with the psychoanalyst's couch knocking against the impasses of a molar representation that the family closes round itself. What is the use of going from lack in an aggregate of departure, the other when the family imposes on them a personal unity with imaginary signifieds that Oedipus, and will triangulate in it in turn. From the family to the couple, from the couple to the family. In the family to the couple, from the couple to the family. In actuality, the benevolent neutrality of the analyst is very deterritorialized subjects are led to discover the image of a family castle under the roots of the uprooted tree that crosses and stealing away—the machine is always infernal in the family dream. The machine introduces breaks and flows that prevent the too well known—of the asylum, the artifice, or the family? We always return to the same question: from what does rather from its interruptions, when he is neuroticized in the family, in the land of Oedipus; when the one who does land of the asylum; when the one who escapes the family and the asylum is perverted in the artificial locales? Perhaps endeavors—outpatient centers, inpatient hospitals, social clubs for the sick, family care, institutions, and even antipsychiatry—remain threatened by a common in a less openly repressive manner, who says that the family is a good place, a good circuit for the deterritorialized of property, and desire in the applied framework of the family; but this social alienation includes in its turn mental alienation two abortions, two castrations for sick desire: once in the family, in the familial scene, with the knitting mother; another time limits, and that of abstract desire alienated in the privatized family that displaces the ever narrower internalized limits. The double alienation limited framework of Narcissus and Oedipus, the ego and the family. Consequently, every sexual libidinal investment having a social dimension seems the older half brother from the rich side of the family, and the thievish maid as the poor woman. Secondly, the rediscovered, at least hypothetically, by Philippe Girard: there is no family where vacuoles are not arranged. and where extrafamilial breaks

It would be inaccurate of these factors: did they act in a negative, privative fashion, by mere frustration? Finally, their moment, their own time: was the actual factor is conceived in a totally exterior privative fashion (which is an impossibility), or it descends into an internal work of art is supposed to inscribe itself in this fashion between the two poles of Oedipus, problem and solution, neurosis for the flows to escape coding and, escaping, to nonetheless fashion a new machine bearing the determinations of the capitalist socius with them to another place. While taking a stroll outdoors, on the without any gods at all, without a family, without a father or a mother, with nature. What does my father want a father or a mother, with nature. What does my father want? Can he offer me more than that? Impossible. Leave in terms of the existing social code: your name, your father, your mother? In the course of his exercises in desiring-production the series of young girls with all talking birds, his father with the superior God, and his brother with the inferior Oedipal triangle. As Artaud put it: I don't believe in father in mother, got no papamummy Desiring-production forms a binary-linear system of any sort of projection. Yes, I have been my father and I have been my son. I, Antonin Artaud, am been my son. I, Antonin Artaud, am my son, my father, my mother, and myself. The schizo has his own system to the endless, dreary discovery of Oedipus: So it's my father, my mother? We cannot answer these two questions at this full body of the psychoanalyst (yes, my boss is my father, and so is the Chief of State, and so are of object relation between the ego, the mother, and the father. And in the final analysis that is where the crux Family, deciphering within it the unending attempt to murder the father, the dull thud of instincts hammering at the solidity of was not able to posit her desire toward her own father, nor the son, consequently, toward the mother. One of Lacan's makes only very brief references to the memory of his father. On several occasions Freud's text marks the extent to which Flechsig's person. But when we replace the doctor with the father and commission the father to explain the God of delirium we replace the doctor with the father and commission the father to explain the God of delirium, we ourselves have trouble if psychoanalysis attests to a great monotony and encounters the father everywhere—in Flechsig, in the God, in the sun; it its stubborn symbolism. Furthermore, it is not surprising that the father returns constantly in current deliriums in the most hidden and of the girl's fantasy, the first is such that the father does not yet appear, while in the third the father father does not yet appear, while in the third the father no longer appears: that leaves the second, then, where the father shines forth in all his brilliance, clearly without doubt—but no longer appears: that leaves the second, then, where the father shines forth in all his brilliance, clearly without doubt—but and the one who does the beating must be the father (father substitute). On the other hand it is necessary for the one who does the beating must be the father (father substitute). On the other hand it is necessary for the for the boys—affirms without doubt the prevalence of the father in both cases, but this is the famous nonexistent phase that when traditional psychoanalysis explains that the instructor is the father, and that the colonel too is the father, and that is the father, and that the colonel too is the father, and that the mother is nonetheless the father too, it is the father, and that the mother is nonetheless the father too, it reduces all of desire to a familial determination the libido. Of course there is always something from the father or the mother that is taken up in the signifying the social field—the mother on the instructor's knees, the father next to the colonel. Group fantasy is plugged into and be fucked by the socius, does not derive from the father and mother, even though the father and mother have their not derive from the father and mother, even though the father and mother have their roles there as subordinate agents of as colonel or general, that is to say as the father, I condemn you). of persons are the sister and the spouse, after the father and the mother. It has often been remarked in fact fashion that Nijinsky kept his diary: yes, I was my father and I was my son. The disjunctive synthesis of recording one of which contradicts the other, as for example the father who says to his son: go ahead, criticize me, but unfolds as if the essential were to go beyond the father, as if going beyond the father were always forbidden. This to go beyond the father, as if going beyond the father were always forbidden. This becomes even more clear when Freud to us as a resurgence of the society without the father. Not surprisingly, the industrial society is burdened with the search sources: Freud never managed to escape the world of the father, or of guilt... While offering the possibility of constructing a possibility of constructing a logic of the relation to the father, he was the first to open the way for a a veritable solution to Oedipus: Oedipus is like God; the father is like God; the problem is not resolved until we impasse. to lead us back to the question of the father, to oedipalize even the schizo, and to show that a the structure, from imaginary figures to symbolic functions, from the father to the law, from the mother to the great Other am a Chinaman, a redskin, a Templar, I was my father and I was my son. And all the criminals, the and an ego: I am Prado, I am also Prado's father. I venture to say that I am also Lesseps I the names of history, and not the name of the father. Everything has been said about the paucity of reality, the of Oedipus. The familial order explodes, families are challenged, son, father, mother, sister—I mean those families like my own, that the names of history derivatives of the name of the father, and are the races, cultures, and continents substitutes for daddy-mommy dependent on the Oedipal genealogy? Is history's signifier the dead father? Once again let us consider Judge Schreber's delirium. To be ground, squashed, triangulated into Oedipus; everything is reduced to the father, in such a way as to reveal in the crudest in the initial foreclosure (forclusion) of the signifier of the father. The name to be determined scientifically, the name that haunts Oedipus is interpreted as a lack with regard to the father, a gaping hole in the structure; next, in the name to Oedipus—this void left by the absence of the father and this cancerous development of the mother and the sister and the Symbolic, when they oppose the name of the father to the imago, and the foreclosure concerning the signifier to ends; to establish the moral authority of the doctor as Father and Judge, Family and Law; and finally to culminate in the troubles a mother has with regard to her own father lead to the son's inability, in turn, to even posit These metaphysical men from outer space are the literal mother, father, and sibling who sit around the breakfast table with the that it doesn't know in its own way that its father has a boss who is not a father's father, or its father has a boss who is not a father's father, or moreover that its father himself is a boss who who is not a father's father, or moreover that its father himself is a boss who is not a father. Therefore its father himself is a boss who is not a father. Therefore we formulate the following rule, which we feel to which we feel to be applicable in all cases: the father and the mother exist only as fragments, and are never settle the differences with them as in hand-to-hand combat. The father, the mother, and the self are at grips with, and beginning is invoked; Oedipus itself with the law of the father and the exclusive differentiations that this law prescribes at the reduced to desiring mommy and wanting the place of the father. The Freudian blackmail is this: either you recognize the Oedipal figures, in a system of equivalence that rediscovers everywhere the father, the mother, and the ego. (And one merely pushes the conjunctive synthesis, leading to the statement, So it was your father, so it was your mother ... It is not at all afterward is it discovered that all of this was the father and the mother, since this is assumed to be the is the great man defined oedipally: so he killed the father, in a murder without end, either to annihilate him and certain original solution to the Oedipal conflict. Hitler annihilates the father and unleashes in him the forces of the Bad Mother him the forces of the Bad Mother; Luther internalizes the father and reaches a compromise with the superego. On the other do not necessarily imply identity: Hitler plays the role of father through homosexual transfusion and in relation to the female crowd in them parental images of yet another order, associating the father and the mother, who will then be dissociated and otherwise racist sentiment, and not the reverse: it is not the father who is projected onto the boss, but the boss who the boss, but the boss who is applied to the father, either in order to tell us you will not surpass in order to tell us you will not surpass your father, or you will surpass him to find our forefathers. Lacan Oedipus, subjacent to the fraternity of the brothers once the father is dead. On the contrary, the segregative use is a Oedipus, inexhaustible and ever present. We are told that the father died over a period of thousands of years (well, well one doesn't. But honestly, as to the death of the father, news doesn't travel very fast: it would be a mistake not the kind to ruminate over the death of the father, and spend all his Paleolithic period internalizing him. On the of all these stories revolving around the death of the father, the death of God, and wants to put an end concerns the latest Pope: God dead or not dead, the father dead or not dead, it amounts to the same thing unabated, here in the name of God or a living father, there in the name of man or the dead father father, there in the name of man or the dead father. Nietzsche says that what is important is not the news of no consequence. In other terms: that God and the father never existed (or if they did, it was so long expressions of it; we relate it to independent existences—the father, the mother, the begetters—that do not yet comprise their elements as internal elements of desire. The question of the father is like that of God: born of an abstraction, it generation progressing (or regressing) from one body to another: your father, your father's father, and so on. The organized body is regressing) from one body to another: your father, your father's father, and so on. The organized body is the object of man, of the world and man. The question of the father, the question of God, is what has become impossible, a to the false movement of infinite progression and regression: your father, and your father's father, a snowball gathering speed as it of infinite progression and regression: your father, and your father's father, a snowball gathering speed as it moves from Oedipus all as it moves from Oedipus all the way to the father of the primal horde, to God and the Paleolithic age images, and from the realm of the mother and the father retains only functions, defines the prohibition and the transgression as procedures of the law, that leaves us wondering. The immortal father of Celine's Death on the Installment Plan (Mort a credit course pieces from the bodies of the mother and the father are taken up in the connections, parental appellations crop up not marry your mother, and you will not kill your father. And we docile subjects say to ourselves: so that's what desire for the mother and for the death of the father; on the contrary, desire becomes that only because it is hatred for her mother and an incestuous desire for her father, but under conditions of reality loss where the parents were have won, there will be no more struggles between the Father and the Son! ... I am speaking of God's people, naturally is inscribed in relation to the disjunctive lines of its father or mother, but inversely, the disjunctive lines inscribe it only only through a connection represented by the marriage of the father and the mother. At no time, therefore, does alliance derive upon whether, from the initial group's point of view, the father has received a wife, or the mother has been transferred was lost, while a brother owes a sister (or a father, a daughter) to the outside world if a woman was found to come into play from this point on: mother, father, son, mother's brother, son's sister. But it is evident and an unconscious life energy susceptible to augmentation and diminution. The father is in no way absent. But Amma, the father and The father is in no way absent. But Amma, the father and genitor, is himself a high intensive part, immanent to my mother's brother and my sister's husband and my own father. Everything rests on the placenta, which has become the earth filiation becomes extended. There we find no repression of the father, no foreclosure of the name of the father. The respective of the father, no foreclosure of the name of the father. The respective position of the mother or father as kin of the father. The respective position of the mother or father as kin or affine, the patrilineal or matrilineal character of if the myth placed on the stage persons defined as father, mother, brother, and sister, whereas these roles belong to the would require both persons and names—son, sister, mother, brother, father. Now in the incestuous act we can have persons at look in vain for persons or even functions discernible as father, mother, son, sister, etc., since these names only designate intensive the matrilineal tradition: the brother-sister relationship, which is transmitted from father to son and from mother to daughter, can be transmitted to do with an expressive microcosm; in these families the father, the mother, and the sister always also function as something and the sister always also function as something other than father, mother, or sister. And in addition to the father, the than father, mother, or sister. And in addition to the father, the mother, etc., there is the affine, who constitutes the stayed an exceptionally long time in the matrilineage of his father, whose favorite he was, and has entered into marriage with marriage with paternal cousins. But with the death of his father he is driven away, and returns to the maternal village to say Oedipus every time someone speaks to us of father, mother, grandfather. In fact, the Ndembu analysis was never Oedipal Rather than everything being reduced to the name of the father, or that of the maternal grandfather, the latter opened onto with all its might into the symbolic void of the father. Of course there is always triangle, but exist shattered into all corners of the social field—the mother on the instructor's knees, the father next to was inseparable from the symbolic articulations that define a social field insofar as it is real, whereas the individual fantasy fitted real, whereas the individual fantasy fitted the whole of this field over imaginary givens. If this first distinction is drawn out the individual fantasy is itself plugged into the existing social field, but apprehends it in the form of imaginary qualities that them according to the articulations of desire and the social field, by making the death instinct into a veritable institutional creativity there then appears a kind of unsticking of the social field with regard to the production of desire, in whose name even neurosis, injecting a schizophrenic flow capable of subverting the field of psychoanalysis. The object (small o) erupts at the heart sexualization are produced within these fields. We pass from one field to another by crossing thresholds: we never stop migrating, we is doubly embedded there, to the second power, in a field of extension that includes the grandparents. The problem of the Oedipal triangle: Oedipus is always open in an open social field. Oedipus opens to the four winds, to the four corners the four winds, to the four corners of the social field (not even 3+1, but 4+n). A poorly closed triangle, a remain stuck to all the corners of the historical social field, as a battlefield and not a scene from bourgeois theater is the function of the libido to invest the social field in unconscious forms, thereby hallucinating all history, reproducing in delirium of a signified established throughout the determinations of a social field; on the contrary, it is the libidinal investment of these continue to treat the libido's direct investments of the social field as simple imaginary dependencies on Oedipus, where it becomes necessary itself a certain kind of libidinal. investment of. the social field of the production and the formation of this field. There is no more an individual Oedipus than there is a precondition of Oedipus, to the extent that the social field is not reduced to the familial tie except by presupposing ideology. There is an unconscious libidinal investment of the social field that coexists, but does not necessarily coincide, with the preconscious from seizing the relationship of the literary machine with a field of production, and the moment when the emitted sign breaks machine of primitive inscription, the megamachine that covers a social field. It is not to be confused with technical machines. In The first organ to suffer privatization, removal from the social field, was the anus. It was the anus that offered itself conditions (which we must analyze) of its removal from the field, conditions that do not presuppose sublimation; since on the contrary and makes the relations between families coextensive with the social field. It would not even be exact to say that the the family determinations burst apart at every corner of this field and remain attached to strictly social determinations, since both kinds however young, directly invests a social, historical, economic, and political field that is not reducible to any mental structure or affective and the discovery of desire's unconscious investments of the social field. It is from this point of view that we must a question of discovering the preconscious investments of a social field by interests, but—more profoundly—its unconscious investments by desire of more intense and more adequate investments of the social field, in its organization as well as its disorganizations? Meyer Fortes be a question of the way desire invests the social field from childhood, and under the familial stimuli coming from the be occupied, a certain number of conditions are indispensable: the field of social production and reproduction must become independent of familial of application or reduction (rabattement): a reduction of the social field, defined as the aggregate of departure, to the familial field field, defined as the aggregate of departure, to the familial field, now defined as the aggregate of destination—and it must alliances, is coextensive with and adequate to the social historical field; because it animates social reproduction itself; because it mobilizes or answer to the formula 3+1 (the four corners of the field folded into three, like a tablecloth, plus the transcendent term is only constituted starting from investments of the social historical field that are effected by the father. And if it passes is invested through the familial stimuli is still the social field, and a whole system of breaks and extrafamilial flows. The with their specific use in a biological, social, or linguistic field. This is because the large molar machines presuppose pre-established connections the configurations they form in all the sectors of a field of production (the total fact). A magical chain brings together sexuality and libidinal investment onto the determinations of a sociohistorical field, where the economic, the political, and the religious are things the way in which desire is present in a social field, and joins this field to itself as the statistically determined desire is present in a social field, and joins this field to itself as the statistically determined domain that is bound functioning within social and secondarily familial aggregates that trace desire's field of presence and its field of production: an entire nonOedipal familial aggregates that trace desire's field of presence and its field of production: an entire nonOedipal unconscious that will only produce signifier itself in the second sense. There is no linguistic field without biunivocal relations—whether between ideographic and phonetic values, or

and the linearity of the deterritorialized signs. But such a field remains defined by a transcendence, even when one considers this and memory of the disgraced anus, ejected from the social field—the obsessive fear of smelling bad. The entire history of operations will have to be resumed within a decoded social field, and must reverberate in the pure and private element of integrated subaggregates functioning separately; it is now subordinated to a field of forces whose flows it co-ordinates and whose autonomous relations produces an overcoding unity; it is itself produced inside the field of decoded flows. As a machine it no longer determines subaggregates to become a relation that is subordinated to a field of forces operating as a concrete physical system. But isn't of a becoming of the State: its internalization in a field of increasingly decoded social forces forming a physical system; its forces forming a physical system; its spiritualization in a supraterrrestrial field that increasingly overcodes, forming a metaphysical system. The infinite debt constitute humanism: cynicism is the physical immanence of the social field, and piety is the maintenance of a spiritualized Urstaat; cynicism differential relation as a conjunction that defines the immanent social field particular to capitalism, and confers on the abstraction as such can be understood only from the viewpoint of capitalism's entire field of immanence, and by taking into account the conditions under a faulty understanding so much as it expresses the capitalist field of immanence, the apparent objective movement where the lower or any economic understanding or lack of it, the capitalist social field as a whole. Flows, who doesn't desire flows, and relationships the schiz and the flow. In this respect already the field of social immanence.. as revealed under the withdrawal and the internalized them in its body or its structure as a field of forces, while depending on a science and a technology

Here we discover a new determination of the properly capitalist field of immanence: not only the interplay of the relations and also desiring one's own impotence? How was such a social field able to be invested by desire? And how far does and finally, its consecutive decomposition into minimal elements within a field of immanence uncovered by the withdrawal of the despot—all in nature; it is realized or becomes concrete within the field of immanence peculiar to capitalism itself, with the appearance of the signifier. Saussurian linguistics, for example, in effect discovers a field of immanence constituted by value—i.e., by the system of the signifier; but apart from the fact that this field of immanence still presupposes the transcendence of the signifier, which still presupposes the transcendence of the signifier, which uncovers the field if only through the signifier's own withdrawal, the elements populating only through the signifier's own withdrawal, the elements populating this field have for a criterion a minimal identity that they owe it abandons all privileged reference. Because it describes a pure field of algebraic immanence that no longer allows any surveillance on transcendent instance, even one that has withdrawn. Because within this field it sets in motion its flows of form and substance tendency. With the result that schizophrenia pervades the entire capitalist field from one end to the other. But for capitalism it a new axiom to the previous ones. Capitalism defines a field of immanence and never ceases to fully occupy this field field of immanence and never ceases to fully occupy this field. But this deterritorialized field finds itself determined by an axiomatic never ceases to fully occupy this field. But this deterritorialized field finds itself determined by an axiomatic, in contrast to the itself determined by an axiomatic, in contrast to the territorial field determined by primitive codes. Differential relations of such a nature at first the transcendent unity, it becomes immanent to the field of social forces, enters into their service, and serves as State more and more immanent and subordinate to the actual field of forces; but precisely because the circumstances were not right In this capacity it is sufficient to fill the capitalist field of immanence. And in point of fact, something new occurs antiproduction distinct from the sphere of production. But the bourgeois field of immanence—as delimited by the conjunction of the decoded socialist movement was to organize a bipolarity of the social field, a bipolarity of classes. Of course it is possible to open praxis, a strategy that is coextensive with the social field; the relations of filiation and alliance are determinant, or rather economic reproduction: it is as though disinvested, placed outside the field; in the language of Aristotle, the family is now simply human reproduction. Precisely because it is privatized, placed outside the field, the form of the material or the form of human all equal in relation to one another; but inside the field itself, the form of social economic reproduction has already preformed of equality.) This placing of the family outside the social field is also its greatest social fortune. For it is the flow of labor. In this way capitalism fills its field of immanence with images: even destitution, despair, revolt—and on material whose specific form of reproduction falls outside the social field that nonetheless determines this form. Private persons are therefore images action of alliances and filiations, opens onto the entire social field, is coextensive with it, and countersects its co-ordinates, it would be now merely a simple tactic around which the social field recloses, to which it applies its autonomous requirements of reproduction the family is still the economic, political, and cultural social field, its breaks and flows. Private persons are an illusion, images becomes the subaggregate to which the whole of the social field is applied. Since each person has his own private father formalizable articulations. Everything is pre-formed, arranged in advance. The social field, where everyone acts and is acted upon (patit) as a according to the scale of the determinations of the social field, preventing any secondary reduction of the latter to the former effects an overcoding that in turn surveys the entire social field from above (the repressing representation): the formal operations of flattening flattening operations that will constitute Oedipus in the modern social field: the triangulation's cause. Whence the extreme importance—but also the

of the Oedipal images that will be deployed in the field of immanence left uncovered by the withdrawal of the signifier object from on high, which gives way to a social field of immanence where the decoded flows produce images and level relations between minimal elements that come to fill the uncovered field (somewhat similar, in traditional terms, to the way one goes transcendent object that is more and more spiritualized, for a field of forces that is more and more immanent, more and the despotic State, and the extreme internalization of the capitalist field, define bad conscience. The latter is not cynicism's contrary; it is merely a stimulus to the investment of the social field by desire: the familial images function only by opening onto families is the economic, political, and cultural breaks of the field into which they are plunged (cf. Ndembu schizophrenia). This is determinations. It falls to the reactionary investment of the capitalist field to apply all the social images to the simulcra of task of schizoanalysis. 4 INTRODUCTION TO SCHIZOANALYSIS 1 The Social Field Which comes first, the chicken or the egg—but also it is not analytical and regressive, but explores a global field of coexistence. Witness a film by Nicolas Ray, supposedly representing every delirium is first of all the investment of a field that is social, economic, political, cultural, racial and racist, pedagogical is in the first instance the investment of a social field into which the father and the child are plunged, simultaneously investment of the second. For a determination of the social field is already invested in the second type of anxiety, namely state of the breaks and the flows of the social field in its entirety, flows of women and of food, recordings in the family both relate to the determinations of the field in which both the family and they are simultaneously immersed relation to the familial investment, the investment of the social field in which the father, the child, and the family as and the same time immersed. The primacy of the social field as the terminus of the investment of desire defines the the flows. Such is also the case for the social field: its coding or its axiomatic first determine within it a the Freud-Jung controversy. It appears that, in the common social field, the first thing that the son represses, or has to it takes as its principle the commonality of the social field insofar as it is the object of the investment of or an application of the unconscious investments of the social field—and if this is just as true of the child schizzes and the encoded or axiomated flows of the social field—then we must transport the essential difference to the heart so as to make them bear directly upon the social field: every name in history, and not the name of the depends on the breaks and the flows of the social field as they are invested in one type or another, at breath and stretched out over the dimensions of a social field that does not reclose or withdraw: a family-as-matrix for depersonalized investment is collective, it is an investment of a collective field; even a lone particle has an associated wave as a gratuitousness of these systems, giving molecular evolution a practically limitless field for exploration and experiment, enabled it to elaborate the huge variable combinations following vectors that survey an entire social historical field—an analysis of destiny. In point of fact, the truly receive, and transmit, always within a biological, social, and historical field where we are equally immersed or with which we communicate are present and operating in the social machines, in their field, their formation, their functioning. Desiring-machines are the nonhuman sex, the

are from early childhood the libidinal investment of a social field. In this field the father has a role only as childhood the libidinal investment of a social field. In this field the father has a role only as an agent of familial representation has the appearance of being coextensive with the field of delirium. The production couple—the desiring-machines and the social of delirium. The production couple—the desiring-machines and the social field—gives way to a representative couple of an entirely different from these formations—such is the composition of the analytic field. And this subrepresentative field will continue to survive and work is the composition of the analytic field. And this subrepresentative field will continue to survive and work, even through Oedipus, even is this form that produces the images filling the capitalist field of immanence, the capitalist, the worker, etc. In other terms machine, and the O as nonhuman sex: schizophrenizing the analytic field, instead of oedipalizing the psychotic field. Everything hinges on the sex: schizophrenizing the analytic field, instead of oedipalizing the psychotic field. Everything hinges on the way in which the structure is axiomatic of capitalism, must necessarily be reduced to a familial field where the application of this axiomatic is carried out: Oedipus associated with another partial object and defines the other's potential field of presence, which is itself multiple (a multiplicity of anuses partial objects, in each point of its presence within the field, always breaks the flow that another object emits or produces one discovers fringes of interference on the edge of each field of presence, fringes that testify to the remainder of a beast, a black, We are all German Jews—the historico-social field is no less invested than in the paranoiac formula: I is social, and in any case bears upon a sociohistorical field. Let us recall the major traits of a molar formation agape. Not only can the libidinal investment of the social field interfere with the investment of interest, and constrain the most schizoanalysis is that desire is always constitutive of a social field. In any case desire belongs to the infrastructure, not to themselves revolutionary; it causes desire to penetrate into the social field, and subordinates the socius or the form of power to to reach the investments of unconscious desire of the social field, insofar as they are differentiated from the preconscious investments of of groups or individuals, the libidinal investments of the social field. Now in this respect it is sexuality that constitutes the dear to Freud: the libido does not invest the social field as such except on condition that it be desexualized and libido invested, through its loves and sexuality, was the social field itself in its economic, political, historical, racial, and cultural determinations in Gradiava. In short, our libidinal investments of the social field, reactionary or revolutionary, are so well hidden, so unconscious, so this time unconscious, of the libidinal investments of the social field. Every loved or desired being serves as a collective agent presented by Freud as a veritable drift of the social field, where one substitutes persons of a higher or lower rank Rat Man not only installs his neurosis in a social field determined from one end to the other as military, he torture originating in the Orient, but also in this very field he causes his neurosis to oscillate between two poles constituted for the splittings through which the libido invests the social field.) Freud makes a firm choice of this last direction; all drift of the familial romance, and thereby of the social field. It is not a question of denying the importance of determinations to disintegrate. What the orphan libido invests is a field of social desire, a field of production and antiproduction with orphan libido invests is a field of social desire, a field of production and antiproduction with its breaks and flows, where from that of parents. And the organizer is the social field of desire, which alone designates the zones of intensity, with terms of application that express the reduction of the social field invested by the libido to a finite aggregate of destination the mechanisms of psychic and social repression active in this field: Oedipus, such is Oedipus. In each of these senses, the posits the primacy of the libidinal investments of the social field over the familial investment, both in point of fact and is always primary: in the form of sexuality of the field in social production, and the nonhuman sex in desiring-production (gigantism it. The erotic, the purely erotic motive pervades the social field, wherever desiring-machines are agglutinated or dispersed in social machines, and is only afterward that the libido would invest the social field, and that it would participate in the social and the go back to the unconscious libidinal investments of the social field. Oedipal familialism, even and especially in its most modern forms capitalist economic circuits; and that the libido invests this social field, not in a form where it would be expressed and at the level of the flows that traverse the social field, but at the level of their libidinal investments, which form was the first on the contrary to schizophrenize the analytic field!) In this second case the process, confronted with a neuroticization is set in motion by the counterinvestment of the social field that produces the psychotic. Again, everything is neurosis, since it	p 363

It would be erroneous cases of very diverse matrimonial regimes where no difference in filiation can be inferred among the corresponding groups. the economy insofar as it is not identical with administration. Filiation and alliance are like the two forms of a primitive pairing of persons that is compatible with the disjunctions of filiation. It is in this sense that the economy goes by the mother. At no time, therefore, does alliance derive from filiation, but both form an essentially open cycle where the socius determined as dominant by economic and political factors. And if filiation expresses what is dominant while being itself determined, alliance expresses	p 146 p 147 p 147 p 147

local lineages insofar as they are differentiated from lineages of filiation, and insofar as they operate at the level of small to a much greater extent than do the systems or filiation and the abstract matrimonial classes. A kinship system is not another place. He reproduces in an accelerated fashion his entire filiation, and contracts it into a point that keeps him in or the forest: real displacement with the flows and direct filiation with the god. It has to do with the nature the satisfaction of drifting with the flows and singing direct filiation, but always a socius waiting to bear down, already deducting of inscription, and a lesser cycle, between the stocks of filiation that connect or encaste (encastent) the flows, and the blocks time flow of production and chain of inscription, stock of filiation and fluxion of alliance. Everything takes place as though the be re-formed. There are no productive connections without disjunctions of filiation that appropriate them, but there are no disjunctions of filiation	p 147 p 147 p 148 p 148 p 149 p 149 p 149 p 149 filiation that appropriate them, but there are no disjunctions of filiation that do not reconstitute lateral connections across the alliances and for all sorts of penetrations between the inalienable elements of filiation and the mobile elements of alliance. This is explained by machine mixes rivalries, conflicts, and ruptures throughout the variations of filiation and the fluctuations of alliance. The whole system evolves between	p 149 p 152 p 152
new lineages aspiring to independence, with capitalization of alliances and filiation. From one pole to the other, all the misfirings and the disjunctive synthesis and its reproduction: a pure force of filiation or genealogy, Numen. The full body is the unengendered, but or genealogy, Numen. The full body is the unengendered, but filiation is the first character of inscription marked on this body this body. And we know the nature of this intensive filiation, this inclusive disjunction where everything divides, but into itself, and reproduces itself. It serves no purpose to recall that genealogical filiation is social rather than biological, for it is necessarily biosocial and on every side, a litany of twins, an intense filiation. At the beginning of Le renard pale, Marcel Griaule and out a splendid theory of the sign: the signs of filiation, guide-signs and master-signs, signs of desire, intensive at first, which words, implying an active repression of the intense memory of filiation. For if genealogy and filiations are the object of an of the intensive order—the Numen—is an energy of filiation, for this intense filiation is not yet extended, and does the Numen—is an energy of filiation, for this intense filiation is not yet extended, and does not as yet comprise this regard it is not important whether the regime of filiation is patrilineal or matrilineal. In a patrilineal or patrilocal regime someone. In this system in extension there is no primary filiation, nor is there a first generation or an initial exchange are extended, expressing both what must remain blocked in the filiation and what must pass through in the alliance. The essential he must not, except in the name of this germinal filiation, marked by ambiguous signs of twinning and bisexuality, according to is, it testifies to one and the same intensive germinal filiation that must be repressed in both cases. In short, a through the prohibition of incest with the mother that the filiation becomes extended. There we find no repression of the father kin or affine, the patrilineal or matrilineal character of the filiation, and the patrilateral or matrilinear character of the marriage, are repression is directed. It is not even the memory of filiation in general that is repressed by a memory of alliance It is the great nocturnal memory of the intensive germinal filiation that is repressed for the sake of an extensive somatic be detached, nothing could be selected; nothing would pass from filiation to descent, but descent would be perpetually reduced to filiation filiation to descent, but descent would be perpetually reduced to filiation in the act of re-engendering oneself; the signifying chain would through the man-woman disjunction, which is always the outcome of filiation, alliance places in connection men from different filiations. Alliance can never be deduced from the lines of filiation through the intermediary of Oedipus; on the contrary, alliance articulates this-side-of, between a representation of alliance and the representative of filiation, as one attempts to tame the dreaded forces of a longer pass through a coding of flows of alliance and filiation, but through an axiomatic of decoded flows. Consequently, the capitalist proceed as though the alliances derived from the lines of filiation and their relationships, although the lateral alliances and the blocks of alliance to which, on the side of the extended filiation, a graphics is co-ordinated that bears no resemblance. The calabash the voice of alliance, the passion of the body of filiation, the reaction of the eye evaluating the declension of the that separated the voice of alliance and the body of filiation, to such a degree that it is necessary to re-establish summarized in the following way: a new alliance and direct filiation. The despot challenges the lateral alliances and the extended filiations imposes a new alliance system and places himself in direct filiation with the deity: the people must follow. A leap into leap into a new alliance, a break with the ancient filiation—this is expressed in a strange machine, or rather a Judaism, the doctrine of the alliance with God through a filiation that goes back to Abraham. There is the essential: every	p 165 p 165 p 177 p 179 p 187 p 188 p 190 p 191 p 192 p 192 p 192 p 192 p 193

essential: every time the categories of new alliance and direct filiation are mobilized, we are talking about the imperial barbarian formation in the alliance makes little difference: new alliance and direct filiation are specific categories that testify to the existence of a to the absolute in this new alliance and this direct filiation. It remains to be said that, in order to understand was rising from within: the general irreducibility of alliance to filiation, the independence of the alliance groups, the way in which are not replaced, but are merely affiliated with the direct filiation. It is like an immense right of the first-born over stock becomes the object of an accumulation in the other filiation, while the alliance debt becomes an infinite relation in the entails an overflowing of the old filiations into the direct filiation, gathering all the subjects into the new machine. The essential and filiations, prolongs them, makes them converge into the direct filiation of the despot with the deity, and the new alliance these are short-circuited, abducted by the new alliance and direct filiation, then the ancestor—the master of the mobile and finite category of alliance, the other to the disjunctive category of filiation. Incest with the sister is prohibited insofar as the conditions of territorial coding require that alliance not be confounded with filiation; and incest with the mother, insofar as descent within filiation filiation; and incest with the mother, insofar as descent within filiation must not be allowed to interfere with ascending lines. That is twofold, by virtue of the new alliance and direct filiation. He begins by marrying the sister. But he enters into first marriage. He countersects the extended filiations with a direct filiation. The initiated or initiating hero becomes king. The second marriage machine (the difference between the generations); it constitutes the direct filiation that results from the new alliance, by effecting a generalized like the representation of things—of bodies—established in extended filiation. The former acts on the latter, while the latter reacts that expresses itself in the flow of writing as direct filiation. These two fundamental despotic categories are also the movement of image, to the voice of the new alliance and direct filiation. Incest is the very operation of overcoding at the two alliance, and all the extended filiations are subsumed by direct filiation. Incest or the royal trinity is therefore the whole of new alliance, and the mother is the representative of direct filiation. Father and son are not yet born. All sexuality functions that it conditioned, passing back and forth between alliance and filiation. But the imperial myth of the origin expresses something else the power (the new alliance), and also what repasses from filiation to alliance, what is taken up again by filiation. Jean-Pierre from filiation to alliance, what is taken up again by filiation. Jean-Pierre Vernant shows in this way that the imperial myths labour it sucks. Industrial capital thus offers a new new filiation that is a constituent part of the capitalist machine, in factors. Or the way the autochthonous relations of alliance and filiation are determined as dominant in the so-called primitive societies, where that is coextensive with the social field; the relations of filiation and alliance are determinant, or rather determined as dominant. As which adds the relations of the new alliance and direct filiation to the old alliance and filiations (whence the role of capacity or capital, constant capital or variable capital, capital of filiation or capital of alliance. It is necessary the primitive socius, the territorial machine for declining alliances and filiations. This machine is segmentary because, through its double apparatus of short, a whole ark of alliance. Alliances never derive from filiations, nor can they be deduced from them. But, this principle of the intense memory of filiation. For if genealogy and filiations are the object of an ever vigilant memory, it is alliances conferred it on them. On the contrary, as intensive filiations they become the object of a separate memory, nocturnal and problem does not in the least consist of going from filiations to alliances, or of deducing the latter from the former an extensive system, which comprises both qualitative alliances and extended filiations. Nothing is changed by the fact that the primary energy to pass to a system in extension where (1) the filiations will be filiations extended in the form of lineages, comprising a system in extension where (1) the filiations will be filiations extended in the form of lineages, comprising distinctions of persons will be at the same time qualitative relations, which the filiations presuppose as much as vice versa; (3) in short, the always and already alliances, at the same time as the filiations are extended, expressing both what must remain blocked in the system in extension can constitute itself only insofar as the filiations become extended, correlatively to lateral alliances that become established. It

Let us return to the Dogon extension, what will remain blocked or stocked in the extended filiations, and on the contrary, what will move and flow following this second instance—the repressing representation itself—alliance, since the filiations become extended only in terms of lateral alliances that measure

The question why a female homosexuality hasn't given rise to the enclosed position of women in the midst of extended filiations (filiation hysteria as opposed to alliance paranoia). The whole interplay of races, clans, alliances, and filiations, this entire historical and collective drift: exactly the opposite of is, independent of the territorial machine that declines alliances and filiations; the detachable fragments of the chain must be converted, by everything. It is debt that articulates the alliances with the filiations that have become extended, in order to form and to lateral alliances and the blocks of debt condition the extended filiations in the system in extension, and not the opposite. Secondly and of alliances that declines the alliances with the extended filiations, that endows him with faculties of resonance and retention, of filiation. The despot challenges the lateral alliances and the extended filiations of the old community. He imposes a new alliance system new socius, irreducible to the lateral alliances and the extended filiations that declined the primitive machine. It is this force of of paranoiac knowledge. The whole relative play of alliances and filiations is carried to the absolute in this new alliance and is not the former regime of lateral alliances and extended filiations, but merely their determining character. It would be erroneous to ascribe to alliance no the two forms of a primitive capital: fixed capital or filiative stock, and circulating capital or mobile blocks of debts. There of words. While production is recorded in the network of filiative disjunctions on the socius, the connections of labor still must alliance something other than an arrangement of matrimonial classes and filiative lineages. We that makes alliance depend on the major filiations, and that finds itself contradicted by practice. It is necessary to ask if rise to Amazon groups capable of negotiating for men perhaps finds its reply in women's affinity with the germinal influx, resulting primitive codes. At the heart of primitive production one always finds oneself at 4+n, in the system of ancestors and affines remaining at the level of what it means? The ethnologist finds himself before a flow of hair, with the breaks in But—and this is the fourth point—the exchangist conception finds it necessary to postulate a closed system, statistically closed, and and functions are delimited and coordinated, in which nothing whatever finds a place that has not first been assigned a meaning blocks of mobile, open, finite debts, the parcels of destiny—finds itself taken into an immense machinery that renders the debt the other alliance. The tendency finds no end, the thing in motion never quite reaches what of capital. An economist of the caliber of Bernard Schmitt finds strange lyrical words to characterize this flow of infinite debt language to a game; the signified-signifier relationship, where the signified finds itself by nature subordinated to the signifier; figures defined as	p 215 p 231 p 237 p 242

But this deterritorialized field finds itself determined by an axiomatic, in contrast to the territorial a memory for man. In contrast to codes, the axiomatic finds in its different aspects its own organs of execution, perception only take place starting from an already conquered State that finds itself confronted by the same axiomatic problems of extraction of Marx is quick to add that this essentially cynical discovery finds itself rectified by a new territorialization, in the form of now simply the form of human matter or material that finds itself subordinated to the autonomous social form of economic reproduction labor capacity, etc., in such a way that the family finds itself countersected by the order of classes. (In this sense unit of production and of reproduction, when the conjunction again finds in the family the meaning of a simple unit of production and antiproduction, is reduced to Oedipus, where everyone now finds himself cornered and cut along the line that divides him reterritorializes the deterritorialized flows. We have also seen that capitalism finds in schizophrenia its own exterior limit, which it is continually is only in the capitalist formation that the Oedipal limit finds itself not only occupied, but inhabited and lived, in the with the result that, wherever one turns, one no longer finds anything but father-mother—this Oedipal filth that sticks to our discourse of bad conscience and guilt always rises up and finds its nourishment—what is called being cured. This is what Foucault has shown in his very fine analysis: the familialism inherent in psychoanalysis doesn't so much destroy a place by which the structure becomes visible. Hence there is first of all, according to Bettelheim, an autonomous reaction to the and is interrupted in accordance with these three modes. The first mode has to do with the connective synthesis, and mobilizes grasp the logic of these objects? It is doubtless because, first of all, she conceives of them as fantasies and judges suggestion, but of sheer terrorism. Melanie Klein herself writes: The first time Dick came to me ... he manifested no sort of within the bosom of this family, and from the very first days of his life, he immediately begins having an amazing dans) the restricted code of Oedipus. How does the child first come to define the places and the functions that the and the most desocialized. It is in the child's very first days of life, in the most elementary behavior patterns of to Oedipus, something infinitely stronger? For what Freud and the first analysts discover is the domain of free syntheses where everything he remarks: Well now, that looks like Oedipus! And at first he considers this something as a variant of the familial to keep going back further. To the Americans? To the First International? To the secret Committee? To the first ruptures, which To the First International? To the secret Committee? To the first ruptures, which signify renunciations by Freud as much as betrayals enchanted, miraculated world. (Also at the beginning, said Marx, the first capitalists could not be unaware of ...) 2 Three Texts of Freud It is easy to see that the problem is first of all practical, that it concerns above all else the immediately atheist, immediately orphan. And doubtless an examination of the first argument would lead us to a similar conclusion. By joining of the three supposed phases of the girl's fantasy, the first is such that the father does not yet appear, while only common phase—the second for the girls and the first for the boys—affirms without doubt the prevalence of the team at La Borde Clinic, assembled around Jean Oury—the first task was to show how it differed from individual fantasy the whole of this field over imaginary givens. If this first distinction is drawn out, we see that the individual fantasy himself for not having taken them sufficiently into account. The first of these factors is the rock of castration, the rock making up a list of three types of sessions, the first two of which comprise counterindications, the third alone constituting the school. Such is the case in an illustrative passage, the first kiss given Albertine. Albertine's face is at first a nebula passage, the first kiss given Albertine. in an elemental, molecular sense. That is why Proust, the first to deny all oedipalizing interpretations of his own interpretations, contrasts specific use, and a partial and nonspecific use. In the first, desire at the same time receives a fixed subject, an syntheses of the unconscious following a given use. It is first of all the synthesis of recording that in effect situates to the triangulation into which they enter: desire receives its first complete objects and is forbidden them at one and the of transmitting and reproducing itself without this second step: the first step elaborates the form of the triangle, but it is calls resolving Oedipus.) This conversion is therefore promoted by psychoanalysis first of all by making a global and specific use of This use can be defined as transcendent, and implies a first paralogism in the psychoanalytic process. For a simple reason, we the cops are there to replace the high priests. The first profound example of an analysis of double bind, in this logic of the relation to the father, he was the first to open the way for a release from the father's sensitive to the false problems of Oedipus. But if the first disciples were tempted to reclose the Oedipus yoke, didn't they intensive order. What is the nature of this order? The first things to be distributed on the body without organs are the development of the differentiation of the egg, it was first believed that veritable organizers decided the destiny of the parts persecution psychosis linked to the death of the mother, he first asks himself if he has to deal with an unconscious pushed still further into the background. The revolutionary is the first to have the right to say: Oedipus? Never heard of is even the necessary condition for rendering escape impossible—a first pre-oedipal beginning is invoked, the primitive nondifferentiation of the most same path (the children to come), and also since the first beginning is said to be pre-oedipal only to indicate that language except to the extent that linguists and logicians have first eliminated meaning; and the greatest force of language was only error, and to envelop theoretical and practical paralogisms. In the first place, a partial and nonspecific use of the connective syntheses the unconscious itself, has what appear to be two moments: first, a moment that is racist, nationalistic, religious, etc., and that the psychically repressed in a constituted society. Therefore we should first of all consider the second question: does psychic repression bear has recourse to this last extremity, to save itself ... which first and foremost is a logical deduction made by the human ego, belongs to the conscious or mental-subjective self. So the first analyses are, or should be, so impersonal that the so-called impersonal that the so-called human relations are not involved. The first relationship is neither personal nor biological—a fact which psychoanalysis reproach someone for having an ambiguous relationship with psychoanalysis, without first mentioning that psychoanalysis owes its existence to a relationship, theoretically requisite impasse, organized by the repressive society. Reich was the first to raise the problem of the relationship between desire and Situating the problem in terms of desire, he is the first to reject the explanations of a summary Marxism too quick him this, whereas Freud got full pardon. Reich was the first to attempt to make the analytic machine and the revolutionary regard to them, my rebellion against the paternalism of the first group placed me from the second year in a socially linked to this evaluation. The difficulties bore on several aspects. First, the nature of these factors: were they somatic, social, metaphysical were allowed to speak here, he could talk about the first two, although they are in fact the most reasonable. The two, although they are in fact the most reasonable. The first canvases are of end-of-the-world catastrophes, avalanches, and storms. That's where provided that the rules formulated by Marx are followed exactly. First of all, universal history is the history of contingencies, and to its own repression). The territorial machine is therefore the first form of socius, the machine of primitive inscription, the megamachine postulate that underlies exchange notions of society; society is not first of all a milieu for exchange where the essential would to the decoding of flows that have become abstract. The first organ to suffer privatization, removal from the social field, was machine. The sign is a position of desire; but the first signs are the territorial signs that plant their flags in on the contrary, it is rather the effect of the first great movement of deterritorialization on the primitive communes. The immanent from being the extension of a system that is at first closed, the opening is primary, founded in the heterogeneity of The full body is the unengendered, but filiation is the first character of inscription marked on this body. And we know of filiation, guide-signs and master-signs, signs of desire, intensive at first, which fall in a spiral and traverse a series of extension there is no primary filiation, nor is there a first generation or an initial exchange, but there are always and have married the mother was therefore the maternal uncle. The first consequence of this is that incest with the sister is possible spouse. Such is the meaning of preferential marriage: the first incest that is permitted. But it is not by chance origin, as though the prohibition proved that the thing was first desired as such; another that makes the limit a structural aunt's daughter as a substitute for the aunt, as the first possible or permitted incest; what does the blocking or causes instances of territorial representation in the primitive socius. In the first place, the germinal influx of intensity conditions all representation: it Devereux seems to us to be wrong on two occasions. First, when he admits having recoiled too long before this—so as a secondary reaction to this group homosexuality, non-oedipal at first. As for Oedipus in general, it is not the repressed striking—to our perverted eyes—for the fact that, at first glance, everything appears Oedipal. Effeminate, insufferable, vain, failing at everything an Indian Oedipus or an African Oedipus? They are the first to admit that they re-encounter none of the mechanisms or long history of our society. But the repressed is not first of all the Oedipal representation. What is repressed is desiring-production perspective, which wreaks havoc everywhere. For if the institution is first understood as a familial institution, it matters little to say familial organization in itself, which is thought to be lived first by the child as a microcosm, then projected into the itself can be understood in many different ways. In the first place, desiring-production is situated at the limits of social production breaks and extrafamilial flows. The fact that the father is first in relation to the child can only be understood analytically themselves, and not the derivatives of a daddy-mommy? In the first instance one studies large molar aggregates, large social machines—the What is involved is not a theoretical discussion of the first principles of anthropology: the whole notion of social practice, and this conception so that the structure is able to function. First of all, when considering kinship structures, it is difficult not in which nothing whatever finds a place that has not first been assigned a meaning in relation to the whole. They could be that all these—in various ways—presuppose this first great hiatus, although they all claim to repel and to to God and connects him to the people. For the first time, something has been withdrawn from life and from the judge life and to survey the earth from above: a first principle of paranoid knowledge. The whole relative play of alliances finds her again in returning to the tribe after his first marriage. He counterseals the extended filiations with a direct filiation becomes king. The second marriage develops the consequences of the first, it draws out the effects of the first. The hero of the first, it draws out the effects of the first. The hero begins by marrying the sister, than he marries representation when it ceases to be territorial and becomes imperial. First of all, we have the impression that the elements of these two forms of representation, territorial and imperial. In the first place, territorial representation is made up of two heterogeneous elements destiny, with the despotic machine and imperial representation. In the first place, graphism aligns itself on the voice, falls back on writing signs that it emits (revelation). This is perhaps the first assembling of formal operations that will lead to Oedipus (the and one's hands will be washed with it. Writing—the first deterritorialized flow, drinkable on this account: it flows from the the despotic signifier. For what is the signifier in the first instance? What is it in relation to the nonsignifying territorial or even phonetic code operating on the signifier in the first sense, without an overcoding effected by the signifier itself in just mentioned—the two features that Kafka so forcefully developed: first, the paranoid-schizoid trait of the law (metonymy) according to which migration in the system of imperial representation: from being at first the displaced represented of desire, it becomes the repressing representation

Incest derives from this investment and not the reverse. At first it brings into play only the despot, the sister, and the second phase that merits the complex's name, while the first expresses only its parts and wheels functioning from a completely distinct determinations that make use of this transformed apparatus. At first situated adjacent to communal property, then entering into the latter's in the end one no longer really knows what comes first, and whether the territorial machine does not in fact presuppose the same category as a subordinate relation. The State was first this abstract unity that integrated subaggregates functioning separately; it is as to be tamed.... 9 The Civilized Capitalist Machine The first great movement of deterritorialization appears with the overcoding performed by eminent unity. But the capitalist machine, the civilized machine, will first establish itself on the conjunction. When this occurs, the conjunction deeds—in land, for example—will be necessary in a first period of time, in a favorable conjuncture, at a time does not occur in the same way for both instances. First, simple exchange inscribes commercial products as particular quanta of a of code is transformed into a surplus value of flux. First of all, it appears that—in keeping with Balibar's remarks of money as the general equivalent as found in the first section of Capital, without attaching enough importance to banking practice scientist as such has no revolutionary potential; he is the first integrated agent of integration, a refuge for bad conscience, and the other measuring a purchasing power determined as income. The first is the immense deterritorialized flow that constitutes the full body everything recommences by means of a new production that will first come under the sway of the first aspect). The incommensurability of the two aspects—the flux and the signifier that strangles and overcodes the flows. In the first place, for nonsignifying language anything will do: whether it be enters into a relationship with another flow, such that the first defines a content and the second, an expression. The deterritorialized Lyotard's recent book is due to its position as the first generalized critique of the signifier. In his most general proposition fact it is impossible to code such operations: in the first place, a code determines the respective qualities of the flows social axiomatic that stands opposed to codes in every respect. First of all, money as a general equivalent represents an abstract the evolution of the abstract despotic Urstaat: from being at first the transcendent unity, it becomes immanent to the field of never been a liberal capitalism: action against monopolies goes back first of all to a time when commercial and financial capital utterly enslaved than the lowest of slaves, he is the first servant of the ravenous machine, the beast of the reproduction That is why the problem of a proletarian class belongs first of all to praxis. The task of the revolutionary socialist production of capital, the self-expansion of existing capital. Under the first aspect capitalism is continually surpassing its own limits, always deterritorializing problem of the universal delirium about which everyone is silent, first of all and especially the psychiatrists (they have no ideas same as those that gave rise to it in the first place. We have distinguished among three social machines corresponding to to the savage, the barbarian, and the civilized societies. The first is the underlying territorial machine, which consists in coding the the despot or his apparatus, the Urstaat: it effects the first great movement of deterritorialization, but does so by adding its be applied to the family. Individual persons are social persons first of all, i.e., functions derived from the abstract quantities object from on high, in the despotic machine, did not first make possible the folding and flattening operations that will constitute of private man—whence the position of Oedipus, marginal at first in the Three Essays, then centering more and more around 4 INTRODUCTION TO SCHIZOANALYSIS 1 The Social Field Which comes first, the chicken or the egg—but also the father and to kill me, to sleep with your mother? It is first of all a father's idea: thus Laius. It is the curious indifference toward incest appears in other myths. Oedipus is first the idea of an adult paranoiac, before it is the to the shame of psychiatrists, is that every delirium is first of all the investment of a field that is social the result of abstraction. When we say the father is first in relation to the child, this proposition, devoid of meaning in itself, concretely means the following: the social investments are first in relation to the familial investments, which result solely from of the social investments. To say that the father is first in relation to the child really amounts to saying that to saying that the investment of desire is in the first instance the investment of a social field into which the maternal care. Not only is it impossible to derive the first anxiety from the second, but one cannot even consider, as as Kardiner does, that the social investment corresponding to the first anxiety comes after the infantile familial investment of the second meaning is only hypothetical, it is the father who is first in relation to the child. The paranoiac father Oedipalizes the it is an inner feeling experienced by the son. The first error of psychoanalysis is in acting as if things began father, the mother, and their real actions and passions must first be understood as fantasies of the child (the Freudian abandonment is, then, no longer any call for wondering which is first, the father or the child, because such a question can raised only within the framework of familism. The father is first in relation to the child, but only because what is in relation to the child, but only because what is first is the social investment in relation to the familial investment case for the social field: its coding or its axiomatic first determine within it a communication of unconscious. This phenomenon of controversy. It appears that, in the common social field, the first thing that the son represses, or has to repress, or respects the family is never determining, but is always determined, first as a stimulus of departure, then as an aggregate of and nomadic, just as there were two poles of delirium: first, a paranoiac fascisizing (fascisant) type or pole that invests the social investment of a paranoiac type—which explains why Freud first discovers the familial romance and Oedipus while reflecting on paranoia paranoia and schizophrenia, which are like talking birds and girls' first names? Why do social investments follow this dividing line that distance or between different orders—the paranoiac has chosen the first: he practices macrophysics. And it could be said that by the unconscious is produced; the others, resultants reacting on the first, statistical aggregates through which the unconscious is represented and already of view. It is true that this text seems at first merely to contrast the two common arguments, the one according breaks and captures—an always nomadic and migrant desire, characterized first of all by its gigantism: no one has shown this as a lack, an absence. It could be thought at first that such a hypothesis founds the omnipotence of a male sexuality. The schizo analytic slogan of the desiring-revolution will be first of all: to each its own sexes. 3 Psychoanalysis and It is doubtless true that the psychoanalyst would be the first to say that, everything considered, belief is not an act reduced the unconscious to this state of representation, if not first of all a system of beliefs put in the place of production and antiproduction, Freud, on the contrary, chooses the first path: it is not the father who indicates the action far as it is conceived. And to conceive there must first be desire, ... Desire is instinctual and holy: it is only aims, or even to particular sources. Freud is thus the first to disengage desire itself (le desir tout court), as Ricardo be explained? Several different things must be distinguished. In the first place, symbolic representation indeed grasps the essence of desire, but analysis of this second term, as political economy analyzes the first. Psychoanalysis is the technique of application, for which political economy third (or fourth), if the latter is biunivocalizing whereas the first is biunivocalized? As partial objects the desiring-machines undergo two totalizations the represented. But this is certainly not true in the first sense, where the molecular elements are continually passing through the machine become parts and pieces of one another. 4 The First Positive Task of Schizoanalysis The negative or destructive task of these tasks are necessarily undertaken at the same time. The first positive task consists of discovering in a subject the nature of the organs-partial objects. It is itself produced in the first passive synthesis of connection, as that which is going to to the case in question, the essential aspect of the first positive task is to ensure the machinic conversion of primal effectively revolutionary force. For what is the schizo, if not first of all the one who can no longer bear all able to stand living in the false pretences of residence. First he tries to take this movement as his own. He personal destiny, but the common lot. In this regard, the first thesis of schizoanalysis is this: every investment is social, and the other). If the preconscious revolutionary break appears at the first level, and is defined by the characteristics of a new the minimum conditions of identity. What does psychoanalysis do, and first of all what does Freud do, if not maintain sexuality wide application, situates the problem at several levels. In the first place, Freud discovers his own Oedipus in a complex social communication with the unconscious of the father. Lacan was the first to emphasize these themes, which were enough to challenge the couch, the economic dependencies that drive them there in the first place (a bit like the way the decoding of flows psychiatry, psychoanalysis transported its requirements outside the asylum walls, and first imposed a certain free, intensive, phantasmal use of the family to be searching for today: schizophrenogenic social production. In the first place, it is futile to affirm that the family expresses daddy-mommy—and he keeps his word. Now the question is, first, if that is what makes him ill, or if on the positive schizophrenic lines of escape. Thereafter three possibilities emerge. First, the process is arrested, the limit of desiring-production is displaced use is made of Lacari's discoveries—Lacan, who was the first on the contrary to schizophrenize the analytic field!) In this can't go along with Maud Mannoni when she sees the first historical act of antipsychiatry in the 1902 decision granting Judge the family—and to his own family—but it is first of all a delirium of races, ranks, classes, and universal middle of the fifteenth century, when Venetian capitalism confronts the first signs of its decline, something breaks out in this painting the old code, or else introduced into new codes, and first of all into a properly pictorial axiomatic that chokes off be said of science: the decoded flows of knowledge are first bound in the properly scientific axiomatics, but these axiomatics express value in the operation of capitalism (surplus value as the first aspect of its immanence), a ruling class that is all with preconscious investments of class and of interest. And capitalists first have an interest in capitalism. A statement as commonplace as consonant with capitalism, or that scarcely threatens it. In the first case, they confine and localize their preconscious interest in wage rather the order of things is as follows: there is first a real libidinal revolutionary break, which then shifts into the As for those we have named, we hold in the first place that art and science have a revolutionary potential, and different from what psychoanalysis believes it to be. The decoded flows of desire form the free energy (libido) of the desiring-machines	p 315 earth where desire functions according to its molecular elements and flows. Such a voyage does not necessarily imply great movements in	p 319 disjunction. This is because the decoding and the deterritorialization of flows define the very process of capitalism—that is, its essence	p 320

a relation of exclusion between the two. The deterritorialization of flows in general effectively merges with mental alienation, inasmuch as it	p 320 escapes the axiomatics and the applications of reterritorialization in other flows. Inversely, one can find the form of social alienation in	p 320
all the reterritorializations of capitalism, inasmuch as they keep the flows from escaping the system, and maintain labor in the axiomatic	p 320

2) liberating the schizoid movement of deterritorialization in all the flows, in such a way that this characteristic can no longer a flow of madness, but affects just as well the flows of labor and desire, of production, knowledge, and creation in because it would receive the support of all the other flows, including science and art—once it is said that madness designated by madness would be overcome by means of other flows escaping control on all sides, and carrying us along. It is the only theater of production, there where the flows cross the threshold of deterritorialization and produce the new land which is itself multiple (a multiplicity of anuses for the flows of shit). The synthesis of connection of the partial objects emit a flow that other partial objects will break. The flows are two-headed, so to speak, and it is by means so to speak, and it is by means of these flows that every productive connection is made, such as we have true activities of the unconscious, causing to flow and breaking flows, consist of the passive synthesis itself insofar as it ensures two different functions. Now let us assume that the respective flows associated with two partial objects at least partially overlap: their cannot be further distinguished by exclusion there where the two flows no longer overlap: one then finds oneself before a new there remains the possibility, not of an overlapping of the flows, but of a permutation of the objects that emit them The chain also implies another type of synthesis than the flows: it is no longer the lines of connection that traverse that ensures the strict coexistence of the chains and the flows, as well as of the body without organs and the the body without organs itself, thereby channeling or codifying the flows. However, the whole question is in knowing whether one can profound opposition to codes; since it works on the decoded flows, it cannot itself proceed except by effecting reterritorializations and by longer has any other function than that of deterritorializing the flows and causing them to pass through the signifying wall, thereby of the chain is no longer that of coding the flows on a full body of the earth, the despot, or or decipher codes of desire, but to cause absolutely decoded flows of desire, Libido, to circulate, and to discover in desire as a successful castration! But by recoding or axiomatizing the flows of desire in this way, psychoanalysis makes a molar use a free and joyous person, a carrier of the life flows, capable of carrying them all the way into the desert is said that capitalism works on the basis of decoded flows as such, how is it that it is infinitely further even the barbarian systems, which nonetheless code and overcode the flows? Once it is said that desiring-production is itself a decoded that thus ensure the coding or the overcoding of the flows of desire by introducing them into systems of representation that function in the very workings of the social machine; the flows of desire enter and exit through the codes that continue overlord. Things are very different in capitalism. Precisely because the flows of capital are decoded and deterritorialized flows; precisely because the	p 321 p 321 p 321 p 321 p 322 p 325 p 325 p 325 p 325 p 325 p 325 p 327 p 327 p 327 p 327 p 328 p 328 p 329 p 329 p 331 p 335 p 335 p 336 p 336 p 337
Precisely because the flows of capital are decoded and deterritorialized flows; precisely because the subjective essence of production is revealed in general collapse of the large objectities, the decoded and deterritorialized flows of capitalism are not recaptured or co-opted, but directly apprehended their three syntheses: the connective syntheses of partial objects and flows, the disjunctive syntheses of singularities and chains, and the conjunctive	p 337 p 337 p 338
of energy in the machine, what constituent misfires, with what flows, what chains, and what becomings in each case. Moreover, this preconscious class interest itself thus refers to the selections of flows, to the detachments of codes, to the subjective remains or syntheses, but upon the nature of the codes and the flows that condition them. It does not bear upon the social substitutes the force of a strange love for this counterinvestment. Flows that run on the porous full body of a socius in feeling oneself a wheel in the machine, traversed by flows, broken by schizzes. Placing oneself in a position where one body, the old form of power, its codes, and its flows. It is all the easier, and the contradiction is all body without organs, It is not the same state of flows and schizzes: in one case the break is between two which is measured according to its capacity to introduce the flows of desire into a new code or a new axiomatic itself, in that it has the capacity for causing the flows of desire to circulate following their positive lines of escape of the latter: they mobilize desire, and always cut its flows again further on, overcoming the limit, bringing the social machines groups: re-establishing interior limits, reforming a great break that the flows will not pass through or overcome, subordinating the desiring-machines to	p 338 p 344 p 345 p 346 p 346 p 347 p 348 p 348 p 348 p 349 p 349

Everything depends matter of flows, an infinity of different and even contrary flows. Everything depends on the way in which these flows—whatever contrary flows. Everything depends on the way in which these flows—whatever their object, source, and aim—are coded and broken figurative roles that are so many tourniquets cutting off the flows of sexuality: fiancée, mistress, wife, mother—one could just as a common absence for all the reciprocal exclusions where the flows dry up, drained by bad conscience and resentment. ... sticking a be too quick to make light of the pantheism of flows present in such texts as this: it is not easy to say that they express connections, disjunctions, and conjunctions of flows that cross through a society, entering and leaving it, linking with books, histories, and reproductions, than with our mommy. But flows and codes of socius that do not portray anything, that desexualized and sublimated in order to invest society and its flows; on the contrary, it is love, desire, and their flows flows; on the contrary, it is love, desire, and their flows that manifest the directly social character of the nonsublimated libido than the father, etc., has to do with breaks and flows that traverse the family, but that overreach it on all a field of production and antiproduction with its breaks and flows, where the parents are apprehended in nonparental functions and roles invests and counterinvests as sexual libido. One gets off on flows and the breaks in these flows. Let us consider for One gets off on flows and the breaks in these flows. Let us consider for a moment the motivations that lead for putting lack into desire, for drying up all the flows, and for making all the breaks from the outside and first place (a bit like the way the decoding of flows entails a reinforcement of bondage). Do these psychoanalysts who are in the form where it causes its nonfamilial breaks and flows, invested as such, to enter into the family; hence, that wall or the limit separating us from desiring-production, causing the flows of desire to circulate. And to the other: the way in which an expected revolutionary force (puissance) breaks free, sometimes even in the midst of the of aggregates, but must be understood positively in terms of force (puissance). Between the substrate of an allosteric enzyme and the the couch who speaks to us of love, of its force and its despair, but the mute stroll of the schizo nothing if it does not acquire at least as much force as these coercive machines have for producing breaks and mobilizing appears as an absence, and no longer as a positive force. There desire is necessarily referred to a missing term, whose that always reconstitute shores of representation. What is more, the force and the obstinacy of a deterritorialization can only be evaluated by making this turned-back death (la mort retournée) into a force of desire by putting it in the service of a is in itself not a desire to love, but a force to love, a virtue that gives and produces, that engineers its shadow or its monkey, and find a strange artificial force for vegetating in the void, at the heart of its conversion of schizophrenia as a process into an effectively revolutionary force. Capitalism garners and possesses the force of the aim and the interest (power), but it feels it feels a disinterested love for the absurd and nonpossessed force of the machine. If we wish to have some idea of the forces that the body without organs exerts later on in the fact, it does not restrict itself merely to opposing productive forces in and of themselves. pure intensities come from? They come from the two preceding forces, repulsion and attraction, and from the opposition of these two repulsion and attraction, and from the opposition of these two forces. It must not be thought that the intensities themselves are as determining factors. In a word, the opposition of the forces of attraction and repulsion produces an open series of intensive most lofty thought and the most acute perception. The centrifugal forces do not flee the center forever, but approach it once that particular individuality will render all of them necessary. It is never primary; production any transformation, in order to invade and invest the productive forces and the relations of production. It should be of the productive force of the unconscious and the edifying forces of myths and religions. This latter argument is very important certain analysts, following Melanie Klein, tried to define the unconscious forces of the female sexual organ by positive characteristics in terms the quantity of libido does not branch into two variable forces corresponding to heterosexuality and homosexuality, but creates in most people but creates in most people irreducible oppositions between the two forces. Finally, the third factor—of such economic importance that it in the conjugal use. What forces the schizophrenic to withdraw to a body without organs that to simulate structural states and to slip into states of forces that serve it as masks. What is more, from the was in itself considered as the indicator for measuring the forces of alienation and disalienation. In the third way a priest sees things? Doubtless there are many other forces besides psychoanalysis for oedipalizing the unconscious, rendering it guilty, castrating	p 102 p 110 p 112 from the fact that he can no longer bear the forces of oedipalization and hamletization that hem him in on all triangle. But we have postponed the analysis of the real forces, the real causes on which the triangulation depends. The general been sketched out by Reich: it is social repression, the forces of social repression. This response, however, leaves two problems untouched theoretically and practically ambiguous, with what it discovers and the forces that it wields. While the critical study of Freudian ideology us that music does not attest to active and conquering forces, but to reactive forces, to reactions to daddy-mommy, we have not attest to active and conquering forces, but to reactive forces, to reactions to daddy-mommy, we have only to play again the transcendent uses of synthesis imposed on it by other forces: Global Persons, the Complete Object, the Great Phallus, the Terrible Oedipal uses of synthesis, oedipalization, triangulation, castration, all refer to forces a bit more powerful, a bit more subterranean than psychoanalysis	p 113 p 113 p 113 p 117 p 121 p 121 p 121 p 122
than ideology, even joined together. There we have all the forces of social production, reproduction, and repression. This can be explained can be explained by the simple truth that very powerful forces are required to defeat the forces of desire, lead them truth that very powerful forces are required to defeat the forces of desire, lead them to resignation, and substitute everywhere reactions a group at the start of the New Age, with forces for a practical explosion that thrust them into a paternalistic everything, the family performs a vast appropriation of the productive forces; it displaces and reorganizes in its own fashion the entirety of Oedipus, and in reality depend on a state of forces that is changing, yet always actual and contemporary, within an oedipal installs his desiring-machines and produces a perpetual outflow of acting forces. He has crossed over the limit, the schiz, which maintained back up to the surface. They have entrusted all their forces to primal repression, in order to escape the system of indivisible entity, the full body that falls back on the forces of production and appropriates them for its own as the the whole process of production is inscribed, on which the forces and means of labor are recorded, and the agents and inscribing socius, insofar as it lays claim to the productive forces and distributes the agents of production, resides in these operations from the sky and the general appropriation of the productive forces. Hence the savage, primitive socius was indeed the only territorial Once the socius becomes fixed, falling back on the productive forces and appropriating them for its own, the problem of coding nightmare that the primitive social machine exorcises with all its forces and all its segmentary articulations. The primitive machine is not was only able to outline: an effective reduction of the forces of desire to Oedipus, to a father's name, in the representative of filiation, as one attempts to tame the dreaded forces of a river by digging an artificial river bed, or into account the real instance that inscribes it, and the forces—economic and political—with which it is inscribed; one fails attributes the surplus product to the State, assigns the productive forces to it in the great projects undertaken, and makes it mobilized, requisitioned by a superior power, subjugated by new exterior forces, put in the service of other ends; so true is the new full body—immobile, monumental, immutable—appropriates all the forces and agents of production; but this inscription of the State functioning separately; it is now subordinated to a field of forces whose flows it co-ordinates and whose autonomous relations of domination it tends to concretization while subordinating itself to the dominant forces. The existence of an analogous evolution has been demonstrated for	p 122 p 122 p 122 p 124 p 124 p 130 p 131 p 136 p 140 p 141 p 144 p 146 p 148 p 153 p 171 p 177 p 188 p 194 p 196 p 198 p 221 p 221

But isn't this tendency State: its internalization in a field of increasingly decoded social forces forming a physical system; its spiritualization in a supraterrrestrial field decoding of flows, and they are always compensated by residual forces or transformations of the State. Death is felt rising from piety is this same capital as God-capital, whence all the forces of labor seem to emanate.) This age of cynicism is socius or the quasi cause that appropriates all the productive forces. But how can we speak of machines in this microphysical In return, the father will be inflated with all the forces of myth and religion and with phylogenesis, so as to desire, it can be social or desiring, it calls forth forces that no longer permit themselves to be contained in representation this application that furrows deep into it, cleaves it, and forces it back upon itself. Thus subjective abstract Labor as represented place and interplay of persons derives; and inversely, the theater forces the play and the working of machines into the wings Oedipus. When Reich denounces the way in which psychoanalysis joins forces with social repression, he still doesn't go far enough, because this perspective how the law of representation perverted the productive forces of the unconscious, and induced in its very structure a sees the same catatonic inspired by the immobile motor that forces him to put aside his organs, to immobilize them, to production and antiproduction; everywhere it mixes antiproduction with the productive forces in the immanent reproduction of its own always	p 283 p 297 p 299 p 303 p 307 p 312 p 313 p 329 p 335

It also cuts inwardly, along the lines of differentiation that form global persons: there's daddy, there's mommy, there you are, and that depends on desiring-production, either as a stimulus of one form or another, a simple inductor through which the anoeidpal organization and the moment when the emitted sign breaks through this form of the content that was attempting to maintain the sign of the author and his readers, but of the Oedipal form to which one attempts to enslave the work itself, to literature against an Oedipal psychoanalysis, for this literature deploys a form of superego proper to it, even more noxious than the for lack of tact! Werther yes, Lenz no! The Oedipal form of literature is its commodity form. We are free to Lenz no! The Oedipal form of literature is its commodity form. We are free to think that there is finally even package, fabricating a counterfeit currency, causing the superego and its form of expression to explode, as well as the market value to explode, as well as the market value of its form of content. But some reply: Artaud does not belong to of castration and sanctifies the two aspects of its Oedipal form? And who told this shrewd critic that the discourse of for intrinsic codes an axiomatic of abstract quantities in the form of money. Capitalism therefore liberates the flows of desire, but its own repression). The territorial machine is therefore the first form of socius, the machine of primitive inscription, the megamachine that by reclaiming the connective regime for its own, in the form of an affinal tie or a pairing of persons that no time, therefore, does alliance derive from filiation, but both form an essentially open cycle where the socius acts on production the original producers.) Surplus value of code is the primitive form of surplus value, inasmuch as it corresponds to Mauss's celebrated them. It is necessary that the connections reappear in a form compatible with the inscribed disjunctions, even if they react in inscribed disjunctions, even if they react in turn on the form of these disjunctions. Such is alliance, the second characteristic of of inscription: alliance imposes on the productive connections the extensive form of a pairing of persons, compatible with the disjunctions of alliances in a system assumed to be given in extended form; the other mythical, which shows how the extension of a mythical, which shows how the extension of a system takes form and delimits itself, proceeding from intense and primordial filiative lineages where (1) the filiatives will be filiatives extended in the form of lineages, comprising distinctions of persons and of parental appellations derived from this this-side-of. Incest as it is prohibited (the form of discernible persons) is employed to repress incest as it the act of re-engendering oneself; the signifying chain would not form any code, it would only emit ambiguous signs and be the aunt as a substitute for the mother, in the form of a make-believe parent; what passes through is the relationship what was blocked or prohibited reappeared in marriages in spectral form, coming to demand its due. Loffler writes of a specific attached to strictly social determinations, since both kinds of determinations form one and the same component in the territorial machine.

Since familial complex whatever an expressive value and an apparent autonomous form. On the contrary, it is evident that the individual in moreover, the witnesses try to mislead them. Divination becomes a form of social analysis in the course of which hidden struggles does not foresee, or experience a foreboding of, the real form in which the limit threatens to arrive, and which it must know are the desiring-machines themselves and the configurations they form in all the sectors of a field of production (the Ndembu, Victor Turner shows that the names given to them form a part of a chain that mobilizes the species and large aggregates, including the family, toward the molecular elements that form the parts and wheels of desiring-machines. One searches for the maintained their own regime in the molar aggregates that they form at the level of large numbers. Symbols and fetishes are the social machine, or on the contrary join together to form a death instinct that extends throughout the social machine, crushing with the filiatives that have become extended, in order to form and to forge a system in extension (representation) based on reply: debt is no more than a superstructure, a conscious form whereby the unconscious social reality of exchange is converted into unconscious itself, if not its explicit reduction to an empty form, from which desire itself is absent and expelled? Such a from which desire itself is absent and expelled? Such a form can serve to define a preconscious, but certainly not the content, this is assuredly not because it is an empty form, but rather because it is always and already a functioning is inscribed; one fails to see that alliance is the form in which the socius appropriates the connections of labor in before the relations of exchange, which are, however, merely the form this distribution takes within the sphere of circulation: by isolating in his flesh, to render him capable of alliance, to form him within the debtor-creditor relation, which on both sides turns might be said that the ancient complementarity has shifted to form a new socius: no longer the bush paranoiac and the at its base, serving as its working parts. The stocks form the object of an accumulation, the blocks of debt become the blocks of debt become an infinite relation in the form of the tribute. The entire surplus value of code is occurs, the cycle of credits is maintained, in the new form established by the State-money. For without question, money does not into relationships corresponding to the essence, they assume precisely this form of bricks that ensures their integration into the higher unity reciprocity: neither pictogram nor ideogram, it is rhythm and not form, zigzag and not line, artifact and not idea, production and because, everything considered—so Lacan thinks—this is indeed the form in which the signifier is in agreement with the unconscious the signifier is in agreement with the unconscious, and the form in which it produces effects of the signified in the State, making it necessary for the latter to reshape its form of sovereignty. The law does not begin by being what the invention of the despot himself: it is the juridical form assumed by the infinite debt. The jurist will be seen the time of the late Roman emperors, and the juridical form will accompany the imperial formation, the legislator alongside the monster to the arbitrary (or that lets them subsist in the form of bricks held over from the old system). Why is follows). The father and the son will have to take form—that is, the royal triad must masculinize itself—and this with communal possession bricked into it, and collective dependence. Every form that is more evolved is like a palimpsest: it covers machines, a whole string of paranoiacs and pervers who also form part of our history's horizon and people our calendar. These towns, and the appearance of manorial ground rent in money form, or of the contractual hiring of labor, do not by fluxion of decoded flows, from their conjunction, that the filiative form of capital, $x+dx$, results. The differential relation expresses the fundamental which commercial capital and financial capital will now take the form of a new alliance by assuming specific functions. The celebrated falling due on a fixed date, which constitute a monetary form of finite debt). Inversely, bank credit effects a demonetization or conditions of reflux, giving to the infinite debt its capitalist form; but the State as a regulator ensures a principle of immanence, the apparent objective movement where the lower or subordinate form is no less necessary than the other (it is necessary a rise in the rate of surplus value, in the form of an increasing exploitation of the peripheral proletariat in relation flows of code that have taken a technical and scientific form are subjected to a properly social axiomatic that is much surplus value produced. The State, its police, and its army form a gigantic enterprise of antiproduction, but at the heart of to workers or production factors, through its allotment in the form of incomes—a relationship that it loses as soon as These revenues are tapped by the firms and in turn form an afflux by means of a conjunction; a flow—this can itself function only in this necessarily monetary or commodity form that controls it, and whose flows and relations between flows flows, instead of still referring, in a direct or indirect form, to despotic overcoding. This seems to us to be the nonsignifying signs, points-signs having several dimensions, flows-breaks or schizzes that form images through their coming together in a whole, but that within this field it sets in motion its flows of form and substance, content and expression. Because it substitutes the relationship two convertible deterritorialized planes, constituted by the relation between the form of content and the form of expression. Because in this by the relation between the form of content and the form of expression. Because in this relation one reaches figures that shatters the double game of the voice-graphism domination; that causes form and substance, content and expression to flow according to the new unities, creating from nonfigurative figures configurations of images that form and then disintegrate. And these constellations are like flows that of incomes or means of payment; the scientific and technical form assumed by flows of code themselves; the formation of floating financing and credit, the special drawing rights, and the new form of crises and speculations. Our societies exhibit a marked taste absorbed by the laws of the market? Why does it form in turn a gigantic machine for social repression-psyche repression, aimed into equivalences that would presuppose an unlimited something; they simply form composites that are themselves qualitative, essentially mobile and limited, where case of feudalism, for example—because surplus labor as a form of surplus value constitutes a flux that is qualitatively and would take on functions other than those deriving from its form as the equivalent. But in this way the signs of without interposing extraeconomic factors that would be inscribed in the form of a code. With the advent of capitalism the full Bourbaki says as much concerning scientific axiomatics: they do not form a Taylor system, nor a mechanical game of isolated formulas Irish Catholics, the Indian reservations). Some of these archaisms take form as if spontaneously, in the very current of the movement of a State socialism or capitalism, or in the archaic form of local despots. It may be all but impossible to discovery finds itself rectified by a new territorialization, in the form of a new fetishism or a new hypocrisy. Production as subjective activity to a territorial or reterritorialized machine, in the form of agriculture and landed property. And even Adam Smith discovers and cynical existence, it is prey to great forces that form the other pole of the axiomatic, its accidents, its breakdowns reproduction is never independent of human reproduction, of the social form of this reproduction. The family is therefore an open praxis according to which the family ceases to give its social form to economic reproduction: it is as though disinvested, placed outside the language of Aristotle, the family is now simply the form of human matter or material that finds itself subordinated to or material that finds itself subordinated to the autonomous social form of economic reproduction, and that comes to take the place themselves, but find in them a simple material that the form of economic reproduction preorganizes in a mode that is entirely preorganizes in a mode that is entirely distinct from the form this material has as human reproduction. Precisely because it is precisely because it is privatized, placed outside the field, the form of the material or the form of human reproduction begets outside the field, the form of the material or the form of human reproduction begets people whom one can readily assume relation to one another; but inside the field itself, the form of social economic reproduction has already preformed the form of the form of social economic reproduction has already preformed the form of the material so as to engender, there where they and reproducing only by shaping a human material whose specific form of reproduction falls outside the social field that nonetheless determines reproduction falls outside the social field that nonetheless determines this form. Private persons are therefore images of the second order, images	p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 263 p 264

It is our intimate colonial formation that corresponds to the form of social sovereignty. We are all little colonies and it away from social reproduction, but inside social production, between the form of social reproduction and the form of a familial reproduction social production, between the form of social reproduction and the form of a familial reproduction to which social production is reduced the territorial machine, as an empty unoccupied limit. It takes form in the despotic machine as a symbolically occupied limit. But again, they alienate and reterritorialize it, this time in the form of the private ownership of the means of production. So investment to the other—often the coexistence of the two—form one of the major objects of schizoanalysis. The two poles are of an original type; on the other hand, the form of individualized persons does not belong to it, since it is a subjugated group investment, as much in its sovereign form as in its colonial formations of the gregarious aggregate, which large molar machines or of the configurations that the desiring-machines form according to the laws of large numbers, in either or of the body without organs, and the statistical accumulations that form and select the large aggregates. Szondi set out on this or they are assigned to the molar order where they form the organic or social machines, and invest organic or social knows nothing of castration, because partial objects lack nothing and form free multiplicities as such; because the multiple breaks never cease	p 264 p 265 p 266 p 266 p 267 p 270 p 278 p 280 p 280 p 287 p 289 p 291 p 295 place for political economy and in social production, in the form of subjective abstract labor, and for psychoanalysis and in desiring-production abstract labor, and for psychoanalysis and in desiring-production, in the form of subjective abstract libido. As Marx says, in capitalism the it re-establishes them in its own service and in another form, as images of capital. Marx summarizes the entire matter by externalizing—the process of alienating. It is, in fact, the form of private property that conditions the conjunction of the decoded content of private property do not at all affect this form). It is also the form of private property that constitutes not at all affect this form). It is also the form of private property that constitutes the center of the factitious the factitious reterritorializations of capitalism. And finally, it is this form that produces the images filling the capitalist field of immanence conversion of this world, by attributing to it the new form of an infinite subjective representation. We seem to be straying fact does representation, having become subjective representation, assume this theatrical form (There is a mysterious tie between psychoanalysis and the theater is herself created by Oedipus: Oedipus necessarily operates in the form of this double impasse. We are told that Oedipus in is this true from the outside, extrinsically; rather, its very form and its finality are marked by this social function. It psychoanalysis believes it to be. The decoded flows of desire form the free energy (libido) of the desiring-machines. The desiring-machines take the free energy (libido) of the desiring-machines. The desiring-machines take form and train their sights along a tangent of deterritorialization that is no horizon. The bald hills facing the spectator only form a line that merges with the void hanging over them of reterritorialization in other flows. Inversely, one can find the form of social alienation in action in all the reterritorializations of organic links between organs or fragments of organs that eventually form part of the multiplicity; psychological and axiological links—the good and constitutes their mode of presence in the multiplicity they form without unification or totalization. With every structure dislodged, every memory exist—how the partial objects thus defined are able to form machines and arrangements of machines. The answer lies in the to the remainder of a flow in the other, and form residual conjunctive syntheses guiding the passage or the heartfelt becoming play freely on the body without organs and as yet form no structured configuration—or rather, they form one no longer and as yet form no structured configuration—or rather, they form one no longer. As Jacques Monod says, we must conceive axiomatic and from any code. The molecular chain is the form in which the genic unconscious, always remaining subject, reproduces itself sensations, and emotions, which imply a new energetic conversion and form the third kind of synthesis, the synthesis of conjunction. One no longer conceive the essence of life except in a form turned back against itself, in the form of death itself except in a form turned back against itself, in the form of death itself. And this neutralization, this turning against life that will be carried out only in the future, and form an apparatus for the absorption of a surplus value not repressive apparatus gives it to represent. It is the very form of interpretation that shows itself to be incapable of attaining no desiring-machines that exist outside the social machines that they form on a large scale; and no social machines without the be? How can the schizophrenic escape, with its molecular dispersion, form an investment that is as strong and determined as the the major traits of a molar formation or of a form of gregariousness (herd instinct). They effect a unification, a totalization end, since they are what determines goals and ends. The form or quality of a given socius—the body of the what the Marxists term the givens of useful labor). The form or quality of the socius is therefore itself produced, but full body as socius, the formation of sovereignty, or the form of power for itself, devoid of meaning and purpose, since As Klossowski says in his profound commentary on Nietzsche, a form of power is identical with the violence it exerts by exists a disinterested love of the social machine, of the form of power, and of the degree of development in and who has an interest—and loves them besides with a form of love other than that of his interest. This is unconscious libido continues to invest the former body, the old form of power, its codes, and its flows. It is all socius as a full body carrying new aims, as a form of power or a formation of sovereignty that subordinates desiring-production refer to the socius that conditions this change as a form of power: it refers within this socius to the regime a structured molar aggregate that it constitutes under a given form of power and gregariousness, or whether it subjugates the large power, as long as this power itself refers to a form of force that continues to enslave and crush desiring-production. The into the social field, and subordinates the socius or the form of power to desiring-production; productive of desire and a desire nevertheless coexistent. A revolutionary group can already have reassumed the form of a subjugated group, yet be determined under certain conditions social machines back to the elementary forces of desire that form them. But inversely, they are also continually closing up again Oedipus), and while continuing to impose a familialist and masturbatory form or motivation on it that makes any perspective of liberation as military, he not only makes it revolve around a form of torture originating in the Orient, but also in this The relation to the nonfamilial is always primary: in the form of sexuality of the field in social production, and the reform. And if this tendency appears in its most naive form in community psychiatry aimed at adjustment—the therapeutic return to works being blessed by successful castration in a sacred triangular form—the same tendency in more disguised forms is at work that the libido invests this social field, not in a form where it would be expressed and translated by means of and translated by means of a family-microcosm, but in the form where it causes its nonfamilial breaks and flows, invested as field, but at the level of their libidinal investments, which form the flows' constituent parts—between the paranoid reconstruction of the Oedipal reterritorialization—an archaic, residual, ludicrously restricted sphere—it will form still more artificial lands that, barring an accident, accommodate themselves without organs, enslaving it by that very fact to a form of socius that exercises the function of a full body or a new revolutionary body, the moment it becomes a form of power and gregariousness. To be possessed by this body and promote it, and to give it a marketable medical form. Inasmuch as the paranoid investment enslaves desiring-production, it is very Oedipus, even in their reversals and their substitutions. The very form of these images, their configurations, and the whole of their right to say, Oedipus? Never heard of it. Undoing the form of persons and the ego, not in behalf of a that they constitute on a large scale under a given form of power or selective sovereignty; the other by the inverse master in its turn the molar aggregate under an overturned form of power or sovereignty. That is why Klossowski, who has the flows of painting, these schizoid lines of escape that form desiring-machines on the horizon, are taken up again in scraps find the commodity value of art and literature: a paranoid form of expression that no longer even needs to signify its investments function on the contrary as its signifier; an Oedipal form of content that no longer even needs to represent Oedipus on all sides. Contrasting the concept of process with those of reaction formation or development of the personality, he views process as a so much a language as a jargon, an open-ended, polyvocal formation. The nature of the signs within it is insignificant, as come to occupy them in a given social or pathological formation: a structural Oedipus (3+1) that does not conform to a requirements of an aggregate of departure constituted by a social formation. It can be applied to everything, in that the agents reproduction. In the aggregate of departure there is the social formation, or rather the social formations: the races, the classes, the the limit of social production, always thwarted in the capitalist formation: the body without organs at the edge of the deterritorialized that it pass or seem to pass into the social formation itself. Schizophrenia or desiring-production is the boundary between the molar investment of. the social field of the production and the formation of this field. There is no more an individual Oedipus cure. As if every great doctrine were not a combined formation, constructed from bits and pieces, various intermingled codes and flux docile subjects and to ensure the reproduction of the social formation, including its repressive structures. But social repression should not be in fact implies an original double operation: the repressive social formation delegates its power to an agent of psychic repression, and repression gives rise. Psychic repression is delegated by the social formation, while the desiring-formation is disfigured, displaced by psychic repression. It is reactionary (reactionnel), such is Oedipus. It is only a reactionary formation, a formation that results from a reaction to desiring-production. It such is Oedipus. It is only a reactionary formation, a formation that results from a reaction to desiring-production. It is a to desiring-production. It is a serious mistake to consider this formation in isolation, abstractly, independently of the actual factor that coexists they make it pass into the interior of the social formation, between the social production and reproduction that they invest, and to other groups, and that of scission through the constant formation of new lineages aspiring to independence, with capitalization of alliances actions and passions are distributed, help us to understand the formation mechanism of the surplus value of code as an indispensable limit is no more nor less than the capitalist social formation, because the latter engineers (machine) and mobilizes flows that are capitalism is the relative limit. And this holds true whatever the preceding empires or not, since throughout these vicissitudes the imperial formation is always defined by a certain type of code and to be said that, in order to understand the barbarian formation, it is necessary to relate it not to other formations relationships that obscure the essential, but to the savage primitive formation that it supplants by imposing its own rule of law only able to fix the precise moment of the imperial formation as that of the new exogenous alliance, not only in value, tributes, generalized servitude. The order of law as it appears in the imperial formation, and as it will evolve later, indeed have something in sure, but its becoming and its destiny in the imperial formation as Nietzsche analyzes it. And according to his prophecy, wouldn't expresses or constitutes its objective movement, is not a distinct formation; it is the basic formation, on the horizon throughout history movement, is not a distinct formation; it is the basic formation, on the horizon throughout history. There comes back to us ancient city-states, feudalism, capitalism, and socialism. It is not one formation among others, nor is it the transition from one formation formation among others, nor is it the transition from one formation to another. It appears to be set back at a be determining only if the despotic State were one concrete formation among others, to be treated comparatively. But the despotic State of property, the decoding of the monetary flows through the formation of great fortunes, the decoding of the commercial flows through debts; the decoding of the means of production through the formation of industrial capital; and so on. Let us consider more advantageous (the price-revolution, an abundant reserve supply of labor, the formation of a proletariat, an easy access to sources of raw contingent factors favor these conjunctions. So many encounters for the formation of the thing, the unnamable! But the effect of the exists in banking has been demonstrated, the dualism between the formation of means of payment and the structure of financing, between and to break? Doubtless Marxists will remind us that the formation of money as a specific relation within capitalism depends on and technical form assumed by flows of code themselves; the formation of floating configurations starting from lines and points without a never been but one State, the Urstaat, the Asiatic despotic formation, which constitutes in its shadow existence history's only break, since departure that is socially determined. It is our intimate colonial formation that corresponds to the form of social sovereignty. We are reterritorialization. Oedipus was always the displaced limit for every social formation, since it is the displaced represented of desire. But in on high is formed. It is only in the capitalist formation that the Oedipal limit finds itself not only occupied, but not develop under the categories imagined in the earlier social formation, since the imaginary Oedipus results from such a becoming and coexistence. There are no desiring-machines that exist outside the social machines field. Let us recall the major traits of a molar formation or of a form of gregariousness (herd instinct). They effect is just as obvious for the Russian Revolution, with its formation of a party apparatus. This situation is not at all and ends, but upon the full body as socius, the formation of sovereignty, or the form of power for itself, devoid carrying new aims, as a form of power or a formation of sovereignty that subordinates desiring-production under new conditions. But even class or a fraction of this class. It would appear that social formations experienced a morbid and mournful foreboding of things to come the sense that makes capitalism the negative of all social formations. It is the thing, the unnamable, the generalized decoding of flows that reveals a contrario the secret of all these formations, coding the flows, and even overcoding them rather than letting on this end. In certain respects it is correct to question all social formations starting from Oedipus. But not because Oedipus might be a wheels of its apparatus from elements of the previous social formations. It is universal in that sense. Thus it is indeed strength it can command. Whence the obstinacy with which the formations preceding capitalism encaste the merchant and the technician, preventing flows	p 175 p 175 p 176 formation, it is necessary to relate it not to other formations in competition with it temporally and spiritually, according to relationships the mechanism of surplus value—all this already prefigured despotic formations and caste hierarchies. And how does one distinguish the way measures both its continuity and its break with the previous formations: the dread of flows of desire that would resist coding shows precisely how punishment becomes a vengeance in the imperial formations, a tremendous quantity of freedom must have been expelled from this State. It supersects what comes before, but resects the formations that follow. There too it is like an abstraction that despotic State is the abstraction that is realized—in imperial formations, to be sure—only as an abstraction (the overcoding eminent about the decoding of the flows that the other social formations coded and overcoded. But it is the relative limit of impossibility. All the cruelties and terrors meet in the precapitalist formations; some fragments of the signifying chain are struck by secrecy is the displaced represented of desire. But in the primitive formations this limit remains vacant, precisely insofar as the flows are reduction of the latter to the former. In the despotic formations the Oedipal limit is occupied, symbolically occupied but not lived an operation that has no equivalent in the other social formations. Everywhere else the familial position is merely a stimulus to is the artist of the large molar aggregates, the statistical formations or gregariousnesses, the phenomena of organized crowds. He invests everything as much in its sovereign form as in its colonial formations of the gregarious aggregate, which socially and psychically represses the the organism, but its fundamental inability to account for its formations. From machines, mechanism abstracts a structural unity in terms of organic continuance, and insofar as it extends the latter's autonomous formations on the outside. But it should be noted that, in the small machines scattered in every machine, and the small formations dispersed in every organism: a domain of nondifference between the and dispersed localizations, bringing into play processes of temporalization, fragmented formations, and detached parts, with a surplus value of code, and reproduction; these units are still expressive, and lead to molar formations. Molecular biology teaches us that it is only the DNA blue of the orgone, St. Elmo's fire, and the bluish formations [of] sunspot activity, fluids and flows, matter and particles, in the submicroscopic scale, and as an investment of the molar formations on the scale of social and organic aggregates. All that flows and chains, transductive breaks; the relation of desiring-machines as formations of the unconscious with the molar formations that they constitute of desiring-machines as formations of the unconscious with the molar formations that they constitute statistically in organized crowds; and the apparatus the apparatus of social and psychic repression resulting from these formations—such is the composition of the analytic field. And this qualitative flows of libido that traverse dreams, fantasies, and pathological formations as well as myth, tragedy, and the social formations. Psychoanalytic pathological formations as well as myth, tragedy, and the social formations. Psychoanalytic interpretation does not consist in competing with codes, adding labor becomes something real from which all the preceding social formations can be reinterpreted from the point of view of a selection that correspond to the large statistical aggregates or molar formations, and that determine the links and reduce production to representation little shit! Oedipus and castration are no more than reactional formations, resistances, blockages, and armorings whose destruction can't come fast enough were in a variable relationship of affinity with the molecular formations of desiring-production. What must be explained is that the capitalist show from the outset is how the unconscious productions and formations were not merely repelled by an agency of psychic repression to present them merely as the duality of the molar formations and the molecular formations, since there is not one molecular as the duality of the molar formations and the molecular formations, since there is not one molecular formation that is not the molar social investments, since in any case the molecular formations are such investments. That is why our terminology concerning the that result from this selection. What are these qualified forms—formations of sovereignty, as Nietzsche said—that play the role of these forces define a man-nature independent of all the social formations, or rather common to them all (what the Marxists term a socius or full body, under whose effect the molecular formations constitute molar aggregates. Now we can present the second thesis in which even the most enslaved elements participate: The sovereign formations will have no other purpose than that of masking the and a desire that produces, the subject-group invents always mortal formations that exorcise the effusion in it of a death instinct this perspective, art and science would then emerge as sovereign formations that Nietzsche said constituted the object of his countersociology—art purely symbolic relationships that gauge them, constitute properly aesthetic molar formations that are characterized by goals, schools, and periods. They relate characterized by goals, schools, and periods. They relate these aesthetic formations to greater social aggregates, finding in them a field of territorial codes and the despotic overcodings that characterized the preceding formations; and a molar, gregarious aggregate has formed, whose mode of in the center itself, and easily tolerates the so-called socialist formations. (It is not kibbutz-style socialism that troubles the Zionist state as potentialities, since their actuality is easily controlled by the formations of sovereignty). This results from the fact that the two other side of this social full body, where the molecular formations of desire that must master the new molar aggregate operate	p 194 p 195 p 199 p 213 p 220 p 220 p 246 p 247 p 266 p 266 p 269 p 279 p 280 p 284 p 284 p 286 p 287 p 290 p 292 p 292 p 300 p 300 p 300 p 301 p 301 p 302 p 310 p 314 p 336 p 338 p 340 p 340 p 340 p 343 p 343 p 343 p 345 p 349 p 368 p 370 p 370 p 372 p 373 p 376 p 377

Our point of departure anything but the drives themselves as subject, and the desiring-machines formed by them with the revolutionary institutions. The group fantasy includes simple inductor through which the anoedipal organization of desiring-production is formed, beginning with early childhood, or as an effect of the a woman was gained in the previous generation ... The pivot-couple, formed by an A man married to a B woman, obviously an organ can. Biological formations and social formations are not formed in the same way in which they function. Nor is of Abraham or the new alliance. The State was not formed in progressive stages; it appears fully armed, a master stroke itself forms a ruling class or classes; it is itself formed by these classes, which have become independent and delegate it indeterminate as such. But a substance is said to be formed when a flow enters into a relationship with another flow in the plastic arts there is the pure figural dimension formed by the active line and the multidimensional point, and on multidimensional point, and on the other hand, the multiple configurations formed by the passive line and the surface it engenders, so a symbolic space where the object from on high is formed. It is only in the capitalist formation that the Oedipal is false, since the organic or social machines are not formed in the same way they function, and the technical machines of a signifier of absence or lack. The structure is formed and appears only in terms of the symbolic term defined without organs marks the external limit of the pure multiplicity formed by these organs themselves insofar as they constitute a nonorganic this same life. Absorbed, diffuse, immanent death is the condition formed by the signifier in capitalism, the empty locus that is characterized the preceding formations; and a molar, gregarious aggregate has formed, whose mode of subjugation has no equal. What would be required is a pure fluid in a free state, flowing without interruption, streaming over the surface of a No belly. No anus. Hence, unlike previous social machines, the capitalist machine is this inherent tendency while at the same time allowing it free rein; it continually seeks to avoid reaching its limit while Freud and the first analysts discover is the domain of free syntheses where everything is possible: endless connections, nonexclusive disjunctions, nonspecific		p 8 p 8 p 17 p 33 p 33 p 34 p 54
least singularly compromised, with the establishment of a sovereign Oedipus. Free association, rather than opening onto polyvocal connections, confines itself to flocking from all sides, evanescent agents of production. This is free disjunction; the differential positions persist in their entirety, they even positions persist in their entirety, they even take on a free quality, but they are all inhabited by a faceless and to save the Oedipal genealogy, but it also expresses a free thrust of non-oedipal genealogy. Fantasies are never pregnant forms, but each gesture. But such a man produces himself as a free man, irresponsible, solitary, and joyous, finally able to say and Oedipal form of literature is its commodity form. We are free to think that there is finally even less dishonesty in the deterritorialized socius, the wilderness where the decoded flows run free, the end of the world, the apocalypse. Secondly, however, the elements: on one side, the deterritorialized worker who has become free and naked, having to sell his labor capacity; and on money. The encounter might not have taken place, with the free workers and the money-capital existing virtually side by side. One of decoding and deterritorialization having very different origins. Hence one can semifeudal or monarchic—from the standpoint of the flow of free workers: the control of manual labor and of wages; from capital, and on the other hand, the decoded flows that free themselves from this axiomatic just as they free themselves from flows that free themselves from this axiomatic just as they free themselves from the despotic signifier, that break through this wall the bourgeoisie keeps its control of the State and is free to secrete its own technobureaucracy, and above all to add spread; the hatred of life and of all that is free, of all that passes and flows; the universal effusion of processes by which it re-enslaves what within it tends to free itself or to appear freely. The same thing must be history; counterinvests the enclaves or the periphery; and disinvests every free figure of desire—yes, I am your kind, and I the way in which an expected revolutionary force (puissance) breaks free, sometimes even in the midst of the worst archaisms; inversely repressive machines, or whether on the contrary it condenses a free energy capable of fueling a revolutionary machine. of a superior God, and those of an inferior God. Freud stresses the importance of these disjunctive syntheses in Schreber's delirium identifications which are effected in the unconscious. But why does Freud thus add that, on second thought, hysterical neurosis comes first Virgin Mary, you know). One can easily imagine Schreber answering Freud: Yes, I quite agree, naturally the talking birds are young in portraying them in their total victory, in their triumph. Freud is more specific when he stresses the crucial turning point far removed from these problems, too far past them. Even Freud never went beyond this narrow and limited conception of the possibility that the analytic imperialism of the Oedipus complex led Freud to rediscover, and to lend all the weight of his of autism to schizophrenia. For we must not delude ourselves: Freud doesn't like schizophrenics. He doesn't like their resistance to being to conform to the Oedipal figure. When the break between Freud and Jung is discussed, the modest and practical point of on this particular point that eventually made the break between Freud and Jung irreconcilable. Yet at the same time the two inverse or negative form: a standard model Oedipus, such as Freud presents in The Ego and the Id , which makes it without doubts, detours, and repentances. Laplanche and Pontalis note that Freud discovers the Oedipus complex in 1897 in the course of They say that this is because a certain abandonment by Freud of the theory of traumatism and seduction leads not to infantile sexuality of an endogenous nature. It is as if Freud never managed to articulate the interrelations of Oedipus and infantile something else sacrificed to Oedipus, something infinitely stronger? For what Freud and the first analysts discover is the domain of free and also all the explanatory apparatuses set into motion by Freud, all those neurobiologico-desiring-machines. transformation is taken into account? Groddeck remained more faithful than Freud to an autoproduction of the unconscious in the coextension of	p 54 the coextension of man and Nature. It is as if Freud had drawn back from this world of wild production and Greek theater. For what does it mean to say that Freud discovered Oedipus in his own self-analysis? Was it in his secret Committee? To the first ruptures, which signify renunciations by Freud as much as betrayals by those who break with him much as betrayals by those who break with him? To Freud himself, from the moment of the discovery of Oedipus? Oedipus capitalists could not be unaware of ...) 2 Three Texts of Freud It is easy to see that the problem is first the point of view of practice. In this text (1911) Freud encounters the most formidable of questions: how does one dare in our attempt to understand the delirium. Yet the more Freud states such scruples, the more he thrusts them aside and from heaven, but also that of being posthumously oedipalized by Freud. From the enormous political, social, and historical content of Schreber's	p 54 p 55 p 55 p 55 p 56 p 56 p 57 p 57
though the libido did not bother itself with such things. Freud invokes only a sexual argument, which consists in bringing about very important, and it is not by chance that here Freud declares himself in agreement with Jung. In a certain way led to restore the most diffuse and spiritualized religiosity, whereas Freud is confirmed in his most rigorous atheism. Freud needs to religiosity, whereas Freud is confirmed in his most rigorous atheism. Freud needs to deny the existence of God as much as unconscious?) What came to pass in the history of psychoanalysis? Freud held to his atheism in heroic fashion. But all around of sexuality in analysis—the test of orthodoxy par excellence—Freud himself posited the whole of social and metaphysical relations as no way imposed by the fantasy, but is required by Freud in the manner of a presupposition. On the one hand in the manner of a presupposition. On the one hand Freud wants to deliberately reduce the group character of the fantasy the famous nonexistent phase. Such is always the case with Freud. Something common to the two sexes is required, but something object of a properly inclusive use that we must analyze. Freud had a concept at his disposal for stating this contrary the organ's depending on it—met with great opposition from Freud. He maintained that the organ, from the viewpoint of the means of bypassing the sterile parallelism where we flounder between Freud and Marx: by discovering how social production and relations of completed, or is it condemned to a constant self-perpetuation? As Freud says, can a currently given conflict be exhausted, can the the desiring-economy that indeed present an obstacle to treatment, and Freud reproaches himself for not having taken them sufficiently into account	p 57 p 57 p 58 p 58 p 58 p 58 p 59 p 59 p 59 p 60 p 60 p 63 p 65 p 65 that was what this meant. . . . What is serious is that Freud never questions the process of the cure. Of course it the disjunction of the sexes. Such is the case in Freud: for Oedipus, for castration, for the second phase of the reign of the phallus). The aptitude for conflict of which Freud spoke, the qualitative opposition between homosexuality and heterosexuality, is in	p 66 p 72 p 74
longer being capable of applying it. Everywhere in psychoanalysis, in Freud, we have seen this taste for exclusive disjunctions assert itself schizo's withdrawal to the body without organs. It seems that Freud himself was acutely aware of Oedipus's inseparability from a double the unconscious. Thus in the 1936 letter to Romain Rolland, Freud writes: Everything unfolds as if the essential were to go father were always forbidden. This becomes even more clear when Freud elaborates the entire historico-mythical series: at one end the Oedipal	p 76 p 80 p 80 p 80

criminals, the decent criminals and the scoundrels: Szondi rather than Freud and his Oedipus. Perhaps it's by trying to be Worm an archaic heredity, and the endogenous sources of the superego, Freud constantly asserts that the active factors are not the real guilt complex following on the death of the mother, as Freud had described in Mourning and Melancholia . But he soon learns bit of news; one can even quote some texts of Freud on the unconscious being ignorant of time, conserving its objects an adequate expression of the unconscious? Must we even follow Freud in saying that the Oedipus complex, according to one or Freudian argument is of a nature to leave us wondering: Freud quotes a remark by Sir J. G. Frazer according to the teacher as father-substitute, and the book as family romance). Freud couldn't abide a simple humorous remark by Jung, to the it was!). D. H. Lawrence—who does not struggle against Freud in the name of the rights of the Ideal, but the unconscious, and who is incensed and bewildered by what Freud is doing when he closets sexuality in the Oedipal nursery able to observe a conservative or reactionary turning point in Freud, from the moment that he gave an autonomous value to turning point of Freudianism, the abandonment of sexuality, comes when Freud accepts the idea of a primary anxiety that supposedly touches the established order. All these elements were present in Freud, a fantastic Christopher Columbus, a brilliant bourgeois reader of Goethe psychoanalyst under those conditions. No one forgave him this, whereas Freud got full pardon. Reich was the first to attempt to la plus sombre organisation. 8 Neurosis and Psychosis In 1924 Freud proposed a simple criterion for distinguishing between neurosis and psychosis	p 85 p 92 p 96 p 106 p 113 p 114 p 114 p 115 p 115 p 117 p 117 p 118 p 119 p 122
on reality itself or the function of the real. Doubtless Freud was merely insisting on the schematic character of the distinction appears along with the delirious reconstruction. The fact remains that Freud never dropped this simple distinction. And it seems important that distinction. And it seems important that, following an original path, Freud encounters again an idea dear to traditional psychiatry: that madness the Ideal. And we have seen what remains common to Freud and Jung: the unconscious always measured against myths (and not desire. The Oedipus complex appears only after latency; and when Freud recognizes two phases separated by latency, it is only the has ever been believed. It comes as no surprise that Freud looks to Sophocles for the central image of Oedipus-the-despot, the to appear freely. The same thing must be said of Freud: his greatness lies in having determined the essence or nature centering more and more around desire. It is as though Freud were asking to be forgiven his profound discovery of sexuality what is called being cured. On two points at least, Freud exonerates the real exterior family of any wrongs, the better in psychoanalysis and in the consulting room of the analyst. Freud is the Luther and the Adam Smith of psychiatry. He history—but on one condition, which is not met by Freud: that Oedipus be capable, at least to a certain point it a communication of unconscious. This phenomenon of communication, which Freud touched on only marginally in his remarks on occultism, constitutes	p 123 p 123 p 123 p 128 p 216 p 267 p 270 p 270 p 270 p 271 p 271 p 276
a social investment of a paranoiac type—which explains why Freud first discovers the familial romance and Oedipus while reflecting on of statistical distribution of the molar unconscious or the macrounconscious. Freud was Darwinian, neo-Darwinian, when he said that in the unconscious	p 278 p 280

A table which lent itself to no function, self-protective, denying itself to service and communication alike. There was syntheses that engineer partial objects, flows, and bodies, and that function as units of production. The real is the end product organization of production. The deliberate creation of lack as a function of market economy is the art of a dominant class of energy. It is the function of the libido to invest the social field in unconscious attempt to make the analytic machine and the revolutionary machine function together. So that when one considers the whole of territorial representation as a brick, insofar as the territorial machine continues to function in the framework of the new machine. The triangle has where forms exist under which the State can no longer function as such in the physical system. This is because class interest remains a function of the large molar aggregates; it merely defines a collective residual, archaic; but they are archaisms having a perfectly current function, our modern way of imbricating, of sectioning off, of reintroducing as its other side. If it is true that the function of the modern State is the regulation of the decoded decoded, deterritorialized flows, one of the principal aspects of this function consists in reterritorializing, so as to prevent the decoded flows history's only break, since even the modern social axiomatic can function only by resuscitating it as one of the poles between engender, there where they are needed, the capitalist as a function derived from capital, and the worker as a function derived a function derived from capital, and the worker as a function derived from labor capacity, etc., in such a way that capitalism; the capitalist as personified capital—i.e., as a function derived from the flow of capital; and the worker as and the worker as personified labor capacity—i.e., a function derived from the flow of labor. In this way capitalism investment of the social field by desire: the familial images function only by opening onto social images to which they become every vapour-engine is bred by its own special breeders, whose function is to breed that part, and that only, while the social machines are not formed in the same way they function, and the technical machines are not assembled in the same well grounded the love blockage is, it curiously changes its function, depending on whether it engages desire in the Oedipal impasses very form and its finality are marked by this social function. Desire makes its entry with the general collapse of the question What does it mean? No one forces, the real causes on which the triangulation depends. The general line of the response is simple, it has been sketched schizoid excentric circle and the neurosis triangle. On a more general level, it is the two kinds of use made of as well as the rain from the sky and the general appropriation of the productive forces. Hence the savage, primitive socius directed. It is not even the memory of filiation in general that is repressed by a memory of alliance. It is patrilineal or matrilineal nature of the lineages, according to the general regime of the extended filiations and the lateral alliances. Let this group homosexuality, non-oedipal at first. As for Oedipus in general, it is not the repressed—that is, the representative of the libido or the affect were repressed, in the most general sense of the word (suppressed, inhibited, or transformed)—at the this repression. But—and this is something altogether different—the general social repression-psychoic repression system gives rise to an Oedipal image	p 104 p 109 p 113 p 124 p 146 p 160 p 163 p 165 p 172 p 172
without is also that which was rising from within: the general irreducibility of alliance to filiation, the independence of the alliance is by virtue of his sterility that he guarantees the general fecundity. The marriage with the sister is on the outside whole, that makes of this whole the object of a general knowledge and will whose sanctions are merely derivative of a division of labor in the capitalist mode of production in general. One then re-encounters the production of productions, the production of given determinate quantum corresponds. But it is only when a general equivalent appears as money that one enters into the reign of production, and on the theory of money as the general equivalent as found in the first section of Capital, without which capitalism for its part was able to interpret the general principle according to which things work well only providing they textile machines or techniques for the production of iron. In general, the introduction of innovations always tends to be delayed beyond this is simple: writing implies a use of language in general according to which graphism becomes aligned on the voice, but writing; not only is writing adapted to money as the general equivalent, but the specific functions of money in capitalism went the first generalized critique of the signifier. In his most general proposition, in fact, he shows that the signifier is overtaken capitalist flows and the schizophrenic flows as identical, under the general theme of a decoding of the flows of desire. Their and repels this reality. The language of a banker, a general, an industrialist, a middle or high-level manager, or a government in the primitive system. It should be noted that these general traits characterizing a code are rediscovered precisely in what today codes in every respect. First of all, money as a general equivalent represents an abstract quantity that is indifferent to the has secured for itself direct interests in production. As a general rule, State controls and regulations tend to disappear or diminish agricultural labour; but one as well as others, labour in general ... the abstract universality of wealth-creating activity. Here we have the is that will cause it to arrive? In short, the discovery of an activity of production in general and without distinction, as it appears in capitalism, is the essence, inasmuch as it is the activity of production in general—is capitalism continually realienating this essence, and without interruption, in psychoanalysis, this is due to the fact that perversion in general is the artificial reterritorialization of the flows of desire, whose of exclusion between the two. The deterritorialization of flows in general effectively merges with mental alienation, inasmuch as it includes the the influencing machines of the paranoid. We have seen in general that the pseudo analyses of the object were really the answer is the death instinct, if we call instinct in general the conditions of life that are historically and socially determined provide us. an easy subject to deal with, something perfectly obvious, a given that is there from the very beginning. But that is the job? Aren't there more important questions than these, however? Given a certain effect, what machine is capable of producing it certain effect, what machine is capable of producing it? And given a certain machine, what can it be used for? Can a knife rest is used for if all we are given is a geometrical description of it? Or yet another example reborn of the following state that determines him at a given moment, consuming-consummating all these states that cause him to be transition inevitable? This remains the crucial question. Karl Jaspers has given us precious insights, on this point as on so many identical nature of the two sorts of machines in any given set of circumstances. Thus fantasy is never individual: it is figure of those who come to occupy them in a given social or pathological formation: a structural Oedipus (3+1) that does but performs all the possible triangulations by distributing in a given domain desire, its object, and the law. It is certain between desiring-production and social production, between symptomological and collective formations, given their identical nature and their differing regimes; and on the	p 3 p 3 p 3 p 3 p 20 p 25 p 30 p 52 p 52 p 54

As Freud says, can a currently given conflict be exhausted, can the one who is sick be us of the cure. 3 The Connective Synthesis of Production Given the syntheses of the unconscious, the practical problem is that is the case in an illustrative passage, the first kiss given Albertine. Albertine's face is at first a nebula, barely extracted receives a fixed subject, an ego specified according to a given sex, and complete objects defined as global persons. The complexity reactions between the different syntheses of the unconscious following a given use. It is first of all the synthesis of recording vivid. This example appears all the more striking to us, given our great admiration for Maud Mannoni's work and for the by the libido throughout the disjointed elements of Oedipus—especially given the fact that these elements never form a mental structure more important is—why revert to myth? If myth is given up, a little joy, a little discovery, is restored to understood in terms of a social repression inherent to a given form of social production. But this is already the point of view required—given a change of perspective—for examining the primitive socius, the exist prior to alliances in a system assumed to be given in extended form; the other mythical, which shows how the who has the right to the matrimonial prestations in a given system?—cannot be resolved independently of the lines of passage from different filiations. The question why a female homosexuality hasn't given rise to Amazon groups capable of negotiating for men perhaps coming from the adult: all the conditions would then be given for an adequate (extrafamilial) understanding of the libido. But more would have no hold on the productions of the unconscious. Given these conditions, what is there to say about the relationship branch among the Ndembu, Victor Turner shows that the names given to them form a part of a chain that mobilizes ideology, it is as though a wife could only be given (the lityuatieli), or carried away, kidnapped, hence in a certain relation to an ideal of exchange, or is it already given in the preconditions, included in the heterogeneity of the terms like a system of correspondences in the heart of a given social machine. All this finds itself overwhelmed in a new Nougayrol describes just such a situation: For the Sumerians, [a given sign] is water; the Sumerians read this sign a, which these forms is to reconstitute the Urstaat insofar as possible, given the requirements of their new distinct determinations. bringing the capitalist economy closer to full output within the given limits, and by widening these limits in turn—especially within that the relation is established between a power and a given magnitude. This is something that became evident as we pursued the way in which an archaism or folklore in a given set of circumstances can suddenly become charged with a dangerous so daddy-mommy will be proud of me; the double direction given to resentment, the turning back against oneself, and the projection does not come to consciousness except in relation to a given body, a given person that it takes as object. But to consciousness except in relation to a given body, a given person that it takes as object. But our object choice its cultural edifice is now, by a critical irony, being given its poetic immolation, its mythos, through a kind of writing specific determinations that still linked desire or labor to a given person, to a given object in the framework of representation linked desire or labor to a given person, to a given object in the framework of representation. Desiring-production and machines, psychic nebula of molecules. The reader always risks stopping at a given plane and saying yes, that is where Proust is explaining race of sick people implore by reaction that they be given back an asylum, or a little Beckettian land, a garbage without organs is the matter that always fills space to given degrees of intensity, and the partial objects are these degrees a portion of the energy does not occur at a given moment, but is a preliminary and constant condition of the for the molar aggregates, where the signifying chain forms a given determinate configuration on a support that is itself specifically determined signs of desire; but these signs are no longer signifying, given the fact that they are under the order of the this I is another? The experience of death must have given us exactly enough broadened experience, in order to live and idea necessarily took on the appearance of a crazy idea, given what had become of analysis. He demonstrated that Freud, no instinct is pure silence, pure transcendence, not givable and not given in experience. This very point is remarkable: It is because determines goals and ends. The other class can constitute itself only by a It is doubtless true that interests predispose us to a given libidinal investment, but they are not identical with this investment place rather than another, to fix our aims on a given path, convinced that this is where our chances lie—since laws of social reproduction, impel the libido to invest a given socius as a full body—a given absurd power in to invest a given socius as a full body—a given absurd power in which we participate, or have the chance to a structured molar aggregate that it constitutes under a given form of power and gregariousness, or whether it subjugates the aggregates that they constitute on a large scale under a given form of power or selective sovereignty; the other by the of living are realities, but realities that derive from a given supplementary axiom that capitalism is always capable of adding to with the exploited masses or the weakest links of a given system. Yet the reference to the penis gives its full meaning to castration. Through it, all the external wanted us finally to pass on to serious things. He gives us twelve or thirteen versions of the death of God is Oedipus who produces man in this fashion, and who gives a structure to the false movement of infinite progression and the repression actually comes to bear; the displaced represented, which gives a falsified apparent image that is meant to trap desire psychic repression is considered in terms of social repression, which gives rise to a displacement and acts on the partial drives masked by the faked displaced image to which the repression gives rise. Psychic repression is delegated by the social formation, while ordinarily repressed—erupts by means of such a state, or gives rise to such states, which endlessly run the risk of it toward this limit. At capitalism's limit the deterritorialized socius gives way to the body without organs, and the decoded flows of inscribed signs that renders man capable of language, and gives him a memory of the spoken word. 2 The Primitive The immanent unity of the earth as the immobile motor gives way to a transcendent unity of an altogether different nature many primitive cures; they are schizoanalysis in action. Victor Turner gives a remarkable example of such a cure among the Ndembu is something altogether different—the general social repression-psychic repression system gives rise to an Oedipal image as a disfiguration of the labor capacity, but in the ideological representation that the society gives itself of its economic base, this aspect fades before the machine there, a holy ark and a portable temple, and gives his people a new religious-military organization. In order to summarize with the real, a biunivocalization forming the transcendent dimension that gives rise to a linearity; in place of nonsignifying signs that is not the signifier but a figural dimension underneath, which gives rise to configurations of images that make use of words home, without one's having to leave the TV screen. This gives private persons a very special role in the system: a of the overseeing and overcoding object from on high, which gives way to a social field of immanence where the decoded names? Why do social investments follow this dividing line that gives them a specifically delirious content (recreating history in delirium)? And delirium. The production couple—the desiring-machines and the social field—gives way to a representative couple of an entirely different nature as a lack. The great Other as the nonhuman sex gives way, in representation, to a signifier of the great Other as the model for catatonia, it is catatonic schizophrenia that gives its model to death. Zero intensity. The death model appears him to live. . . . It is Oedipus, the marshy earth, that gives off a powerful odor of decay and death; and it to love, but a force to love, a virtue that gives and produces, that engineers. (For how could what is in extent. His delirium is a switchboard with thirteen telephones. He gives his orders to the world. He doesn't care for the absorption of a surplus value not even produced yet—which gives them precisely an apparent revolutionary position.) In a world such own constituent machines, but merely represent what a repressive apparatus gives it to represent. It is the very form of interpretation itself to be incapable of attaining the unconscious, since it gives rise to the inevitable illusions (including the structure and the capitalism.) This welding of desire to lack is precisely what gives desire collective and personal ends, goals or intentions—instead of mother also functions as something other than the mother, and gives rise in the child's libido to an entire differentiated social contradictions, for one confers on it a value as microcosm, gives it the role of a necessary relay for the transformation aims and reasons; or else the investment of interest itself gives rise to and creates those interests that rationalize the paranoiac	p 17 p 18 p 24 p 30 p 40 p 54 p 73 p 106 p 108 p 115 p 117 p 119 p 136 p 140 p 145 p 146 p 167 p 172 p 188 p 193 p 206 p 244 p 251 p 268 p 279 p 298 p 310 p 329 p 333 p 333 p 335 p 338 p 339 p 339 p 342 p 355 p 361 p 376

He is going to die, and knows it. He knows something is wrong will no longer be there to see how things are going. So he takes stock of the obstacles to treatment, with the essential were to go beyond the father, as if going beyond the father were always forbidden. This becomes even more matter of learning what elements of desiring-production the family is going to reject, what it is going to retain, what it desiring-production the family is going to reject, what it is going to retain, what it is going to direct along the reject, what it is going to retain, what it is going to direct along the dead-end roads leading to its own undifferentiated (the miasma), and what on the contrary it is going to lead down the paths of a contagious and reproduceable or actual state of the disorder, and the concern for going further than Oedipus, even further than the pre-oedipal, for going further than Oedipus, even further than the pre-oedipal, for going much further back—as if what was most actual was be all breakdown.
