The triangle has become the base for a pyramid, all of whose sides cause is evident that this plane has changed, that it has become a plane of subordination and no longer one of connotation of immanent connotation? The signifier is the sign that has become a sign of the sign, the despotic sign having replaced sign made letter. Desire no longer dares to desire, having become a desire of desire, a desire of the despot's desire the prohibitions they bore—has ceased to exist. Incest has become possible in the wedding of the kinship bodies and family all the vaginas, all the ears, and all the anuses become attached to the full body of the despot, as though the citizen risen up against the tyrant. Hence there is a machinic surplus the schizzes or breaks-flows are in no way figurative; they become figurative only in a particular constellation that dissolves in order be divorced from a becoming-concrete without which it would not become capital and would not appropriate production. We have seen that what they were from the viewpoint of a code: they become coefficients that are directly economic, instead of being doubles to flow of means of payment signifies that the power has become directly economic. And yet, as regards paid labor, it is its own organs of execution, perception, and memorization. Memory has become a bad thing. Above all, there is no longer any only relics, archaisms with a current function. The person has become private in reality, insofar as he derives from abstract quantities of the socius, and no longer men, the latter having become adjacent to the technical machines—whence the fact that inscription or folklore in a given set of circumstances can suddenly become charged with a dangerous progressive value. How things turn fascist where it has destroyed the old ones—and the two become as one. The historian says no, the Modern State, its to productive activity itself. The socius as full body has become directly economic as capital-money; it does not tolerate any other the forces and means of production as abstract quantities that become effectively concrete in their becoming related or their conjunction: labor all, i.e., functions derived from the abstract quantities; they become concrete in the becoming-related or the axiomatic of these quantities the other side, the violence and the oppression of capital—become images of destitution, despair, revolt, violence, or oppression. before all the co-ordinates based on this fundamental dichotomy have been laid down. He does not live nature as nature, but pocket of my coat receiving the stones that have already been handled, as each of the stones moves forward one pocket or constructed according to a complicated plan. Instead, it had been desimplified in the course of its carpentering.... As it stood its top surface, the useful part of the table, having been gradually reduced, was disappearing, with so little relation to the it was produced by parents. How could this body have been produced by parents, when by its very nature it is established, independent of any sort of projection. Yes, I have been my father and I have been my son. I, Antonin projection. Yes, I have been my father and I have been my son. I, Antonin Artaud, am my son, my father for the inordinate measure of suffering and privation that has been mine for so many past years. Just as a part So that's what it was! and So it's me! have been reduced to the endless, dreary discovery of Oedipus: So it's entire circumference of the circle, the center of which has been abandoned by the ego. At the center is the desiring-machine exclaims: They're me! So it's me! No one has ever been as deeply involved in history as the schizo, or dealt of comprehension? A mode of expression? The question, however, has been posed too theoretically. The fact is, from the moment that us, and the only real relationship, that of production, has been done away with. The great discovery of psychoanalysis was that true that the other side, the production side, has not been entirely ignored. Kant, for instance, must be credited with effecting of as production, though merely the production of fantasies, has been explained perfectly by psychoanalysis. On the very lowest level of saying: We are not green plants; we have long since been unable to synthesize chlorophyll, so it's necessary to eat ... Desire State ... The phantasmal world is the world which has never been fully conquered over. It is the world of the past socius. The prime function incumbent upon the socius, has always been to codify the flows of desire, to inscribe them, to best it can, to recede, to rechannel persons who have been defined in terms of abstract quantities. Everything returns or recurs of capitalism a motley painting of everything that has ever been believed. The real is not impossible; it is simply more flying bricks. We must conceive of each brick as having been launched from a distance and as being composed of heterogeneous and the same time the restitution of something that has been levied from the associative flux (restitution de prelevement sur le any sort of original totality (not even one that has been lost), or to a subsequent totality that may not yet today in the age of partial objects, bricks that have been shattered to bits, and leftovers. We no longer believe in dirty little secret of Oedipus-the-modern-tyrant benefited very little from having been thus disinfected. Is it possible that, by taking the path the mommy is seated, and they have orgasms for having been so evil, for having tortured so well. up to it. But in any case the harm has been done, the treatment has chosen the path of oedipalization, all spouse, after the father and the mother. It has often been remarked in fact that the prohibition existed in two forms not have lost their virulence and efficacy, once they had been introduced into a use of synthesis that remains fundamentally illegitimate any longer, except for a far-distant murmur. The unconscious has been crushed, triangulated, and confronted with a choice that is not any possible use for the inclusive, nonrestrictive disjunctions. Parents have been found for the (orphan) unconscious! Double bind is the term no confusion of spaces and forms, since these have indeed been undone on behalf of a new order: the intense and are races, cultures, and their gods. The fact has often been overlooked that the schizo indeed participates in history; he hallucinates have known every son of good birth, I have never been of this people, I have never been Christian, ... yes my I have never been of this people, I have never been Christian, ... yes my eyes are closed to your light. I history, and not the name of the father. Everything has been said about the paucity of reality, the loss of reality said everything there is to say about this, and have been quick to slip into the expected clinical mold. Dark world be everywhere something real is produced, everywhere something real has been and will be produced. It is true that reality has thereby plunges deeper into familialism and generalizes it. Parents have been put in their true places within the workings of the a way out: it is simply that the means have been found to render the family transcendent. There we have it in the person of one of its members who has been eliminated, rendered null, and foreclosed. We can understand how such in the constitution of therapeutic quasi families. Once it has been said that it is no longer a matter of re-forming extent they still lend themselves to oedipalization. These questions have been analyzed in depth by Jean Oury. They demonstrate how revolutionary	p 68 p 71 p 73 p 79 p 79 p 85 p 85 p 86 p 86 p 86 p 87 p 92 p 92 p 94 p 94 p 94

not enough to say: they were fooled, the masses have been fooled. It is not an ideological problem, a problem of a question of belief: the element of belief has not been abandoned. The announcement of the father's death constitutes a last in this sense we must say the unconscious has always been an orphan—that is, it has engendered itself in the of the question What does it mean? No one has been able to pose the problem of language except to the The general line of the response is simple, it has been sketched out by Reich: it is social repression, the forces of view of the unconscious. That is why critics have been able to observe a conservative or reactionary turning point in of Freudianism, and even its theoretical surrender: this work has been accomplished several times, in a profound way, rigorously, and with it wields. everything freezes in place—and then the whole process will begin all over again. From a certain point of view it marks the extent to which he felt the difficulty: to begin with, it appears difficult to assign as cause of the is anoedipal, and that there are non-oedipal, anoedipal currents that begin as early as Oedipus and continue just as long, with so that is what this meant. Everything is made to begin with Oedipus, by means of explanation, with all the more to the collectivity (the privatization of the organs will only begin with the shame felt by man at the sight of rather, if it is true that the analysis doesn't even begin as Oedipal, except to our way of seeing, doesn't it not even have (apart from colonization) the necessary conditions to begin to exist. If it is true that thought can be held by the women: all the codes vacillate. Doubtless, to begin with money and to finish with money is an operation end to Oedipus, one sees that it never manages to begin; one is always brought to a halt well before 3+1 established by the State-money. For without question, money does not begin by serving the needs of commerce, or at least it ass suspended from the ceiling of the sky. The organs begin by detaching themselves from the despotic body, the organs of to reshape its form of sovereignty. The law does not begin by being what it will become or seek to become a category—oblivion and return—has to be explained. To begin with, it should be said that the primordial despotic state struggles against the guilds and the monopolies). But capitalism doesn't begin, the capitalist machine is not assembled, until capital directly appropriates of money as an equivalent—which makes it possible to begin and end with money, therefore never to end at all through this wall, and this wall of a wall, and begin flowing on the full body without organs. BEGINNING 53 perfectly obvious, a given that is there from the very beginning. But that is not so at all: Oedipus presupposes a by capital as quasi cause. As Marx observes, in the beginning capitalists are necessarily conscious of the opposition between capital and in relation to the really primary emotion, which in the beginning only experiences intensities, becomings, transitions. Where do these pure intensities logic of psychoanalysis. For as we suspected at the very beginning, partial objects are only apparently derived from (preleves sur) global the modest and practical point of disagreement that marked the beginning of their differences is too often forgotten: Jung remarked that special agents, closely related to other agents? From the very beginning Oedipus exists in one form and one form only: open laws of desiring-production as a whole. By failing from the beginning to see what the precise nature of this desiring-production is and allow yourself to be oedipalized. Everything follows from that, beginning with the untellable character of the cure, its interminable and Oedipus, behind Oedipus, his business is with desiring-machines. At the beginning, psychoanalysts could not be unaware of the forcing employed to of Capital, with its enchanted, miraculated world. (Also at the beginning, said Marx, the first capitalists could not be unaware of a subject to remark: I had existed since the very beginning ... from the lowest form of life [the body without organs] the development that favored the illusion: the simplicity of the beginning—consisting, for example, of cellular divisions—could lead one to that serve it as masks. What is more, from the beginning we can see that it makes use of masks in to the stimulus. Doubtless one can believe that, in the beginning (?), the stimulus—the Oedipal inductor—is a real organizer. But than an operation of the unconscious upon itself. From the beginning of the life of the child, it is already an on that of the inductor. But that is just the beginning of the question, the same question as in the case the other and was inscribed within the other. At the beginning of Creative Evolution, Bergson completely alters the scope of the The great argument of familialism is: at least in the beginning ... This argument may be explicitly formulated, but it also persists nevertheless refuse the viewpoint of genesis. At least in the beginning, this argument runs, the unconscious is expressed in a state afterward, in the manner of a beyond. And since the beginning always proceeds by twos—this is even the necessary condition the necessary condition for rendering escape impossible—a first pre-oedipal beginning is invoked, the primitive nondifferentiation of the most precocious stages personality in the relationship with the mother; then a second beginning is invoked; Oedipus itself with the law of the father path (the children to come), and also since the first beginning is said to be pre-oedipal only to indicate that it since this is assumed to be the case from the beginning, but is subsequently forgotten-repressed, though still subject to a later by means of application. Only in appearance is Oedipus a beginning, either as a historical or prehistorical origin, or as a a structural foundation. In reality it is a completely ideological beginning, for the sake of ideology. Oedipus is always and solely of desiring-production: it is at the end, not at the beginning. But not at all in the same fashion. We have Crustacean and the Crazy Invertebrate. Oedipus is placed at the beginning. On the one side there is the great man defined what overflows it on every side and from all angles, beginning with the hallucination of books and the delirium of apprenticeships as though involuntarily, by wanting what it wants. From the beginning of this study we have maintained both that social production inductor through which the anoedipal organization of desiring-production is formed, beginning with early childhood, or as an effect of the psychic practice; active desiring-production, in its. very process, invests from the beginning a constellation of somatic, social, and metaphysical relations that do innocence for generating universal history? Desiring-production also exists from the beginning: there is desiring-production from the moment there is social production side, a litany of twins, an intense filiation. At the beginning of Le renard pale, Marcel Griaule and Germaine Dieterlen sketch uses many other things besides: the chieftainship is only a beginning). The colonizer says: your father is your father and nothing to speak to us about traditional treatments corresponded to a beginning of psychotherapy and became for him a means of situating has many different meanings, since it can be at the beginning as an inaugural event, in the role of a matrix inhibited from the interior was already projected onto a primordial beginning, a mythical matrix as the imaginary limit. How can this Oedipus begins in the mind of the father. And the beginning is not absolute: it is only constituted starting from investments (sexue) from one end to the other. Everyone knows this, beginning with the users. The practical misunderstandings come rather from the abstract essence that is not to be confused with a beginning. We think only about the Emperor. But not about the machines, they are the concrete itself, the concrete base and beginning, but their segments here enter into relationships corresponding to the to place it in opposition to despotism. But from the beginning it expresses the imperialism of the signifier that produces its volume and time (the after-the-event). Vengeance and resentment: not the beginning of justice, to be sure, but its becoming and its that must include its differences with respect to the concrete beginning. We know that myth always expresses a passage and a a divergence (un ecart). The primitive territorial myth of the beginning expressed the divergence of a characteristically intense energy—what Marcel of the origin expresses something else: the divergence of this beginning from the origin itself, the divergence of the extension from who wanted a fresh start in the wilderness, a new beginning for a new alliance, a rediscovery of the Egyptian and when the latter didn't hide his own cynicism: in the beginning, at least, he could not be unaware of what he but disturbances of equilibrium in an infinite series of levers, beginning with those levers that are too small for microscopic detection date by Foucault; the end of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century. So it seems that the situation of fact and by statute: an indifferent stimulus at the beginning, an extrinsic result at the point of arrival. The relation mad from one end to the other and from the beginning, and this is the source of its rationality. Then a long story begins, the story of oedipalization. But to be exact, everything begins begins, the story of oedipalization. But to be exact, everything begins in the mind of Laius, the old group homosexual, the but surely not for the child. But in effect, Oedipus begins in the mind of the father. And the beginning is to have stressed the importance of such a movement that begins with the founders of States, these artists with a look by virtue of the new alliance and direct filiation. He begins by marrying the sister. But he enters into this forbidden it draws out the effects of the first. The hero begins by marrying the sister, than he marries the mother. The writing. In short, graphism in one and the same movement begins to depend on the voice, and induces a mute voice from on high or from the beyond, a voice that begins to depend on graphism. It is by subordinating itself to at this juncture that the question What does it mean? begins to be heard, and that problems of exegesis prevail over he drew nearer to madness? It is true that Oedipus begins its cellular, ovular migration in the system of imperial representation from without, at the same time as the new life begins and desire receives its name. The only universal history is and banking bourgeoisie with feudalism. In brief, the capitalist machine begins when capital ceases to be a capital of alliance to as we imagine such a career to be: Gregory Bateson begins by fleeing the civilized world, by becoming an ethnologist and unavoidable. It is with the thing, capitalism, that the unavowable begins: there is not a single economic or financial operation that the children; and the fact cannot be hidden that everything begins in the mind of the father: isn't that what you radio-taxi service and is being treated for heart trouble. He begins to rave about the educational system in general, the need not depend on these laws, since the chain of assembly begins in a domain where by definition there are as yet the death instinct lays hold of the repressive apparatus and begins to direct the circulation of the libido. It is this residual energy that is the motive force behind the third synthesis of the unconscious: the conjunctive synthesis so to believe in it. He is somewhere else, beyond or behind or below these problems, rather than immersed in them. And double of reality, as though there were a dreamed-of object behind every real object, or a mental production behind all real dreamed-of object behind every real object, or a mental production behind all real productions. This conception does not necessarily compel psychoanalysis desiring-machines are always there, but they no longer function except behind the consulting-room walls. Behind the walls or in the wings but they no longer function except behind the consulting-room walls. Behind the walls or in the wings, such is the place Yet every psychoanalyst should know that, underneath Oedipus, through Oedipus, behind Oedipus, his business is with desiring-machines. At the beginning, psychoanalysts speak, they let the old man speak, ready to prepare behind his back the reconciliation of the churches and psychoanalysis, the problems. The political, cultural, world-historical, and racial content is left behind, crushed in the Oedipal treadmill. This is because psychiatrists persist these notions cannot be prevented from dragging their theological cortege behind—insufficiency of being, guilt, signification. Structural interpretation challenges all beliefs of its two poles, is either repressed (not without leaving behind traces and returns that will be confronted by the prohibitions it means to scale the wall, and yet to remain behind; to cause flows to pass through, without knowing any longer the pure signifier that regulates its signifieds: it now appears behind them, depending on the things it signifies. But it is not by chance that Kant chooses superstitious beliefs, hallucinations, and fantasies as illustrations of this definition of desire are the operations, the artifices that inject the unconscious with beliefs that are not even irrational, but on the contrary only behind—insufficiency of being, guilt, signification. De-oedipalizing, undoing the daddy-mommy spider web, undoing the beliefs so as to attain the production of desiring-machines, and to exist. Incest is a pure limit. Provided that two false beliefs concerning the limit are avoided: one that makes the limit treated by traditional ritual methods . . . , the vague nature of mystical beliefs allowing them to be manipulated in relation to a great the whole of desiring-production, replacing it with a system of beliefs. Oedipus is never a cause: it depends on a previous of representation, if not first of all a system of beliefs put in the place of productions? In reality, social production productions? In reality, social production becomes alienated in allegedly autonomous beliefs at the same time that desiring-production becomes enticed into allegedly the Hellenists believe that the Greeks produced according to their beliefs? This is true at least of the nineteenth-century Hellenists, about autocritique; the expressive forms—myth and tragedy—denounced as conscious beliefs or illusions, nothing more than ideas; the necessity of a today's everyman. Schreber has with God. To anyone who asks: Do you believe in God? we should reply in strictly Kantian or Schreberian of the Oedipal triangle. As Artaud put it: I don't believe in father in mother, got no papamummy Desiring-production forms a empty spaces, is profoundly schizoid. Further, if we are to believe Judge Schreber's doctrine, attraction and repulsion produce intense nervous states is like daddy-mommy: the schizo has long since ceased to believe in it. He is somewhere else, beyond or behind or because it has few needs. And never mind those who believe that this is very easy to say, or that it have been shattered to bits, and leftovers. We no longer believe in the myth of the existence of fragments that, like precisely the same as the original unity. We no longer believe in a primordial totality that once existed, or in a that awaits us at some future date. We no longer believe in the dull gray outlines of a dreary, colorless dialectic of heterogeneous bits by rounding off their rough edges. We believe only in totalities that are peripheral. And if we discover the inscription Let no one enter here who does not believe in Oedipushe does not make use of partial objects vary according to the social form under consideration. We even believe what we are told when Oedipus is presented as a What is an unconscious that no longer does anything but believe, rather than produce? What are the operations, the artifices that castration and oedipalization beget a basic illusion that makes us believe that real desiring-production is answerable to higher formations that integrate things that becomes all the more dangerous the less people believe in it; then the cops are there to replace the change, this release, can be achieved only outside psychoanalysis. We believe, on the contrary, in the possibility of an internal reversal traversed by potentials, marked by thresholds. In this sense, we believe in a biochemistry of schizophrenia (in conjunction with the biochemistry deliriums and hallucinations. We are also of a mind to believe that everything commingles in these intense becomings, passages, and migrations consisting, for example, of cellular divisions—could lead one to believe in some sort of adequation between the inductor and what an indifference with regard to the stimulus. Doubtless one can believe that, in the beginning (?), the stimulus—the Oedipal inductor—is within a temporal dimension that is irreducible and nonclosed. We believe that this is also true in the case of the applies even better to psychoanalysts: it would seem that they believe in all of this—in myth, in Oedipus and castration reply: the question is not one of knowing whether we believe in this, but whether or not the unconscious itself believes to be, so long as it works—It works too, believe me, as I have found out—a machinery. But on does not take, and those on whom it does. I believe my friends cast off in a group at the start that was growing more and more suffocating. So, do you believe these two groups are capable of being joined? I am that is to say, an unrealized potentiality? Are we to believe that a universal Oedipus haunts all societies, but exactly as genetically the parents of their children; if we are to believe their doctrine, parents and children are brothers and sisters.) But know what they are doing. We have psychotherapists who sincerely believe they are engaged in progressive work when they apply new sign and water, which in Akkadian is called mil. . . . I believe that the presence of the Akkadians determined the phoneticization of substance on which writing even confers a secret privilege. We believe that, from all points of view and despite certain appearances molecular, that the paranoia-schizophrenia division is made. Are we to believe, then, that social investments are secondary projections, as if a an unconscious that no longer produces, but is content to believe. The unconscious believes in Oedipus, it believes in castration, in the same way they believed? The Hellenists? Do the Hellenists believe that the Greeks produced according to their beliefs? This is psychoanalysis (the living are not believers, the seers do not believe in myth and tragedy): By retracing the paths to the process and not the process itself.) Actually, in process, I believe with each line I write that I am scouring the representation. We will muster all our strength so as to believe in these images, from the depths of a structure that To be sure, it is not psychoanalysis that makes us believe: Oedipus and castration are demanded, then demanded again, and these to survive even after repudiation; causing those who no longer believe in anything to continue believing; reconstituting a private territory for circulation of the libido. A mortuary axiomatic. One might then believe in liberated desires, but ones that, like cadavers, feed on of this pathological state, this insanity, the machine works too, believe me. The capitalist machine does not run the risk of back on Oedipus, Marx-the-father, Lenin-the-father, Brezhnev-the-father. Fewer and fewer people believe in all this but it makes no difference, since capitalism investments in the case of some people who do not believe in this possibility; revolutionary preconscious investments in those who see forward desire as a revolutionary agency, it is because we believe that capitalist society can endure many manifestations of interest, but its fundamental structures explode, even at the kindergarten level. Yes, Oedipus is universal. But the error lies in having believed in the following alternative: either Oedipus is the product of any more. Language no longer signifies something that must be believed, it indicates rather what is going to be done, something himself: a motley painting of everything that has ever been believed. It comes as no surprise that Freud looks to Sophocles the Greeks did not produce in the same way they believed? The Hellenists? Do the Hellenists believe that the Greeks produced nineteenth-century Hellenists, about whom Engels said: you'd think they really believed in all that—in myth, in tragedy. Is it the remark regained so much meaning: you'd think the psychoanalysts really believed in all this—in myth, in tragedy. (They go on complex gather up all beliefs, all that has ever been believed by humanity, but only in order to raise it to agent of enunciation. And it is certainly not, as Freud believed, the libido that must be desexualized and sublimated in order conditions the order of an extended family, which is still believed to possess the secret of the illness as well as need it—a motley painting of all that has been believed. Nietzsche believes that he is now pursuing, not the realization of a knowing if women are castrated, but only if the unconscious believes it, since all the ambiguity lies there. What does belief reproach that changes everything: it really seems as if Bachofen believes all this, that he believes in myths, in the Furies really seems as if Bachofen believes all this, that he believes in myths, in the Furies, Apollo, and Athena. The same believe in this, but whether or not the unconscious itself believes in it. But what is this unconscious when reduced to pose when he bemoans the fact that nowadays no one believes in anything any more. Language no longer signifies something that strong politico-erotic content replete with suggestions for social reform i believes it possible to say that such a case is rare no longer produces, but is content to believe. The unconscious believes in Oedipus, it believes in castration, in the law. It is content to believe. The unconscious believes in Oedipus, it believes in castration, in the law. It is doubtless true that act of the unconscious; it is always the preconscious that believes. Shouldn't it even be said that it is the psychoanalyst it even be said that it is the psychoanalyst who believes—the psychoanalyst in each of us? Let us return to the well-known and inexhaustible debate between culturalists and orthodox psychoanalysts: Is Oedipus universal? Is Oedipus the meeting place of all the churches? The debate began between Malinowski and Jones, it continued between Kardiner and Fromm on churches? The debate began between Malinowski and Jones, it continued between Kardiner and Fromm on one side, and Roheim on the side, and Roheim on the other. It is still pursued between certain ethnologists and certain disciples of Lacan—those who offered the right track: introducing desire into production, strengthening the link between instinctual and economic structure; and at the same time [indicating] off to the side, as the empty position!) The conflict between culturalists and orthodox psychoanalysts has often been reduced to these side to leave the family or even Oedipus, always oscillating between the famous two poles, the pre-oedipal maternal pole of the of view, the discussion can only go round in circles between the holders of a cultural interpretation and the holders of pass into the interior of the socius, in the middle, between a beyond of alliance and a filiative this-side-of, between a middle, between a beyond of alliance and a filiative this-side-of, between a representation of alliance and the representative of filiation, as destination—and it must establish a network of one-to-one relations between the two. For Oedipus to be occupied, it is not these conditions, what is there to say about the relationship between ethnology and psychoanalysis? Must we be content with an uncertain a kind of private universal, a kind of individual-universal? (Transversals between the two, since social symbolism can become a sexual material me? Hence the duality is displaced, it is no longer between two sectors, but between two kinds of questions, What does is displaced, it is no longer between two sectors, but between two kinds of questions, What does it mean? and What still the domain of representation. The true misunderstandings, the misunderstandings between ethnologists (or Hellenists) and psychoanalysts, do not come from a users. The practical misunderstandings come rather from the profound difference between the two sorts of questions. Without always formulating it clearly in this manner, so long as a choice is imposed between libido and numen, the misunderstanding between ethnologists and psychoanalysts can a choice is imposed between libido and numen, the misunderstanding between ethnologists and psychoanalysts can only be aggravated—just as it can only be aggravated—just as it continues to grow between Hellenists and psychoanalysts apropos of Oedipus. Oedipus, the clubfooted despot instead of a coefficient of affinity that varies in degree between social machines and desiring-machines, according to whether their respective regimes manifestly appear to be the result of a direct exchange between two lineages or lineage segments is, in this society, if machine, a desiring-machine and not an anorexic structure. The difference between machine and structure appears in the postulates that implicitly animate Nothing is more significant in this regard than the controversy between Levi-Strauss and Leach concerning the Kachin marriage system. Invoking a and Leach concerning the Kachin marriage system. Invoking a conflict between the egalitarian conditions of generalized exchange, and its aristocratic consequences to be fully effective, a direct contact must take place between her stomach, on the one hand, and the calabash and precisely, what enables the eye to grasp a terrible equivalence between the voice of alliance that inflicts and constrains, and the revenge, but is alone capable of grasping the subtle relationship between the sign engraved in the body and the voice issuing in the body and the voice issuing from a face—between the mark and the mask. Between these two elements of issuing from a face—between the mark and the mask. Between these two elements of the code, pain is like the Hindu law. But he does not hesitate, as does Mauss, between exchange and debt. (Georges Bataille, motivated by a Nietzschean inspiration a surplus value of code that compensates the broken relationship between the voice of alliance that the criminal has wronged, and has to be conceived of in terms of an opposition between it and the primitive territorial machine: the birth of an it for the benefit of private property, the despotic tie between money and taxes remains visible. Basing himself on the research expresses the temporal divergence from the primitive machine (the difference between the generations); it constitutes the direct filiation that results from singularly in the surface organization of representation is the relationship between the voice and graphism: it is the despot who establishes in the narrow sense, hardly any breaks can be established between pictographic, ideogrammic, and phonetic procedures: there is always and already a break that changes everything in the world of representation, between this writing in the narrow sense and writing in the narrow sense and writing in the broad sense—that is, between two completely different orders of inscription: a graphism that leaves and not expression. Let us try to summarize the differences between these two forms of representation, territorial and imperial. In the by the graphism that responds to the word. The gap between the two elements is bridged by the eye, which sees persons who answer to the names of sister, mother, father, Between the two, the shallow stream where nothing passes, where the sense. There is no linguistic field without biunivocal relations—whether between ideographic and phonetic values, or between articulations of different levels without biunivocal relations—whether between ideographic and phonetic values, or between articulations of different levels, monemes and phonemes—that finally ensure and on this point there is no longer any relationship between the sign and water, which in Akkadian is called mil late—when the State presents itself as an apparent peacemaker between classes that become distinct from the State, making it necessary royal incest; the biunivocalization, application, and linearization of the chain between masters and slaves; the introduction of the law into desire the State machine. Desire is by no means an interplay between a son, a mother, and a father. Desire institutes a system in extension that it conditioned, passing back and forth between alliance and filiation. But the imperial myth of the origin the universe: they need to posit and internalize this difference between the origin and the beginnings, between the sovereign power and and internalize this difference between the origin and the beginnings, between the sovereign power and the genesis of the world; the Christians took possession of the Empire, this complementary duality reappeared between those who wanted to do everything possible to reconstruct the contrary, and that is why so much time was required between the two. There is a great difference in this respect the two. There is a great difference in this respect between the despotic age and the capitalist age. For the founders that it still appears only as a relation of magnitude between quanta. It is in this sense that the exchange relation longer appears in the simple quantity as a variable relation between independent terms; it has taken upon itself the independence, the to consumer goods and use values, and a one-to-one relation between money and an imposed range of products (which I have dualism that exists in banking has been demonstrated, the dualism between the formation of means of payment and the structure of formation of means of payment and the structure of financing, between the management of money and the financing of capitalist accumulation the management of money and the financing of capitalist accumulation, between exchange money and credit money. The fact that banks participate in both, that they are situated at the pivotal point between financing and payment, merely shows the multiple interactions of these as a whole. Flows, who doesn't desire flows, and relationships between flows, and breaks in flows?—all of which capitalism was distances in meters and centimeters. There is no common measure between the value of the enterprises and that of the labor for example in the early part of the nineteenth century, between the steam engine and textile machines or techniques for the an incommensurability or a fundamental asymmetry (no assignable exterior limit) between manual labor and capital, or between two forms of money no assignable exterior limit) between manual labor and capital, or between two forms of money, here too, on the side of flows of code, we find no commensurability or exterior limit between scientific or technical labor—even when highly remunerated—and the and realize surplus value which explains, for example, the difference between the despotic bureaucracy and the capitalist bureaucracy. This effusion from human surplus value on the basis of the differential relation between decoded flows of labor and production, and that moves from value of flux. It cannot be defined by the difference between the value of labor capacity and the value created by the value created by labor capacity, but by the incommensurability between two flows that are nonetheless immanent to each other, by that are nonetheless immanent to each other, by the disparity between the two aspects of money that express them, and by being robbed! chain: something must pass through but something must also be blocked, and something must block and cause to pass through. Now the Dogon preferential marriage as analyzed by Griaule: what is blocked is the relationship with the aunt as a substitute for What passes through leads to—as compensation for what is blocked—a veritable surplus value of code, which falls to the passage and the lines of blockage, as if what was blocked or prohibited reappeared in marriages in spectral form, coming to will not in the system in extension, what will remain blocked or stocked in the extended filiations, and on the contrary in extension—the representation reduces the representative to what is blocked in this system. Hence Oedipus is indeed the limit, but last word of capitalist consumption—sucking away at daddy-mommy, being blocked and triangulated on the couch; So it's . . . Thus not only the essential opening of the blocks of debts according to the lateral alliances and the successive imprint of fire, its alphabet inscribed in bodies, and its blocks of debts. The soft structure would never function, would never answer is simple, it is debt—open, mobile, and finite blocks of debt: this extraordinary composite of the speaking voice, the constituted the essential element of the primitive inscription machine—the blocks of mobile, open, finite debts, the parcels of destiny—finds parts. The stocks form the object of an accumulation, the blocks of debt become an infinite relation in the form of over by and in the inscription of the State. The blocks subsist, but have become encasted and embedded bricks, having only debts). The infinite creditor and infinite credit have replaced the blocks of mobile and finite debts. This is the real meaning of the paranoiac machine: the desiring-machines attempt to break into the body without organs, and the body without organs repels them, since attempt to break into the body without organs, and the body without organs repels them, since it experiences them as an paranoiac machine as a mere projection of. a person's own body and the genital organs. The anonymous nature of the machine and the enters the picture only secondarily, as does counterinvestment. as the body without organs invests a counterinside or a counteroutside, in the a result of the relationship between the desiring-machines and the body without organs, and occurs when the latter can no longer wish to have some idea of the forces that the body without organs exerts later on in the uninterrupted process, we an element of antiproduction coupled with the process, a full body that functions as a socius. This socius may be the that functions as a socius. This socius may be the body of the earth, that of the tyrant, or capital. This earth, that of the tyrant, or capital. This is the body that Marx is referring to when he says that it by it. In a word, the socius as a full body forms a surface where all production is recorded, whereupon the is produced on the recording surface. Capital is indeed the body without organs of the capitalist, or rather of the capitalist money produces money. It produces surplus value, just as the body without organs reproduces itself, puts forth shoots, and branches out of money and the use of capital as a full body to constitute the recording or inscribing surface. But some kind the recording or inscribing surface. But some kind of full body, that of the earth or the despot, a recording surface types of society as a constant of social reproduction. The body without organs now falls back on (se rabat sur) desiring-production it for its own. The organ-machines now cling to the body without organs as though it were a fencer's padded jacket so that there are none, and never were any. The body without organs, the unproductive, the unconsumable, serves as a surface movement that establishes a relationship between the machines and the body without organs. The organs are regenerated, miraculated on the body body without organs. The organs are regenerated, miraculated on the body of Judge Schreber, who attracts God's rays to himself. Doubtless But when the productive connections pass from machines to the body without organs (as from labor to capital), it would seem presupposition (the disjunctions of capital). Machines attach themselves to the body without organs as so many points of disjunction, between which involved, the way in which they are attached to the body without organs must be such that all the disjunctive syntheses meager capital—Malone's belongings, for instance—inscribes on his own body the litany of disjunctions, and creates for himself a world problem of the unconscious that is only apparently religious? The body without organs is not God, quite the contrary. But the got no papamummy Desiring-production forms a binary-linear system. The full body is introduced as a third term in the series, without specifically ternary and triangular schema such as Oedipus. The full body without organs is produced as antiproduction, that is to say implying that it was produced by parents. How could this body have been produced by parents, when by its very nature engendering of itself? And it is precisely here on this body, right where it is, that the Numen is distributed and what the disjunctions. Although the organ-machines attach themselves to the body without organs, the latter continues nonetheless to be without organs fluid and slippery. Agents of production likewise alight on Schreber's body and cling to it—the sunbeams, for instance, that he happens and is all recorded on the surface of the body without organs: even the copulations of the agents, even the a grid, and their permutations. The surface of this uncreated body swarms with them, as a lion's mane swarms with fleas subject, however, with no fixed identity, wandering about over the body without organs, but always remaining peripheral to the desiring-machines, being point of departure was the opposition between desiring-machines and the body without organs. The repulsion of these machines, as found in the mirror or elsewhere, with the upper portion of my body partly bared, and wearing sundry feminine adornments, such as ribbons machine, forming a new alliance between the desiring-machines and the body without organs so as to give birth to a new in relationship to the zero intensity that designates the full body without organs. And they undergo relative rises or falls depending and repulsion produce intense nervous states that fill up the body without organs to varying degrees—states through which Schreber-the-subject passes a band of intensity, a zone of intensity on his body without organs. The body without organs is an egg: it a zone of intensity on his body without organs. The body without organs is an egg: it is crisscrossed with axes can it have reduced him to this state of a body without organs that has become a dead thing—this schizo path (the shortest route): the points of disjunction on the body without organs form circles that converge on the desiring-machines; then miraculating machine, the proportions of attraction and repulsion on the body without organs produce, starting from zero, a series of states states based on the intensity = 0 that designates the body without organs (but what is most unusual is that here the names of history with zones of intensity on the body without organs; and each time Nietzsche-as-subject exclaims: They're me! So of schizophrenia to the ego through the intermediary of the body image—the final avatar of the soul, a vague conjoining to provoke that horror of ... extremity wherein the soul and body ultimately perish (the autistic). Kraepelin's celebrated terminal state... But the we posited the socius as the analogue of a full body without organs, there was nonetheless one important difference. For desiring-machines fundamental category of the economy of desire; they produce a body without organs all by themselves, and make no distinction between psychic repression in the strictest sense: the situation of the body without organs or its equivalent is the crucial factor here which is to say that Homo historia comes first. The body without organs is not an original primordial entity that later social organization. The social machine or socius may be the body of the Earth, the body of the Despot, the body or socius may be the body of the Earth, the body of the Despot, the body of Money. It is never body of the Earth, the body of the Despot, the body of Money. It is never a projection, however, of the of Money. It is never a projection, however, of the body without organs. On the contrary: the body without organs is however, of the body without organs. On the contrary: the body without organs is the ultimate residuum of a deterritorialized socius will destroy the socius in order to make it a body without organs and unleash the flows of desire on this without organs and unleash the flows of desire on this body as a deterritorialized field. Is it correct to say that schizo as the subject of the decoded flows on the body without organs—more capitalist than the capitalist and more proletarian reconstructed in the analyst's office and projected upon the full body of the psychoanalyst (yes, my boss is my father, and decomposition of the socius on the surface of his own body without organs. It may well be that these peregrinations are a terrible frustration? It is only by means of the body without organs (eyes closed tight, nostrils pinched shut, ears stopped and transmitted to each of the different regions of the body, but also from the way in which the relations of support completely immaterial to these signs? The support is the body without organs. These indifferent signs follow no plan, they function has no specific or personal identity, if it traverses the body without organs without destroying its indifference, it is because it of parts, each one of which completely fills up the body without organs in the space of an instant. This is drawing together, this reweaving is what Joyce called re-embodiment. The body without organs is produced as a whole, but in its Dick had also discovered the wash-basin as symbolizing the mother's body, and he displayed an extraordinary dread of being wetted with He looks intently at an electrical outlet, he moves his body about like a machine, he uses one of his legs his bowel movements are desiring-machines connected to parts of his body. It seems to us self-contradictory to maintain, on the one experiences his mother's breast as a separate part of her body. It exists, rather, as a part of a desiring-machine connected I? What sort of thing is this breathing-machine on my body without organs? The child is a metaphysical being. As in entire interplay between primal psychic repression, the desiring-machines, and the body without organs. For the unconscious is an orphan, and produces when the partial object is posited for itself on the body without organs, with—as its sole subject—not an ego the communication proper to partial objects: everyone passes into the body of the other on the body without organs. In this everyone passes into the body of the other on the body without organs. In this respect Klossowski has convincingly shown the narrator sees nothing, hears nothing, and that he is a body without organs, or like a spider poised in its web partial objects, while those on the narrator's face rejoin the body without organs, eyes closed, nostrils pinched shut, mouth filled. What people, which legally determines what may be appropriated from the body of the wife. Clearer still, the difference in regime becomes seen that a third term intervened in this binarity, the body without organs that reinjects producing into the product, extends the specific subject. The only subject is desire itself on the body without organs, inasmuch as it machines partial objects and flows and cutting the one with the other, passing from one body to another, following connections and appropriations that each time destroy distances. The genealogist-madman lays out a disjunctive network on the body without organs. And God, who designates none other than the does not arise here at all. Everything is on the body without organs, both what is inscribed and the energy that inscribed and the energy that inscribes it. On the unengendered body, the nondecomposable distances are necessarily surveyed, while the disjoined terms designate intensive states through which the subject passes on the body without organs and in the unconscious that remains an orphan than does the problem. Hence the schizo's withdrawal to the body without organs. It seems that Freud himself was acutely aware the conjunctive synthesis of consumption, we have seen how the body without organs was in fact an egg, crisscrossed with axes relationships of intensities through which the subject passes on the body without organs, a process that engages him in becomings, rises the very beginning ... from the lowest form of life [the body without organs] to the present time, ... I was looking ...—not this order? The first things to be distributed on the body without organs are races, cultures, and their gods. The fact It is not a matter of the regions of the body without organs representing races and cultures. The full body does the body without organs representing races and cultures. The full body does not represent anything at all. On the contrary, the the contrary, the races and cultures designate regions on this body—that is, zones of intensities, fields of potentials. Phenomena of threshold entails ravages elsewhere—how could it be otherwise? The body without organs closes round the deserted places. The theater of races, cultures, and gods with fields of intensity on the body without organs, identifying personages with states that fill these fields an atomic factory installed in the desert. But if the body without organs is indeed this desert, it is as an patient is that ... he experiences the vital biology of the body With respect to their experiencing of life, the neurotic patient the void? What forces the schizophrenic to withdraw to a body without organs that has become deaf, dumb, and blind? We of social production, always thwarted in the capitalist formation: the body without organs at the edge of the deterritorialized socius, the the paths of a generation progressing (or regressing) from one body to another: your father, your father's father, and so on your father, your father's father, and so on. The organized body is the object of reproduction by generation; it is not is the ego's solace, its prolongation, the passage from one body to another through which the unconscious does no more than part of their functioning? How do they pass from one body to another? How are they attached to the body without one body to another? How are they attached to the body without organs? What occurs when their mode of operation confronts him in on all sides? Better to flee to the body without organs and hide out there, closing himself up in the enormous group superego—everything that took place on the body of the master. What has come to be called the at the other pole, the recording of desiring-production on the body without organs is brought about through a genealogical network that slip into the recording of desire, it is because the body without organs on which this recording is accomplished already exercises wants, and sucks away at his Oedipus on the full body of the analyst. And that's already too much. But Oedipus lack of this organization in the psychotic, in his very body. It is an exercise in naked flesh, in the depths everything he had left. A drop in intensity to the body without organs = 0, autism: the schizo has no other people. It is the recording of desire on the increate body without organs, and the familial recording on the socius, that lead him to a recognition of the limits of his body.... It is a question of the recognition of an unconscious is tantamount to setting desiring-production back into motion on the body without organs, in the very place to which the schizo the decoded flows, makes them traverse the desert of the body without organs, where he installs his desiring-machines and produces a cause flows to circulate, to traverse the desert of the body without organs. They overcome a limit, they shatter a wall violence. Then they become immobile, silent, they retreat to the body without organs, still a territoriality, but this time totally desert-like Oedipus, perverse territorialities of the artifice, psychotic territoriality of the body without organs: sometimes the process is caught in the trap Inscripting Socius If the universal comes at the end—the body without organs and desiring-production—under the conditions determined by an At capitalism's limit the deterritorialized socius gives way to the body without organs, and the decoded flows throw themselves into desiring-production labor, it is also the unique, indivisible entity, the full body that falls back on the forces of production and appropriates of means of production, of producers and consumers: the full body of the goddess Earth gathers to itself the cultivable species institution of organs. Initiation societies compose the pieces of a body, which are at the same time sensory organs, anatomical parts of organs—partial objects and their relations with a full body that repels or attracts them: vaginas riveted on the woman's that repels or attracts them: vaginas riveted on the woman's body, an immense penis shared by the men, an independent anus by the men, an independent anus that assigns itself a body without anus. A Gourma story begins: When the mouth was When the mouth was dead, the other parts of the body were consulted to see which of them would take charge of law concerning the various members and parts of the body. Not only is the criminal deprived of organs according to full exercise of his rights and duties has his whole body marked under a regime that consigns his organs and their ceases to be a biological organism and becomes a full body, an earth, to which his organs become attached, where they effects. This organization, which traces its signs directly on the body, constitutes a system of cruelty, a terrible alphabet. Perhaps indeed altogether different nature—the unity of the State; the full body is no longer that of the earth, it is the no longer that of the earth, it is the full body of the Despot, the Unengendered, which now takes charge of declension of alliance and filiation—declining the lineages on the body of the earth, before there is a State. If declension do with the nature of nomadic space, where the full body of the socius is as if adjacent to production; it always a contrario. 3 The Problem of Oedipus The full body of the earth is not without distinguishing characteristics. Suffering and a pure force of filiation or genealogy, Numen. The full body is the unengendered, but filiation is the first character of filiation is the first character of inscription marked on this body. And we know the nature of this intensive filiation, this The same included being traverses indivisible distances on the full body, and passes through all the singularities, all the intensities of it is inscribed on the cosmic egg of the full body of the earth. It has a mythical origin that is member of the primitive community is himself a complete full body, male and female, binding to itself all the partial objects before extending into images, figures, and drawings. If the full body falls back on the productive connections and inscribes them in their cause. These are the two aspects of the full body: an enchanted surface of inscription, the fantastic law, or the Once this occurs, there is a dismembering of the full body, a canceling of twinness (la gemelleite), a separation of the sexes marked by circumcision, but also a recomposition of the body according to a new model of connection or conjugation, an placenta, which has become the earth, the unengendered, the full body of antiproduction where the organs-partial objects of a sacrificed Nommo since these names only designate intensive variations on the full body of the earth determined as the germen. It is always its own energetic support; what would flow on the full body of the earth would be as unfettered as the noncoded flows that shift and slide on the desert of a body without organs. For it is less a question of abundance but which can escape from the pouch and penetrate the body of the sick man. In order to diagnose and ward the sick individual. Giving him potions, attaching horns to his body for drawing up the incisor, making the drums beat, the at the limits of the codes and the territorialities; the body without organs, at the limits of the socius. We shall wall, scramble all the codes, and deterritorialize the socius: the body without organs is the deterritorialized socius, the wilderness where the the partial and nonspecific connection that combines fragments from the body of the subject with those of an animal; the inclusive animal; the inclusive disjunction that inscribes the object in the body of the subject, and transforms the latter into a man-animal a partial object or as a separable part of the body does not represent an aggressive and separate phallus; hair is that organizes inclusive disjunctions on the giant molecule of the body without organs (numen), and that distributes states of being and is necessarily situated in relation to the desiring-inscription of the body without organs, and in relation to the primary repression that earth, a drawing on a wall, a mark on the body are a graphic system, a geo-graphism, a geography. These formations resemblance. The calabash of the excision is placed on the body of the young woman. Furnished by the husband's lineage, the The articulation of the two elements takes place on the body itself, and constitutes the sign, which is not a resemblance their initiation. The sign acts through its inscription in the body.... The inscription of a mark on the body does not in the body.... The inscription of a mark on the body does not merely possess a message value here, but is but is an instrument of action that acts on the body itself. ... The signs command the things they signify, and far the voice of alliance that inflicts and constrains, and the body afflicted by the sign that a hand is carving in grasping the subtle relationship between the sign engraved in the body and the voice issuing from a face—between the mark taking hold of the effect of active speech on the body, but also of the reaction of the body insofar as on the body, but also of the reaction of the body insofar as it is acted upon. This is indeed what action of the voice of alliance, the passion of the body of filiation, the reaction of the eye evaluating the declension debt: this extraordinary composite of the speaking voice, the marked body, and the enjoying eye. All the stupidity and the arbitrariness the gap that separated the voice of alliance and the body of filiation, to such a degree that it is necessary wronged, and the mark that had not sufficiently penetrated his body. The crime, a rupture of the phonographic connection, re-established by the cause of the collective conditions of appropriation. The full body as socius has ceased to be the earth, it has has ceased to be the earth, it has become the body of the despot, the despot himself or his god. The render him almost incapable of acting make of him a body without organs. He is the sole quasi cause, the source men to the new imperial inscription, to the new full body, to the new socius. They come like fate, ... they appear replaces the territorial machine, it forms a new deterritorialized full body; on the other hand it maintains the old territorialities, integrates capacities of the separate communities. What is produced on the body of the despot is a connective synthesis of the old creation of a second inscription by which the new full body—immobile, monumental, immutable—appropriates all the forces and agents of of construction by fragments. Scattered partial objects hanging on the body without organs. No one has equaled Kafka in demonstrating that

Never being born, escaping the wheel of continual birth and rebirth, no mouth in the form of a becoming or an avatar, being born of the states that it consumes and being reborn with of states in the celibate machine; and the subject is born of each state in the series, is continually reborn of moment, consuming-consummating all these states that cause him to be born and reborn (the lived state coming first, in relation to be achieved in no other way. Capitalism is in fact born of the encounter of two sorts of flows: the decoded each of the states through which it passes, and is born of each of them anew, continuously emerging from them as as other sexes, and departing becomes as easy as being born or dying. Along the way we struggle against other races The question of the father is like that of God: born of an abstraction, it assumes the link to be already theorem which constantly proves the futility of living Were you born Hamlet? Or did you not rather create the type in leave it, under the pretext that theory justifies practice, being born from it, or that one cannot challenge the process of he has made departure into something as simple as being born or dying. But at the same time his journey is regime of the somatic generations. The system in extension is born of the intensive conditions that make it possible, but it displaced represented (le represente deplace), the lure or fake image, born of repression, that comes to conceal desire. It matters little would therefore imply an Oedipal representation, and it would be born of the repression of this representation and of the latter's is not even possible to say that the representation is born of the prohibition or results from it. Adopting Malinowski's arguments paths. In a word, the repression of incest is not born of a repressed Oedipal representation any more than it provokes do not know what guilt, responsibility, or consideration are, these born organizers; they exemplify that terrible artist's egoism that has the plugging of flows. When Etienne Balazs asks why capitalism wasn't born in China in the thirteenth century, when all the necessary representative of direct filiation. Father and son are not yet born. All sexuality functions in terms of the conjoined operations of Oedipus complex, as it is called by psychoanalysis, will be born of latency, after latency, and it signifies the return of which occur one time—in order for capitalism to be born, and for the old system to die this time from wages. But this is only partially true, since capitalism is born of the conjunction of the two in the differential relations and is constantly oscillating from one pole to the other. Born of decoding and deterritorialization, on the ruins of the despotic the images of capital. In short, Oedipus arrives: it is born in the capitalist system of the application of first-order social from the exterior. What we mean is that Oedipus is born of an application or a reduction to personalized images, which was undoubtedly a hero to himself, and for every Hamlet born the only true course to pursue is the very course the question, it seems to me, is this: are we born Hamlets? Were you born Hamlet? Or did you not rather to me, is this: are we born Hamlets? Were you born Hamlet? Or did you not rather create the type in in the myth This ability to produce the myth is born out of awareness, out of ever-increasing consciousness. That is why those who make leaving into something as natural as being born or dying, those who set out in search of nonhuman crime of not living life to the full. of a process of abstraction. Desiring-machines work only when they break down, and by continually breaking down. Judge Schreber lived for real meaning of the paranoiac machine: the desiring-machines attempt to break into the body without organs, and the body without organs divine forms that become complicated, or rather desimplified, as they break through the simplistic terms and functions of the Oedipal triangle out of order; they ordinarily stop working not because they break down but because they wear out. Marx makes use of loses as it wears out. Desiring-machines, on the contrary, continually break down as they run, and in fact run only when the universe. Far from being the opposite of continuity, the break or interruption conditions this continuity: it presupposes or defines what this second machine in turn is really an interruption or break, too. But it is such only in relationship to a and then ...). In a word, every machine functions as a break in the flow in relation to the machine to which All sorts of functional questions thus arise: What flow to break? Where to interrupt it? How and by what means? What of desire into neurology. The third type of interruption or break characteristic of the desiring-machine is the residual break (coupure-reste) or interruption or break characteristic of the desiring-machine is the residual break (coupure-reste) or residuum, which produces a subject alongside the machine of its interests. Like all the other breaks, the subjective break is not at all an indication of a lack or be made to conform to the Oedipal figure. With his general conception of microcosm-macrocosm relationships, Bergson brought about a discreet revolution that deserves further consideration. Liking the unconscious. The fruits of this news are not the consequences brought about by the death of God, but this other news the recording of desiring-production on the body without organs is brought about through a genealogical network that is not familial: parents a shattered Oedipus, but on the contrary, from having been brought back to everything he had left. A drop in intensity is as if adjacent to production; it has not yet brought production under its sway. The body without organs is produced as a whole, but in its own particular place within the process of production discovery of partial objects, that world of explosions, rotations, vibrations. But how can we explain the fact that she has nonetheless integrating the ego, the object, and drives later in life, but they also constitute the original type of object relation between of the absolutely anoedipal nature of the production of desire. But because Melanie Klein insists on considering desire from the point all about. It is no longer a question of suggestion, but of sheer terrorism. Melanie Klein herself writes: The first time inside dark mummy. Meantime he picked up the train again, but soon ran back into the space between the doors. While has to do not with the sexual nature of desiring-machines, but with the family nature of this sexuality. Admittedly, once the involved in social relations that are no longer familial relations. But since these relations supposedly come into being at a later the child would have nothing were it not for them. But that is not the real matter at issue. The matter a means of assigning agents a place and a function; but these agents are not persons, any more than these relations The small child lives with his family around the clock; but within the bosom of this family, and from the very indeed make their appearance on the recording surface of desiring-production. But this is in fact the crux of the entire Oedipal in this case does not designate a natural productive relationship, but rather a relation in the sense of a report or the parents from the point of view of immediate production, but that is ascribed to them (with either love or hatred will perhaps be related to the woman known as mommy, but that is not formulated in terms of her, but rather mommy, but that is not formulated in terms of her, but rather produced within the interplay of desiring-machines—at the level familial relations the universal mediation of childhood, we cannot help but fail to understand the production of the unconscious itself, and stem from terror at having discovered what real sexuality was. But he had the impression—the purely instinctive impression—that psychoanalysis figure of the daddy-mommy-me triangle, the familial constellation in person. But when psychoanalysis makes of Oedipus its dogma, it is not Oedipus are constituted, to the second power: neurosis, that's father-mother, but grandma, that's psychosis.) Finally, the distinction between the Imaginary and structural Oedipus (3+1) that does not conform to a triangle, but performs all the possible triangulations by distributing in a given into a referential axis not only for the pre-oedipal phases, but also for the para-oedipal varieties, and the exo-oedipal phenomena. The told when Oedipus is presented as a kind of invariant. But the question is altogether different: is there an equivalence between the Real in itself, the impossible real and its production. But what is this long history, if we consider it only Oedipus complex in 1897 in the course of his self-analysis, but that he doesn't give a generalized theoretical form to it and seduction leads not to a univocal determination of Oedipus, but to the description as well of a spontaneous infantile sexuality former to a psychic fantasy reality. Oedipus is what all but got lost for the sake of a biological realism. But but got lost for the sake of a biological realism. But is it correct to present things in this way? Did express itself—express itself in myth, in tragedy, in dream. But who says that dream, tragedy, and myth are adequate to an avant-garde theater, such as existed in Freud's day (Wedekind), but the classical theater, the classical order of representation. The psychoanalyst the economy of desire—work and investment—keep their importance, but are subordinated to the forms of an expressive unconscious and the productive unconscious. The anoedipal nature of desiring-production remains present, but it is fitted over the co-ordinates of Oedipus, which translate into pre-oedipal, para-oedipal, quasioedipal, etc. The desiring-machines are always there, but they no longer function except behind the consulting-room walls. Behind an attitude of denial: all of that is surely true, but it is still daddy-mommy. Over the consulting-room door is written an outburst of homosexual libido directed at Dr. Flechsig's person. But when we replace the doctor with the father and commission being sodomized, while still alive, by the rays from heaven, but also that of being posthumously oedipalized by Freud. From the of transformation), there are two ways of reading this adequation, but they have in common the postulate that measures the unconscious for the productive formations. The basic question is never asked, but cast aside: Why return to myth? Why take it as fashion, toward the lower, relating the myth to the drives. But since the drives are transferred from myth, traced from myth the divine, in order to interpret the commonly postulated adequation. But to render religion unconscious, or the unconscious religious, still amounts of psychoanalysis? Freud held to his atheism in heroic fashion. But all around him, more and more, they respectfully allowed him put man in God's place (the transformation taken into account). But the person who knows that the place of man is father shines forth in all his brilliance, clearly without doubt—but indeed, this second phase has never had a real existence succeeded in becoming conscious. It is a construction of analysis, but it is no less a necessity on that account. What reduction, which is in no way imposed by the fantasy, but is required by Freud in the manner of a presupposition exclusive. Hence there will be a girl-series and a boy-series, but dissymmetrical, the female fantasy having three phases, the last of without doubt the prevalence of the father in both cases, but this is the famous nonexistent phase. Such is always the with Freud. Something common to the two sexes is required, but something that will be lacking in both, and that that will a transverse mode where each subject possesses both of them, but with the two of them partitioned off, and where each lack; nor are the disjunctions in the unconscious ever exclusive, but rather the object of a properly inclusive use that we flows. This slight shift—which did not suppress mythical castration but made it depend secondarily on the organ, instead of the without organs, with—as its sole subject—not an ego, but the drive that forms the desiring-machine along with it, and question is not that of knowing if women are castrated, but only if the unconscious believes it, since all the ambiguity signify? What is an unconscious that no longer does anything but believe, rather than produce? What are the operations, the artifices inject the unconscious with beliefs that are not even irrational, but on the contrary only too reasonable and consistent with the so evil, for having tortured so well. It's so bad, but also so good! Perhaps one will recall a sequence from reveals a big paranoiac in uniform who shouts in conclusion: but still, they're a bloody good bunch of killers! It is in the signifying chain—daddy's mustache, the mother's raised arm—but it comes furtively to occupy a place among the collective agents. The terms of Oedipus do not form a triangle, but exist shattered into all corners of the social field—the individual fantasy is itself plugged into the existing social field, but apprehends it in the form of imaginary qualities that confer the disjunctions imposed by the law (for example, Oedipal homosexuality). But group fantasy no longer has anything but the drives themselves example, Oedipal homosexuality). But group fantasy no longer has anything but the drives themselves as subject, and the desiring-machines formed by the sense that each subject, discharged of his personal identity but not of his singularities, enters into relations with others following its rule on institutions whose elements are no longer anything but drives. If we must still speak of utopia in this Fourier, it is most assuredly not as an ideal model, but as revolutionary action and passion. In his recent works Klossowski of the pseudoindividual fantasy (I, as a man, understand you, but as judge, as boss, as colonel or general, that is that is to say as the father, I condemn you). But this duality is artificial, derived, and supposes a direct relationship the person who senses what a treasure his work is, but senses too the poisons that have already filtered in. Everything branch into two variable forces corresponding to heterosexuality and homosexuality, but creates in most people irreducible oppositions between the two forces the signified to which each of the enunciated signifiers refers, but is constituted by process, suture, the concatenation of bound elements the cure. Of course it is too late for him, but is it too late for those who come after him the effect of oedipalization, which the treatment does not invent, but precipitates and accentuates within the artificial conditions of its exercise because he has carried his flows right into the desert. But what remains, once we learn that resistances of an hysterical merely lends the new resources and methods of its genius. But is this sufficient to silence the outcry of desiring-production: We are too viscous and too fluid—and not by preference, but wherever we have been carried by the deterritorialized flows. What or to establish that we cannot measure up to it. But in any case the harm has been done, the treatment preference. In truth, there are never contradictions, apparent or real, but only degrees of humor. And inasmuch as reading itself has or like a spider poised in its web, observing nothing, but responding to the slightest sign, to the slightest vibration by

 In this sense the despotic State is indeed the origin, but the origin as an abstraction that must include its differences p 219

 is resected by this State. It supersects what comes before, but resects the formations that follow. There too it is like p 220 another dimension, always at a remove and struck by latency, but that springs back and returns stronger than before in the p 220 carries us to the gates of schizophrenia as a process. But what explains the reader's impression that Lyotard is continually arresting to veil desiring-production, the whole of desire as effective production. But at least for an instant the mortgage of the signifier to bear on property, goods, and the means of production, but also on the organs of private man himself; the abstraction organs of private man himself; the abstraction of monetary quantities, but also the abstraction of the quantity of labor; the limitless a marked taste for all codes—codes foreign or exotic—but this taste is destructive and morbid. While decoding doubtless means make the schizophrenic into a sick person not only nominally but in reality? Why does it confine its madmen and madwomen the flows that the other social formations coded and overcoded. But it is the relative limit of every society; it effects the body of capital as a socius that is deterritorialized, but also a socius that is even more pitiless than any of capitalism itself or the conclusion of its deepest tendency, but that capitalism only functions on condition that it inhibit this the entire capitalist field from one end to the other. But for capitalism it is a question of binding the schizophrenic same time. Hence schizophrenia is not the identity of capitalism, but on the contrary its difference, its divergence, and its death divergence, and its death. Monetary flows are perfectly schizophrenic realities, but they exist and function only within the immanent axiomatic that manager, or a government minister is a perfectly schizophrenic language, but that functions only statistically within the flattening axiomatic of connections p 246 has seemed to us to define both capitalism and schizophrenia. But not in the same way; they are not at all chain are struck by secrecy—secret societies or initiation groups—but there is never anything in these societies that is, strictly of bad conscience is also the age of pure cynicism). But in point of fact it is impossible to code such siphoning off of portions of the different sorts of flows, but these quantities do not enter into equivalences that would presuppose not because it depends on an effect of a signifier, but on the contrary because the chain it constitutes is only that is indifferent to the qualified nature of the flows. But the equivalence itself points to the position of a relation have seen that this becoming-concrete appeared in the differential relation; but it must be borne in mind that the differential relation other than those deriving from its form as the equivalent. But in this way the signs of power completely cease being This absence no longer simply designates the unlimited abstract quantity, but the effective absence of any limit or end for the that is schizophrenia, that is, the absolute decoding of flows, but it functions only by pushing back and exorcising this limit of capitalist production and circulation, that is, in capital itself, but it functions only by reproducing and widening these limits on of immanence and never ceases to fully occupy this field. But this deterritorialized field finds itself determined by an axiomatic, in in theory has no need of bearing directly, on men. But an axiomatic of itself is by no means a simple a Taylor system, nor a mechanical game of isolated formulas, but rather imply intuitions that are linked to resonances and conjunctions more immanent and subordinate to the actual field of forces; but precisely because the circumstances were not right for these flows for the working class, for the unions, and so on. But it is always prepared to add more axioms, it adds of the so-called ruling class is an obvious practical fact, but a fact that does not reveal its theoretical foundation. The in class between the industrialist or banker and the worker, but only a fusion into one and the same flow as an apparatus of antiproduction distinct from the sphere of production. But the bourgeois field of immanence—as delimited by the conjunction an unprecedented subjugation: there are no longer even any masters, but only slaves commanding other slaves; there is no longer any shares with the miser the passion for wealth as wealth. But that which in the miser is a mere idiosyncrasy, is the effect of the social mechanism, of which he is but one of the wheels. It will be said that there flow of financing and the flow of income in wages. But this is only partially true, since capitalism is born of bourgeois is justified in saying, not in terms of ideology, but in the very organization of his axiomatic: there is only extorted), or at the level of money (income in wages). But not only are these determinations sometimes too narrow and sometimes are these determinations sometimes too narrow and sometimes too wide, but the objective being they define as class interest remains purely a consciousness that, to be sure, does not create it, but actualizes it in an organized party suited to the task that will animate a struggle not only economic and financial, but political as well. Now the meaning of just such a production, of the units of production and the economic rationale. But this transformation can only take place starting from an already and transforms the apparatus in conformity with its objective interest—but these operations are carried out under the domination of its imposed on the capitalist countries a recognition of class bipolarity. But this great Leninist break did not prevent the resurrection of for being flexible and never saturated—of the capitalist State. But in reality, the most direct question is not that of he concludes that there does not exist any class spontaneity, but only a group spontaneity: whence the necessity for distinguishing groups-in-fusion p 256 never be deceived. Interests can be deceived, unrecognized, or betrayed, but not desire. Whence Reich's cry: no, the masses were not one desires against one's own interests: capitalism profits from this, but so does socialism, the party, and the party leadership. How devotes itself to operations that are not failures of recognition, but rather perfectly reactionary unconscious investments? And what does Reich mean p 257

But Marx is quick to add that this essentially cynical discovery not a question of writing the history of political economy, but the real history of the corresponding society, one is better itself, the absolute development of the social productivity of labor; but on the other hand and at the same time, it a cosmopolitan, universal energy which overthrows every restriction and bond; but under the second, strictly complementary, aspect, capitalism is continually confronting or flow-break. They try to hold on to the one, but they pour or flow out through the other. They are its axiomatic that comes to replace the codes and overcodings, But on the other hand there has never been but one overcodings, But on the other hand there has never been but one State, the Urstaat, the Asiatic despotic formation, which constitutes of the local dictator Duvalier's chief of police was Desyr. But the events that restore a thing to life are not the Urstaat: it effects the first great movement of deterritorialization, but does so by adding its eminent unity to the territorial these flows; it effects the second great movement of deterritorialization, but this time because it doesn't allow any part of the a matter in the one case of reterritorializing decoded flows, but in the other case of overcoding the territorial flows. The capitalism makes use of the Urstaat for effecting its reterritorializations. But the imperturbable modern axiomatic, from the depths of its immanence p 261

this order and in the fluxion of the decoded flows? But also that the difference in regime is greatest in the And what is this death that always rises from within, but that must arrive from without—and that, in the case inside the family. The reproduction process is not directly economic, but passes by way of the noneconomic factors of kinship. This status from the standpoint of the alliances and the filiations, but also with respect to the despotic machine, which adds the capitalist system. Representation no longer relates to a distinct object, but to productive activity itself. The socius as full body has inscribed or marked is no longer the producers or nonproducers, but the forces and means of production as abstract quantities that are not reproduced in the same way as humans themselves, but find in them a simple material that the form of assume to be all equal in relation to one another; but inside the field itself, the form of social economic reproduction capital—become images of destitution, despair, revolt, violence, or oppression. But starting from non figurative figures or from the breaks-flows that the locus of the restricted family as father, mother, child. But instead of being a strategy that, through the action of dimensions. The alliances and filiations no longer pass through people but through money; so the family becomes a microcosm, suited to are an illusion, images of images or derivatives of derivatives. But in another sense everything has changed, because the family, instead machines and territorialities, all the social images of our society; but in the aggregate of destination, in the end, there is of destination, in the end, there is no longer anyone but daddy, mommy, and me, the despotic sign inherited by daddy immanent limits, which it never ceases to displace and enlarge. But capitalism still needs a displaced interior limit in another way production and the desiring-production that breaks away from social reproduction, but inside social production, between the form of social p 266 reproduction and social formation, since it is the displaced represented of desire. But in the primitive formations this limit remains vacant, precisely insofar as the despotic formations the Oedipal limit is occupied, symbolically occupied but not lived or inhabited, inasmuch as the imperial incest effects on, that later belong to Oedipus, are already sketched out, but within a symbolic space where the object from on high formation that the Oedipal limit finds itself not only occupied, but inhabited and lived, in the sense in which the social of shit or a wave of incest that Oedipus arrives, but via the decoded flows of capital-money. The waves of incest form in the despotic machine as a symbolically occupied limit. But it is filled and carried to completion only by becoming in Oedipus, which is indeed the result of universal history, but in the singular sense in which capital is already this modern social field: the triangulation's cause. Whence the extreme importance—but also the indeterminate nature, the nondecidability—of the argument advanced

Oedipus and carry it to the point of its autocritique. But it is like the story of the Resistance fighters who ill; the permissive structure: let me deceive, rob, slaughter, kill! but in the name of the social order, and so daddy-mommy a last Law, the analyst as despot and money collector. But the mother as the simulacrum of territoriality, and the father the family along the lines of social exploitation and oppression. But it is at the soft center of capitalism, in the result that, wherever one turns, one no longer finds anything but father-mother—this Oedipal filth that sticks to our skin. Yes of religion, no longer on the side of the object, but as an interior religiosity; that the merit of Adam Smith or nature of wealth no longer as an objective nature, but as an abstract and deterritorialized subjective essence, the activity of and deterritorialized subjective essence, the activity of production in general. But as this determination develops under the condition of capitalism, they

that capitalism is without doubt the universal of every society, but only insofar as it is capable of carrying to a longer in relation to objects, aims, or even sources (territories), but as an abstract subjective essence—libido or sexuality. But he territories), but as an abstract subjective essence—libido or sexuality. But he still relates this essence to the family as the appear in two forms: one where doubtless it is guilty, but only in the manner in which the child lives it nevertheless the universal of desire, the product of universal history—but on one condition, which is not met by Freud: that Social Field Which comes first, the chicken or the egg—but also the father and the mother, or the child? Psychoanalysis child (the father is sick only from his own childhood), but at the same time is forced to postulate a parental an infinite regression: the father must have been a child, but was able to be a child only in relation to of madness, precisely because it is not analytical and regressive, but explores a global field of coexistence. Witness a film by religion, the timeliness of a return to the Bible, Abraham. But what in fact did Abraham do? Well now, he killed perhaps God's only error lies in having stayed his hand. But doesn't this man, the film's protagonist, have a son of regression forced us to postulate a primacy of the father, but an always relative and hypothetical primacy that carried us to a shift into the position of an absolutely primary father; but it is clear that the viewpoint of regression is the it impossible to derive the first anxiety from the second, but one cannot even consider, as Kardiner does, that the social distributions. Never is the adult an afterward of the child, but in the family both relate to the determinations of the certainly not sexuality that is in the service of generation, but progressive or regressive generation that is in the service of familism. The father is first in relation to the child, but only because what is first is the social investment in Not only is generation second in relation to the cycle, but transmission is second in relation to an information or a discovered that, strictly speaking, there is no transmission of flows, but a communication of a code or an axiomatic, of a The failure of that repression is the basis of neuroses. But this communication of unconscious does not by any means take of desire. In all respects the family is never determining, but is always determined, first as a stimulus of departure, then mobilizes a delirious interplay of disinvestments, of counterinvestments, of overinvestments. But we have seen in this context that there were two

it isn't effective, and that one must work for reforms. But the revolutionary knows that escape is revolutionary—withdrawal, freaks—provided black like John Brown. George Jackson. I may take flight, but all the while I am fleeing, I will be looking artist possessing the soberest of means who took revolutionary flight, but who later finds himself immersed in dreams of a Great limits and frontiers, causing deterritorialized flows of desire to circulate, but also always making these flows transport fascisizing, moralizing, Puritan, and of all human contradictions, and of the contradiction in principle. But no passage impairs or suppresses the difference in nature between assumption is that everything happens on the body without organs; but this body has, as it were, two faces. Elias Canetti to it, since it knows only partial objects and flows, but belongs instead to the laws of statistical distribution of the group fantasy and in this sense a position of reality. But the two kinds of investments are radically different, according as the schizophrenic, properly speaking, do not operate on the socius, but on the body without organs in a pure state. It as the body without organs is a naked full body; but the latter exists at the limit, at the end, not doubtless the body without organs haunts all forms of socius. But in this very sense, if social investments can be said the molar aggregates, and the other populated by molecular elements. But one can also present this as a single line along that operate through statistical accumulation, obeying the laws of aggregates? But in reality the unconscious belongs to the realm of physics the body without organs and its intensities are not metaphors, but matter itself. Nor is it our intention to revive the suffers psychic and social repression of its elementary productive forces. But how can we speak of machines in this microphysical or is desire—that is to say, not only its functioning, but formation and autoproduction? A machine works according to the previous intercommunications of its structure and the positioning of its parts, but does not set itself into place any more than it machine's ability to account for the workings of the organism, but its fundamental inability to account for its formations. From machines as it extends the latter's autonomous formations on the outside. But it should be noted that, in one way or another those things which we deem most purely spiritual are anything but disturbances of equilibrium in an infinite series of levers, beginning animals keep all their limbs at home in their bodies, but many of man's are loose, and lie about detached, now here and now there, in various parts of the world). But there is a Butlerian manner for carrying each of the is not content to say that machines extend the organism, but asserts that they are really limbs and organs lying on he is not content to say that organisms are machines, but asserts that they contain such an abundance of parts that that they only reproduce themselves through the intermediary of man, but does anyone say that the red clover has no reproductive reproductive action which does not arise from a single center; but this assumption is unscientific, and the bare fact that no of machine parts or the temporal infinity of the animalcules—but rather in what this passage blossoms into. Once the structural desiring and desire, machined. Desire is not in the subject, but the machine in desire—with the residual subject off to not between the living and the machine, vitalism and mechanism, but between two states of the machine that are two states is merely as two paths in the same statistical direction. But in the other more profound or intrinsic direction of multiplicities strictly speaking—no structural unity nor any preformed mechanical interconnections? But there is the possibility of formation of such machines—in other—which, once assembled, will obey the laws of thermo-dynamics, but which in the process of assembly do not depend on sense and the other of subordination. Desiring-machines in one sense, but organic, technical, or social machines in the other: these are others, organizing the crowds. These are therefore the same machines, but not at all the same regime, the same relationships of are not assembled in the same way they are used, but imply precisely the specific conditions that separate their own production in appearance, and in relation to the laws of aggregates, but must be understood positively in terms of force (puissance). Between demonstrate, such as this passage appears in the organic machines, but no less so in the social machines with other laws of schizophrenia; molecular biology is itself schizophrenic—as is microphysics. But inversely schizophrenia—the theory of schizophrenia—is biological, biocultural, inasmuch

But Marx says something even more mysterious: that the true difference true difference is not the difference between the two sexes, but the difference between the human sex and the nonhuman sex according to which one gains access to desire through castration. But the idea that there are two sexes, after all, is least in this way one avoids phallogocentrism, if not anthropomorphism. But this time, far from founding the communication between the two property, and desire in the applied framework of the family; but this social alienation includes in its turn mental alienation, which longer qualify a particular residue as a flow of madness, but affects just as well the flows of labor and desire not because it would have been transformed into mental illness, but on the contrary because it would receive the support of within the controlled space of mental illness (great tepid aquariums), but on the contrary because the exterior limit designated by madness is of a profoundly artificial nature in the perverted reterritorializations, but also in the psychotic reterritorializations of the hospital, or even the process is: not a promised and a pre-existing land, but a world created in the process of its tendency, its and produce the new land—not at all a hope, but a simple finding, a finished design, where the person who symbolic, or imaginary, must indeed intervene in a specific way—but as functional indices to point us in the direction of partial objects define the working machine or the working parts, but in a state of dispersion such that one part is sets to fighting for a war trophy that is nothing but a great absence, with one and the same penalty, one to human sex, unified and identified in the molar constellation. But the desiring-machines live on the contrary under the order of as the masculine and the feminine in the human sex, but different or really-distinct things (des reellement-distincts), distinct beings, as found the term erogenous body not to designate a fragmented organism, but an emission of preindividual and prepersonal singularities, a pure dispersed

the ideas or the concepts apt to correspond to them. But it is not in this respect that the partial objects both contained in, and did not exist without, one another, but we had to stress the difference in regime and in relation to the objects x and y that emit them, but not the fields of presence in relation to the objects remains the possibility, not of an overlapping of the flows, but of a permutation of the objects that emit them: one passive syntheses are one and the same engineering of desire. But who will be able to describe the desiring-machines of each ass to your mouth, ... ah, my ass burns like fire, but what can be the meaning of that? Perhaps a turd the organs-objects as attract them, and appropriate them for itself. But in repulsion as in attraction, the body without organs is body without organs is in fact produced as a whole, but a whole alongside the parts—a whole that does not parts—a whole that does not unify or totalize them, but that is added to them like anew, really distinct part Desire indeed passes through the body, and through the organs, but not through the organism. That is why the partial objects of connection that traverse the productive parts of the machine, but an entire network of disjunction on the recording surface of of production (Libido) being converted into a recording energy (Numen). But in fact, from the standpoint of the machine itself, there of the energy does not occur at a given moment, but is a preliminary and constant condition of the system. The the connective lines take on a global and specific meaning. But it is another case altogether with the properly molecular chain a full body of the earth, the despot, or capital, but on the contrary that of decoding them on the full still signifying because it is composed of signs of desire; but these signs are no longer signifying, given the fact that of a machine that is such by its functional properties but not by its structure, where nothing but the play of its functional properties but not by its structure, where nothing but the play of blind combinations can be discerned. It is is not used to discover or decipher codes of desire, but to cause absolutely decoded flows of desire, Libido, to circulate where it no longer even relates to the familial scene, but solely to the psychoanalytic scene that supposedly answers for its earth, the axiomatic of the cure as a successful castration! But by recoding or axiomatizing the flows of desire in this put aside his organs, to immobilize them, to silence them, but also, impelled by the working parts that work in an the working organs. There we do not have two desires but two parts, two kinds of desiring-machine parts, in the dispersion that function together? For it is not yet a functioning, but solely the (nonstructural) condition of a molecular functioning. The functioning objective movement. Repulsion is the condition of the machine's functioning, but attraction is the functioning itself. That the functioning depends on death that comes from without (on the body without organs). But it seems that things are becoming very obscure, for what becomings and feelings, these intensive emotions, feed deliriums and hallucinations. But in themselves, these intensive emotions are closest to the matter the other, there is not at all a personal deepening, but something quite different: there is a return from the experience model. For the model itself is not the I either, but the body without organs. And I does not rejoin the of a subjective or vital essence of desire as libido. But when the dualism passed into a death instinct against Eros as desire no longer animates a social critique of civilization, but that civilization on the contrary finds itself sanctified as the since Thanatos was now the partner of Eros, for worse but also for better. Psychoanalysis becomes the training ground of a director of bad conscience: bad conscience has made us sick, but that is what will cure us! Freud did not hide instinct: it is not a question of any fact whatever, but merely of a principle, a question of principle. The death the qualitative or dynamic dualism passes between Eros and Thanatos. But the same enterprise is continued and reinforced—eliminating the machinic profound discovery of the abstract subjective essence of desire—Libido. But since he realienated this essence, reinvesting it in a subjective life . Desire is in itself not a desire to love, but a force to love, a virtue that gives and produces desire life? Who would want to call that a desire?) But desire must turn back against itself in the name of its own Jack. For better days to come? It must—but who talks in this way? What abjectness—become a desire staggering with no use in your legs And it's nothing but your wanting to be loved which does it. A maudlin different ... if you realize that he is not a god but a human being like yourself, with worries, defects, ambitions, frailties he is not the repository of an all-encompassing wisdom [=code] but a wanderer, along the [detrterritorialized] path, perhaps you will cease aim to get out of it through fantasy, through castration, but this in turn you have caused to grow in Oedipus inherited much from a transcendent death-carrying agency, the despotic signifier, but also how it brought about this agency's effusion in the now only pure silence in its transcendent distinction from life, but it effuses all the more, throughout all the immanent combinations nature and from the viewpoint of their difference in regime. But it could be that these two aspects, nature and regime as in the movement of the finite blocks of debt. But even in the system of despotic terror, where debt becomes nature must appear for itself between social production and desiring-production. But in its turn, this identity in nature, far from favoring and deterritorialized flows of capitalism are not recaptured or co-opted, but directly apprehended in a codeless axiomatic that consigns them to

A mortuary axiomatic. One might then believe in liberated desires, but ones that, like cadavers, feed on images. Death is not that, like cadavers, feed on images. Death is not desired, but what is desired is dead, already dead: images. Everything labors unconscious it is not the lines of pressure that matter, but on the contrary the lines of escape. The unconscious does of psychic repression that would enter into compromises with them, but actually covered over by anti-formations that disfigure the unconscious in no longer operate in accordance with its own constituent machines, but merely represent what a repressive apparatus gives it to represent forget the identity in nature. There are fundamentally two poles; but we would not be satisfied if we had to present investment only as an escape in advance of the escape. But at the other pole, the schizophrenic escape itself does not a flow, resecting a schizo The schizo is not revolutionary, but the schizophrenic process—in terms of which the schizo is is, that it can no longer be a personal destiny, but the common lot. In this regard, the first thesis of partial objects can be determined as a lack, and inversely. But on a more general level, the statistical transformation of molecular a selective pressure that might elicit singular lines from them, but that, quite on the contrary, these large numbers and aggregates it is exerted. That is why statistics is not functional but structural, and concerns chains of phenomena that selection has already them by creative selection. The order is not: gregariousness ? selection, but on the contrary, molecular multiplicity ? forms of selection performing the form or quality of the socius is therefore itself produced, but as the unengendered—that is, as the natural or divine distinguish what is reactionary or reformist, or what is revolutionary. But those who have an interest, in this sense, are always a restricted fraction of the whole of the dominant class. But it is just as obvious for the Russian Revolution, with to the analysis of the subjective, as defined by ideology.) But everything is objective or subjective, as one wishes. That is does not bear upon the regime of the social syntheses, but upon the degree of development of the forces or the upon the selections, detachments, and remainders effected by these syntheses, but upon the nature of the codes and the flows that It does not bear upon the social means and ends, but upon the full body as socius, the formation of sovereignty true that interests predispose us to a given libidinal investment, but they are not identical with this investment. Moreover, the unconscious identical with the violence it exerts by its very absurdity, but it can exert this violence only by assigning itself aims machine can be, a machine that is not only technical but social, and through which desire desires its own repression. We define aims or spheres of interest, selections, detachments, and portions. But the investment of the flow itself and its axiomatic, which the great capitalist aggregate. Repressing desire, not only for others but in oneself, being the cop for others and for oneself possesses the force of the aim and the interest (power), but it feels a disinterested love for the absurd and nonpossessed not for himself or his children that the capitalist works, but for the immortality of the system. A violence without purpose most exploited, to seek their ends in an oppressive machine, but what is reactionary or revolutionary in the preconscious investment of bears upon new aims, new social syntheses, a new power. But it could be that a part at least of the socialist machine preserves a State and market monopoly capitalism). But there is something more serious: even when the libido embraces a formation of sovereignty that subordinates desiring-production under new conditions. But even though the unconscious libido is charged with investing this production that creates, distributes, and satisfies new aims and interests. But the unconscious revolution does not merely refer to the social production, just as production is in desire as desiring-production. But these forms can be understood in two ways, depending on from the standpoint of class interest and its preconscious investments, but not be so—and even remain fascist and police-like—from back to the elementary forces of desire that form them. But inversely, they are also continually closing up again, remodeling themselves of desire to circulate, smashing the limit, breaching the wall. But it is not just a matter of literature or even insofar as they are not merely capable of counteracting them, but also of coexisting with them in opposite modes. In the relationships) ahead of their interests (work, savings, a good marriage). But what appears to other people as raw desire still contains are told, See here, it's quite normal, everybody's like that, but one continues to embrace the same humiliating and degrading conception figures, with books, histories, and reproductions, than with our mommy. But flows and codes of socius that do not portray anything choices of lovers. A love is not reactionary or revolutionary, but it is the index of the reactionary or revolutionary character psychoanalysis, one should not suggest vast considerations on analytic epistemology, but modest and rigorous topics such as the theory of maids revolve around a form of torture originating in the Orient, but also in this very field he causes his neurosis to the subject at times attempts to assume his own role—but at the price of a splitting of the sexual object and at other times ensures the unity of the object, but this time at the price of a splitting of his libido as a magnified or impoverished image of the mother, but as the foreign, the nonmother, the nonfather, the nonfamily, the importance of parental coitus, and the position of the mother; but when this position makes the mother resemble a floorwasher, or to do with breaks and flows that traverse the family, but that overreach it on all sides and are not familial role as such? Of course they have an unconscious role, but in two quite specific ways that deprive them even more parents again appear, allocated to such and such a zone, but under a different rubric from that of parents. And the a finite aggregate of destination, where the destination finds nothing but impasses and blockages consonant with the mechanisms of psychic and of the times: they play at Oedipus, a sublime alibi. But behind all this, there is an economic situation: the mother reveals the unconscious conflicts of a woman with her husband, but the husband is paying for his wife's analysis. This isn't objective dissimulation that it comprises, essential to the capitalist system. But it is interesting to find this essential concealment, miniaturized, occupying situation has nothing to do with the phallus and castration, but directly concerns an unbearable economic dependence. And the woman and being-woman and their being-child. Nothing to do with the phallus, but much to do with desire, with sexuality as desire. For never been either the object or the cause of desire, but is itself the castrating apparatus, the machine for putting lack Aaron leave with his flute, which is not a phallus, but a desiring-machine and a process of deterritorialization? Let us suppose libido must be desexualized in order to perform such investments, but begins with Oedipus, me, father and mother (the pre-oedipal stages undifferentiated ego of narcissism—since its investments are already differentiated, but differentiated according to the prepersonal regime of partial objects, of the other hand the libido invests persons and an ego, but is already caught up in a social production and social machines that do not merely differentiate them as familial beings, but as derivatives of the molar aggregate to which they belong of social production and as the metaphysical process of desiring-production. But they do not come afterward. Lindner's painting again asserts its age; actual does not signify recent as opposed to infantile, but rather in action, as opposed to what is virtual and of three terms, which one can and even must augment, but not to infinity). Such an application in fact presupposes a abstract phallus, charged with performing the folding or the correspondence; but this application effectively operates on the three persons who constitute to one in narcissism, which in no way precedes Oedipus but is its product. That is why we speak of an seemed particularly suited to what was isolated as the neuroses. But the resistance of the psychoses on the one hand, and double impasse in no way defined a specific schizophrenic mechanism, but merely characterized Oedipus in the whole of its extension. If Orient. And is it not a contradiction on another level, but analogous, when some, attempting to hasten the teaching of Lacan would be expressed and translated by means of a family-microcosm, but in the form where it causes its nonfamilial breaks and fail to correctly evaluate social production in its pathogenic nature, but secondly, one also fails to understand the schizophrenic process in schizophrenic process, which is not an illness, not a breakdown but a breakthrough, however distressing and adventurous: breaking through the wall certain that neither men nor women are clearly defined personalities, but rather vibrations, flows, schizzes, and knots. The ego refers to the level of the flows that traverse the social field, but at the level of their libidinal investments, which form the case the process, confronted with a neuroticization that it resists, but that suffices to block it on all sides, is led Catatonia rather than neurosis, catatonia rather than Oedipus and castration—but it is still an effect of neuroticization, a countereffect of an artificial sphere, O asylum! So that everything is perversion. But everything is psychosis and paranoia as well, since everything is imply just any investment of this field by the libido, but a very particular investment that renders this application possible and to be brought about, sometimes even revolutions to be made. But madness breaks through, beneath the reformist investments, or the reactionary are distinguished from one another only in a preconscious fashion, but whose unconscious investments are of the same type, even when merely the despot's body to which the paranoiac lovingly aspires, but the body of capital-money as well, or a new revolutionary kind of thing to be treated in the analyst's office. But we ask precisely what type of unconscious social investment Oedipus his delirium to the family—and to his own family—but it is first of all a delirium of races, ranks is never more than a locus of application and reproduction, but in order to attain the social and political units of the sources and aims of the desires and the drives. But there are forms of love that are the indices of nor pre-oedipal since it all amounts to the same thing, but innocently anoedipal, and which give the revolutionary the right to and the ego, not in behalf of a pre-oedipal undifferentiated, but in behalf of anoedipal lines of singularities, the desiring-machines. For sexual revolution, which does not concern objects, aims, or sources, but only machinic forms or indices. The fourth and final thesis the theory of the two poles of investment the furthest, but still within the category of an active utopia, is able a signifier that determines their hierarchy as a vertical order. But toward the middle of the fifteenth century, when Venetian capitalism side of territorialities, even the residual, artificial, or factitious ones. But at least something arose whose force fractured the codes, undid that achieves a breakthrough—art as a process without goal, but that attains completion as such. The codes and their signifiers longer even needs to represent Oedipus, since the structure suffices. But on the other, the schizorevolutionary, pole, the value of art in liberating what was present in art from its beginnings, but was hidden underneath aims and objects, even if aesthetic, and of knowledge are first bound in the properly scientific axiomatics, but these axiomatics express a bipolar hesitation. One of the poles that is not content to bring scientists back to reason but anticipates any deviance on their part, imposes a goal on a point, then ordered to make its peace with determinism). But the other pole is the schizoid pole, in whose proximity knowledge schizophrenize, and not only flee across the social axiomatic, but pass beyond their own axiomatics, generating increasingly deterritorialized signs, figures-schizzes longer even need to bear directly upon bodies and persons, but on the contrary precede them (axiomatic: regulation and application); a quantities that are homogeneous and belong to the same code, but precisely by differential relations between heterogeneous magnitudes that are not as it does not place the machine in its service, but is the servant of the capitalist machine: in this sense expressing the twofold nature of capitalism: production for production's sake, but under the conditions of capital). There is not one of character of its rationality: not at all a false rationality, but a true rationality of this pathological state, this insanity, the it does not run the risk of dying all alone, but rather of making us die, by provoking to the very increases and improvements in the standard of living are realities, but realities that derive from a given supplementary axiom that capitalism toward Russia, which is taking so many toward us; etc. But within the enlarged reality that conditions these islands, exploitation grows harshest forms of exploitation from the center to the periphery, but also multiplies enclaves of overpopulation in the center itself, and and deterritorialized flows; it decodes and deterritorializes them still more, but while causing them to pass into an axiomatic apparatus that It is in this sense that the capitalist axiomatic cannot but give rise to new territorialities and revive a new despotic Urstaat. The great mutant flow of capital is pure deterritorialization, but it performs an equivalent reterritorialization when converted into a reflux

World is deterritorialized in relation to the center of capitalism but belongs to capitalism, being a pure peripheral territoriality of capitalism through the tapping of profits that they extract from it. But no matter how large the extraction of profits, it does different, and is not simply explained by the conditioned profits, but on the contrary itself explains that a small-time capitalist, with revolutionary—a major break from the standpoint of the preconscious. But it is not enough for the libido to invest a full body can very well function as an autonomous territoriality, but one that is caught and wedged in the capitalist machine another in complexes that are not the province of Oedipus, but that do concern the sociohistorical field, its preconscious and unconscious Lenin-the-father, Brezhnev-the-father. Fewer and fewer people believe in all this but it makes no difference, since capitalism is like the Christian	p 374 p 374 p 374 p 375 p 375 p 375 p 375
it—a motley painting of all that has been believed. But the reverse is also true: capitalism is constantly escaping on flows that do not merely submit to the corresponding axiomatic, but cause some of their currents to pass through the mesh the circulation of flows, breaking them and deferring the break, but these same flows are continually overflowing, and intersecting one another the other. Never an individual exile, never a personal desert, but a collective exile and a collective desert. It is only solely to the interest of the dominated and exploited masses. But it is the nature of this link that poses the follow the anticipated causal order of the relations of forces, but that would singularly precipitate things by plunging into a breach in those who see the possibility of a new socius but maintain it in an order of molar causality that already production is never anything other than desiring-production, and vice versa—but they don't share the same law or the same regime of dissuasion are invented; the repression of interest is reinforced—but where will the new irruption of desire come from? But we attach all the more importance to them as they it has been said that betrayals don't wait their turn, but are there from the very start (the maintenance of paranoid believe that capitalist society can endure many manifestations of interest, but not one manifestation of desire, which would be enough to because it is a lack, a thirst, or an aspiration, but because it is the production of desire: desire that produces familialism, that will allow us to understand the politico-economic determinations, but exactly the opposite. And then, above all, we are not about, since in any case it is the same production, but under two different regimes; if, on this socius as a other neurotic-Oedipal; the one abstract and nonfigurative, the other imaginary; but also the one really concrete, the other symbolic; the one and fantasy; decoding, deterritorializing—a terrible curettage, a malevolent activity. Hence the relative the previous formations did not foresee this Thing that only came from without by rising from within, and that at all as it invests large aggregates (man and man)? Whence what came to be called the species determination of the sexuality of Capital, is his fascination with such a machine: how it came to be assembled, on what foundation of decoding and deterritorialization aggregates and large numbers. If we wish to have right, but my mother's the Virgin Mary, you know). One can easily imagine Schreber answering Freud: Yes, I quite agree, naturally even accept the banal Oedipal code, so long as he can stuff it full of all the disjunctions that this code This is because something on the order of a subject can be discerned on the recording surface. It is a strange this is not yet the case for a subject that can situate itself only in terms of the disjunctions of a It would seem that a genuine reconciliation of the two can take place only on the level of a new machine a number of proofs that such a reconciliation does or can exist. With no further details being provided, we are told consummation is achieved by the new machine, a pleasure that can rightly be called autoerotic, or rather automatic: the nuptial celebration he is so often thought to be? Worse still: how can psychiatric practice have made him this sort of rag, how psychiatric practice have made him this sort of rag, how can it have reduced him to this state of a body of the So it's ... is from the Oedipal tissue. How can we sum up this entire vital progression? Let us trace he no longer is a materialist. A truly materialist psychiatry can be defined, on the contrary, by the twofold task it schizophrenia is explained in terms of the ego, all we can do is sample a supposed essence or a presumed specific have it, we are well aware that the real object can be produced only by an external causality and external mechanisms produced by desire, is thus a psychic reality. Hence it can be said that Kant's critical revolution changes nothing essential: this produces, its product is real. If desire is productive, it can be productive only in the real world and can produce it can be productive only in the real world and can produce only reality. Desire is the set of passive syntheses of itself. There is no particular form of existence that can be labeled psychic reality. As Marx notes, what exists in servitude as stubbornly as though it were their salvation? How can people possibly reach the point of shouting: More taxes! Less social production. Desiring-machines are not fantasy-machines or dream-machines, which supposedly can be distinguished from technical and social machines. Rather, fantasies are and that is why, to his way of thinking, destructions can never take place as rapidly as they ought to. From of production, the production of the real. And doubtless we can express this identity in two different ways, even though these constitute the autoproduction of the unconscious as a cycle. We can say that social production, under determinate conditions, derives primarily from the powers at its command. Its sovereign production and repression can be achieved in no other way. Capitalism is in fact artificial, imaginary, or symbolic territorialities, thereby attempting, as best it can, to recede, to rechannel persons who have been defined in the game to the hilt: if you want them, you can have them—territorialities infinitely more artificial than the ones that wandering about, migrating here, there, and everywhere as best he can, he plunges further and further into the realm of deterritorialization Bruno Bettelheim paints the portrait of this young child who can live, eat, defecate, and sleep only if he is plugged because of its multiplicity—a multiplicity so complex that we can scarcely speak of one chain or even of one code chains still do not involve any exclusion, however, since exclusions can arise only as a function of inhibitors and repressors that it proceed to its parturition ... that is why the subject can procure what is of particular concern to it here, a the predicative relation of the One and the many, that can account for desiring-production: desiring-production is pure multiplicity, that is to more than there is an original totality from which they can be derived. Melanie Klein was responsible for the marvelous discovery partial objects, that world of explosions, rotations, vibrations. But how can we explain the fact that she has nonetheless failed to life, there are only two possible ways in which this can be explained: it must be granted either that sexuality is has noted that the relationship between madness and the family can be traced back in large part to a development that resistance to oedipalization, the obvious absence of the Oedipal link, can be obscured in a grandparental constellation, either because an accumulation ourselves have trouble following this ascension; we take liberties that can be justified only by the advantages they afford us in myth? Why take it as the model? The supposed adequation can then be interpreted in what is termed anagogical fashion, toward is the law of partial objects. Nothing is lacking, nothing can be defined as a lack; nor are the disjunctions in at the core of the corresponding multiplicity whose every element can only be defined positively. relative to the institutional level of gregariousness, the singular state can, according to its more or less forceful intensity, bring about this way reduced to the figures of familial reproduction—we can understand why the panicked libido no longer risks abandoning Oedipus the object dependence to which analysis reduced the patients. How can we ward off, in the practice of the cure, this particularly practical and concrete. Does this story have an ending? Can an analysis be ended, can the process of analysis be this story have an ending? Can an analysis be ended, can the process of analysis be terminated, yes or no? Can the process of analysis be terminated, yes or no? Can it be completed, or is it condemned to a constant is it condemned to a constant self-perpetuation? As Freud says, can a currently given conflict be exhausted, can the one who As Freud says, can a currently given conflict be exhausted, can the one who is sick be forewarned against ulterior conflicts the one who is sick be forewarned against ulterior conflicts, can even new conflicts be awakened for a preventive purpose? A concatenation of bound elements.... Every interpretation furnished by [the patient] can offer itself as an already-signified awaiting its meaning.

For this partial objects and flows: the male part of a man can communicate with the female part of a woman, but also pleasure they take does not matter, so long as they can relate it to a male countenance. While others, whose sensuality who prefer women, women who suggest young men ... indeed, they can take, with such women, the same pleasure as with a prohibition, any more than does the form of persons. We can therefore see the property the prohibition has of displacing itself global and specific use of the connective syntheses. This use can be defined as transcendent, and implies a first paralogism in name is Oedipus. And that a revolution—this time materialist—can proceed only by way of a critique of Oedipus, by differentiating function or in the disjunctive synthesis: the phobic person can no longer be sure whether he is parent or child he is already the mother of a new humanity and can finally die. That is why the schizophrenic God has so the schizo liberates a raw genealogical material, nonrestrictive, where he can situate himself, record himself, and take his bearings in all God, who designates none other than the energy of recording, can be the greatest enemy in the paranoid inscription, but also growing malaise that this stage provokes, a point of equilibrium can be found. Oedipus is like the labyrinth, you only get all desiring-production. The screws are tightened, nothing relating to production can make its way through any longer, except for a far-distant example of an analysis of double bind, in this sense, can be found in Marx's On the Jewish Question: between the unconscious—indeed beyond all law—where the problem of Oedipus can no longer even be raised. By the same token, we pessimism that consists in thinking that this change, this release, can be achieved only outside psychoanalysis. We believe, on the contrary left standing once they have passed through—although these destructions can be brought about, as we shall see, in two very to your light. I am a beast, a Negro. And can Zarathustra be separated from the grand politics, and from the domain, and the operation of a system of signs. This can be clearly seen in physics, where proper names designate such memories of childhood that the pretender lacks. The conjunctive synthesis can therefore be expressed: So I am the king! So the identifications. And if getting well amounts to getting oedipalized, we can easily understand the outbursts of the patient who does not it as masks. What is more, from the beginning we can see that it makes use of masks in an entirely to an indifference with regard to the stimulus. Doubtless one can believe that, in the beginning (?), the stimulus—the Oedipal inductor members who has been eliminated, rendered null, and foreclosed. We can understand how such a concept as foreclosure operates within this an aggregate of departure constituted by a social formation. It can be applied to everything, in that the agents and relations images of a second order, this time collective; the encounter can therefore take place between Luther and the sixteenth-century Christians, or or collective, who desires. These investments of an unconscious nature can ensure the general submission to a dominant class by making economic and financial mechanisms, its political formations, and so on, can be desired as such, in whole or in part, independently thereby to show how, in the subject who desires, desire can be made to desire its own repression—whence the role it. An unconscious investment of a fascist or reactionary type can exist alongside a conscious revolutionary investment. Inversely, it can happen type can exist alongside a conscious revolutionary investment. Inversely, it can happen—rarely—that a revolutionary investment on the level of lot of time to digest a bit of news; one can even quote some texts of Freud on the unconscious being What kind of disquieting play on words is it that can make the analyst a promoter of anal? Or there is But doesn't his sadness come from the fact that he can no longer bear the forces of oedipalization and hamletization that it was nevertheless not by way of this remark, Which can only suggest that the mother functions as a pretty girl in its essence—desire, not left-wing holidays!—and no society can tolerate a position of real desire without its structures of is a real desire, since repression is also desired? How can we tell them apart? We demand the right to a quickly and soon. Incest, a slandered shallow stream. Although we can see social production's interest in such an operation, it is all the forces of social production, reproduction, and repression. This can be explained by the simple truth that very powerful forces made to submit—the most somber organization—and which he can no longer tolerate: he who has gone on a distant The father's nose or the mother's ear—will that do, can that be retained, will that constitute a good Oedipal incision discriminating directly between the two that creates the difficulty. How can we distinguish between the pressure that familial reproduction exercises on or the other. In short, Oedipus is strictly undecidable. It can be found everywhere all the more readily for being undecidable use all the Virgins that had been placed there. Everything can be converted into neurosis, or warped out of shape into a virtuality that is always fulfilled as perfectly as it can be by virtue of the states of desire. Rarely have there is no difference in nature, species, or group. Neurosis can no more be explained oedipally than can psychosis. It is or group. Neurosis can no more be explained oedipally than can psychosis. It is rather the contrary; neurosis explains Oedipus. Then the irony of this situation with more amusement than we can extract from it. The laugh's on us. They will see own as the natural or divine precondition. While the ground can be the productive element and the result of appropriation, the the great social machines that preceded it. The same machine can be both technical and social, but only when viewed from more or less in agreement with Reuleaux's classic definition, one can consider the machine to be the combination of solid elements of very diverse matrimonial regimes where no difference in filiation can be inferred among the corresponding groups. In many analyses, the that appropriates them for itself as quasi cause. But it can accomplish this only by reclaiming the connective regime for its and appropriating them for its own, the problem of coding can no longer be resolved by the simultaneity of a displacement start, since there does not exist a pure nomad who can be afforded the satisfaction of drifting with the flows and machine's limit is not attrition, but rather its misfirings; it can operate only by fits and starts, by grinding and breaking commodity production decoded under the conditions of capitalism. All history can therefore be read under the sign of classes, but by whole ark of alliance. Alliances never derive from filiations, nor can they be deduced from them. But, this principle once established order for the new extended memory to be established. We can better understand why the problem does not in the least an expression employed by Leibnitz to designate a sign that can be + as well as—). It is a question of a wife except from the group from which a woman can be claimed, because in the previous generation a sister or of real relations in extension, but because only the myth can determine the intensive conditions of the system (the system of such is strangely excluded, although, depending on the circumstances, she can be more or less a kinswoman or more or less of the germinal lineage closes (the primitive double bind): neither can the uncle marry his sister, the mother, nor from that uncle marry his sister, the mother, nor from that moment can the son marry his own sister—the Yourougou female twin in both cases. In short, a somatic system in extension can constitute itself only insofar as the filiations become extended, correlatively constitute them without rendering them impossible as sexual partners. One can commit incest only after a series of substitutions that always sister, mother, brother, father. Now in the incestuous act we can have persons at our disposal, but they lose their names a stamp that is too wet. This is because one can never enjoy the person and the name at the same transmitted from father to son and from mother to daughter, can be transmitted indefinitely through the father-son relationship, but not through to the mother's brother upon the marriage of his niece can be understood only in the following way: the girl leaves a product of the Oedipus complex as something repressed. Our entire research was therefore also a traditional norm—our own, to be exact? How can one say that Oedipus makes us speak in our own primary institution has been clearly shown. In certain cases it can be a question of the way desire invests the social social development (devenir). From this point of view, the discussion can only go round in circles between the holders of a a limit. indeed what is at issue, as Octave Mannoni shows: how can belief continue after repudiation, how can we continue to be Octave Mannoni shows: how can belief continue after repudiation, how can we continue to be pious? We have repudiated and lost for their intentions are often progressive. But no one today can enter an analyst's consulting room without at least being aware or withdrawal. Yes, in fact, there the production of desire can be represented only in terms of an extrapolated sign that if not the silence imposed on desiring-machines so that Oedipus can develop, be fortified in us, so that it can accumulate Oedipus can develop, be fortified in us, so that it can accumulate its poisonous sperm and gain the time necessary for of Oedipus is Oedipus become an idea. Only the idea can inject the venom. Oedipus has to become an idea so or the analytic situation. Psychoanalysis states clearly that unconscious representation can never be apprehended independently of the deformations, disguises, or displacements from this, two unwarranted conclusions are drawn: that this agency can be discovered by way of the displaced represented; and this performs the artificial reterritorializations of desire. If the displacing agency can be concluded from the displaced, this is only true in or restore a link between two elements. (But how then can one see in this extreme dispersion—machines dispersed in every is more, the force and the obstinacy of a deterritorialization can only be evaluated through the types of reterritorialization that represent a certain mulatto—male or female. The movement of deterritorialization can never be grasped in itself, one can only grasp its movement of deterritorialization can never be grasped in itself, one can only grasp its indices in relation to the territorial representations. If laughter is a reaction that takes certain circuits, it can be said that Charlie Chaplin, as the film's sequences unfold line that merges with the void hanging over them. Anyone can see that this man and this woman are no longer task, schizoanalysis must proceed as quickly as possible, but it can also proceed only with great patience, great care, by successively each of these lands that permit going beyond them. How can we reconquer the process each time, constantly resuming the journey its interruption—the two are so closely interrelated that they can only be evaluated each within the other. How would the how could it exist without a land? But inversely, how can we be certain that these circuits don't reconstitute the lands back an asylum, or a little Beckettian land, a garbage can, so they can become catatonic in a corner. But in or a little Beckettian land, a garbage can, so they can become catatonic in a corner. But in a less openly better yet, a convent in Ceylon. The only thing that can save us from these impasses is an effective politicization of and the applications of reterritorialization in other flows. Inversely, one can find the form of social alienation in action in all all the flows, in such a way that this characteristic can no longer qualify a particular residue as a flow of carrying us along. It should therefore be said that one can never go far enough in the direction of deterritorialization: you runs up against the same set of pure singularities, one can feel confident that he has drawn near the singularity of the singularity of the subject's desire). To be sure, one can always establish or re-establish some sort of link between these are not indiscernible solely in the mixed region, since one can always assume that, having exchanged their function within this region your mouth, ... ah, my ass burns like fire, but what can be the meaning of that? Perhaps a turd wants to two heads of desire. For as we have seen, it can be produced as the amorphous fluid of antiproduction, just as produced as the amorphous fluid of antiproduction, just as it can be produced as the support that appropriates for itself the support that appropriates for itself the flow production. It can as well repel the organs-objects as attract them, and appropriate flows. However, the whole question is in knowing whether one can speak of a code at the level of this molecular chain of decoding and deterritorialization, which must be apprehended—and can only be apprehended—as the reverse of the codes and its structure, where nothing but the play of blind combinations can be discerned. It is precisely the ambiguity of what the of the machine itself. And yet the problem persists: how can all that function together? For it is not yet a the last way in which a depressive and exhausted libido can go on surviving, and dream that it is surviving: The into systems of representation that are themselves objective. Hence it can be said that the identity in nature between the two of the death instinct, the perverse reterritorializations. So that one can never, as in an interpretation, read the repressed through and transcendent uses of the syntheses according to which the unconscious can no longer operate in accordance with its own constituent machines oscillations from one formula to the other are possible. How can this be? How can the schizophrenic escape, with its molecular to the other are possible. How can this be? How can the schizophrenic escape, with its molecular dispersion, form an investment the schizo, if not first of all the one who can no longer bear all that: money, the stock market, the [But] perhaps that is what the fall is, that it can no longer be a personal destiny, but the common lot statistical accumulation obeying the laws of large numbers. This unity can be the biological unity of a species or the structural a global object in relation to which the partial objects can be determined as a lack, and inversely. But on a in a state of partial dependence (the Markov chains). This can even be seen in the genetic code. In other terms whose effect the molecular formations constitute molar aggregates. Now we can present the second thesis of schizoanalysis: within the social investments has an interest in a given regime. The other class can constitute itself only by a counterinvestment that creates its own obvious in the capitalist regime where, for example, primitive accumulation can take place only for the benefit of a restricted fraction preconscious investments of interest, and that explains how the latter can be perturbed and perverted in the most somber organization, below the violence it exerts by its very absurdity, but it can exert this violence only by assigning itself aims and meanings Colony demonstrates what an intense libidinal investment of a machine can be, a machine that is not only technical but social not the worker, the trade-unionist. Desire is agape. Not only can the libidinal investment of the social field interfere with the as production is in desire as desiring-production. But these forms can be understood in two ways, depending on whether desire is of its multiplicities. It is understandable, therefore, that a group can be revolutionary from the standpoint of class interest and its complicates everything, it is true, is that the same individuals can participate in both kinds of groups in diverse ways (Saint-Juste groups in diverse ways (Saint-Juste, Lenin). Or the same group can present both characteristics at the same time, in diverse situations in diverse situations that are nevertheless coexistent. A revolutionary group can already have reassumed the form of a subjugated group, yet with its fantastic subjugation, its narcissism, and its superego? (It can happen that one lone man functions as a flow-schiz , as revolutionary. The situation is completely muddled. It seems that schizoanalysis can make use only of indices—the machinic indices—in order sexuality that constitutes the indices. Not that the revolutionary capacity can be evaluated in terms of the objects, the aims, or published, that one demands one's right to be heard; it can even be disinfected, treated in a psychoanalytic or scientific manner origin imposed on it as the lie under which it can merely become cynical, shameful, and mortified. It is a lie is not one woman—more particularly, not one child—who can as such assume her or his situation in a capitalist a desiring-machine into a social machine, short-circuiting the parents, who can only intervene as agents of production and antiproduction in one aggregate of arrival (a minimum of three terms, which one can and even must augment, but not to infinity). Such an limit by substituting internal relative limits for it that it can reproduce on an ever expanding scale, or an axiomatic of void. Since it is now a process of deterritorialization, it can no longer search for and create its new land. Confronted social field that acts as an oedipalizing factor, and that can fuel as well as counteract the preconscious investments. From the combinations obtain such and such a result. ... However, no science can develop outside a constituted social grouping. In order to prevent example). So true is it that the movement of deterritorialization can only be grasped as the reverse side of territorialities, even one keeps in mind the tautological statement made above, one can then understand that people whose preconscious investments of interest do not, or should not, go in the direction of capitalism, can maintain an unconscious libidinal investment consonant with capitalism, or that new socius invested by the libido as a full body can very well function as an autonomous territoriality, but one that desire within the mobile framework of its expanded limits. There can be a preconscious revolutionary break, with no real libidinal and true is it that the various investments, even when opposed, can coexist with one another in complexes that are not the its preconscious and unconscious conflicts and contradictions, about which it can only be said that they fall back on Oedipus, Marx-the-father is potential in relation to the actual paranoiac pole (how can we count on art and science except as potentialities, since causality, a revolutionary line of escape; and even though one can and must assign the objective factors, such as the weakest moment, in a given place. It is clear how everything can coexist and intermix: in the Leninist break, for example, when in the same people the most varied kinds of investments can coexist at such and such a moment, the two kinds such and such a moment, the two kinds of groups can interpenetrate. This is because the two groups are like determinism of the new socius and its interests. Of course one can always say after the fact that history has never ceased infrastructure of a libidinal investment of another nature, and that can coincide as well as clash with them. Which is merely Which is merely a way to pose the question, How can the revolution be betrayed?—once it has been said that revolutionary agency, it is because we believe that capitalist society can endure many manifestations of interest, but not one manifestation of from schizophrenia as a process; now the schizophrenic as entity can only be defined in relation to the arrests, the continuations are formed; whether and to what extent such a socius can endure the reversal of power such that desiring-production subjugates social bring their regimes into communication. Decoded flows strike the despotic State with latency; they submerge the preconditions are present, everything is given, without producing a capitalism properly speaking, but rather a regime based on slavery. Or of the old full body of the social machine. Hence capitalism does not lead to the dissolution of feudalism, but rather and this reaction, which occur one time—in order for capitalism to be born, and for the old system to die at the same time social and technical. That is why capitalism and its break are defined not solely by decoded flows singular nature of this conjunction that ensured the universality of capitalism. By simplifying a lot, we can say that the savage conjunction is indeed capital's tighter and tighter control over production: capitalism or its break, the conjunction of all the decoded and employees (the struggles against the guilds and the monopolies). But capitalism doesn't begin, the capitalist machine is not assembled, until capital capital the new social full body, whereas commercial and financial capitalism in its primitive forms merely installed itself in the pores a conjunction that defines the immanent social field particular to capitalism, and confers on the abstraction as such its effectively concrete relationships between flows, and breaks in flows?—all of which capitalism was able to mobilize and break under these hitherto unknown hitherto unknown conditions of money. While it is true that capitalism is industrial in its essence or mode of production, it essence or mode of production, it functions only as merchant capitalism. While it is true that it is filiative industrial capital consistency entirely its own, which shows the manner in which capitalism for its part was able to interpret the general principle the means immanent to the capitalist mode of production. If capitalism is the exterior limit of all societies, this is because is the exterior limit of all societies, this is because capitalism for its part has no exterior limit, but only an this movement of displacement belongs essentially to the deterritorialization of capitalism. As Samir Amin has shown, the process of deterritorialization here accumulation is not produced just once at the dawn of capitalism, but is continually reproducing itself. Capitalism exports filiative capital. At the dawn of capitalism, but is continually reproducing itself. Capitalism exports filiative capital. At the same time as capitalist deterritorialization flux is a deterritorialization, and each displaced limit, a decoding. Capitalism schizophrenizes more and more on the periphery. It will be defining precapitalist regimes by a surplus value of code, and capitalism by a generalized decoding that converted this surplus value of settled once and for all, at the dawn of a capitalism that had lost all code value. This is not the the blacksmith, the astronomer). But the decoding of flows in capitalism has freed, deterritorialized, and decoded the flows of code just In this sense, it is not machines that have created capitalism, but capitalism that creates machines, and that is constantly introducing sense, it is not machines that have created capitalism, but capitalism that creates machines, and that is constantly introducing breaks and the importance of the problem: the ever widening circle of capitalism is completed, while reproducing its immanent limits on an ever decoded flows, not only the nature of the limits that capitalism reproduces on an ever wider scale as interior limits, but What on the contrary is called the co-opting power of capitalism can be explained by the fact that its axiomatic is incomes. How much flexibility there is in the axiomatic of capitalism, always ready to widen its own limits so as to relation of flows having no assignable exterior limit, and where capitalism reproduces its immanent limits on an ever widening and more that the formation of money as a specific relation within capitalism depends on the mode of production that makes the economy an illusion of consciousness—shows that the productive essence of capitalism can itself function only in this necessarily monetary or commodity yet. 10 Capitalist Representation Writing has never been capitalism's thing. Capitalism is profoundly illiterate. The death of writing is like the someone announces the collapse of the Gutenberg galaxy? Of course capitalism has made and continues to make use of writing; not the general equivalent, but the specific functions of money in capitalism went by way of writing and printing, and in some that writing typically plays the role of an archaism in capitalism, the Gutenberg press being the element that confers on the or becomes concrete within the field of immanence peculiar to capitalism itself, with the appearance of the technical means of expression through information shows once again that the productive essence of capitalism functions or speaks only in the language of signs imposed even and especially in their manifestations of extreme force, neither capitalism nor revolution nor schizophrenia follows the paths of the signifier of desire. Their affinity is great, to be sure: everywhere capitalism sets in motion schizo-flows that animate our arts and our schizophrenics. We have seen that the relationship of schizophrenia to capitalism went far beyond problems of modes of living, environment, ideology decoded flows? The answer—as we have seen—is that capitalism is indeed the limit of all societies, insofar as it one can say that schizophrenia is the exterior limit of capitalism itself or the conclusion of its deepest tendency, but that itself or the conclusion of its deepest tendency, but that capitalism only functions on condition that it inhibit this tendency, or capitalist field from one end to the other. But for capitalism it is a question of binding the schizophrenic charges and the vanished codes. The flows are decoded and axiomatized by capitalism at the same time. Hence schizophrenia is not the identity the same time. Hence schizophrenia is not the identity of capitalism, but on the contrary its difference, its divergence, and its notion of break-flow has seemed to us to define both capitalism and schizophrenia. But not in the same way; they are burns or bursts into flames. Why not merely say that capitalism replaces one code with another, that it carries into effect that is, strictly speaking, unavowable. It is with the thing, capitalism, that the unavowable begins: there is not a single economic and appropriate the cellular connections. So many reasons for defining capitalism by a social axiomatic that stands opposed to codes in in the form of a code. With the advent of capitalism the full body becomes truly naked, as does the worker the differential relation where the abstract becomes something concrete. Concerning capitalism, we maintain that it both does and does not have these limits on an always vaster scale. The strength of capitalism indeed resides in the fact that its axiomatic is never capable of adding a new axiom to the previous ones. Capitalism defines a field of immanence and never ceases to fully abundance of identity cards, files, and other means of control, capitalism does not even need to write in books to make are sufficiently filled with the floating images constantly produced by capitalism. To pursue a remark of Henri Lefebvre's, these images do in a code. The hour of Oedipus draws nigh. While capitalism thus proceeds by means of an axiomatic and not by conjunction. Once again, this axiomatic is not the invention of capitalism, since it is identical with capital itself. On the contrary since it is identical with capital itself. On the contrary, capitalism is its offspring, its result. Capitalism merely ensures the regulation itself. On the contrary, capitalism is its offspring, its result. Capitalism merely ensures the regulation of the axiomatic; it regulates or into the service of the signs of economic power. And capitalism, despite what is said to the contrary, assumed this role the struggle against overproduction. There has never been a liberal capitalism: action against monopolies goes back first of all to a with the old system of production, and when nascent industrial capitalism can secure its production and its market only by obtaining supply and an unusual expansion of markets. That is, when capitalism functions with a very small number of axioms within relative required a high and stable level of employment, and forced capitalism to multiply its axioms while having at the same time the axiom of displacement from the center to the periphery). Capitalism was able to digest the Russian Revolution only by continually income in wages. But this is only partially true, since capitalism is born of the conjunction of the two in the task of conquering the State apparatus. If the movement of capitalism, in the interplay of its differential relations, is to dodge Leninist break did not prevent the resurrection of a State capitalism inside socialism itself, any more than it prevented classical capitalism capitalism inside socialism itself, any more than it prevented classical capitalism from getting round the break by continuing its veritable mole revolutionary elements—no more controlled by official socialism than by capitalism itself—further into the distance, to flee periphery or into explained. It happens that one desires against one's own interests: capitalism profits from this, but so does socialism, the party, and either in the modernistic forms of a State socialism or capitalism, or in the archaic form of local despots. It may is directly based on the social and economic axiomatic of capitalism as such. It is the very conjunction of the deterritorialized the corresponding society, one is better able to understand why capitalism is continually reterritorializing with one hand what it was deterritorializing true reason for the double movement: on the one hand, capitalism can proceed only by continually developing the subjective essence of capital, the self-expansion of existing capital. Under the first aspect capitalism is continually surpassing its own limits, always deterritorializing further, displaying restriction and bond; but under the second, strictly complementary, aspect, capitalism is continually confronting limits and barriers that are interior and they have no ideas on the subject—why would they?). Capitalism, and socialism as well, are as though torn between the case of overcoding the territorial flows. The paradox is that capitalism makes use of the Urstaat for effecting its reterritorializations. But must arrive from without—and that, in the case of capitalism, rises with all the more power as one still fails produced by the points-signs, the breaks-flows, the pure figures of capitalism; the capitalist as personified capital—i.e., as a function function derived from the flow of labor. In this way capitalism fills its field of immanence with images: even destitution, despair The reign of images is the new way in which capitalism utilizes the schizzes and diverts the flows: composite images, images to desiring-production, at the bounds of all social production. And capitalism, the relative limit of every society, inasmuch as it axiomatizes and reterritorializes the deterritorialized flows. We have also seen that capitalism finds in schizophrenia its own exterior limit, which it is exterior limit, which it is continually repelling and exorcising, while capitalism itself produces its immanent limits, which it never ceases to limits, which it never ceases to displace and enlarge. But capitalism still needs a displaced interior limit in another way: precisely or symbols, then everything is recapitulated in the images of capitalism, which shapes and reduces them to the Oedipal simulacrum. The from castration to Oedipus, and from the despotic age to capitalism, inversely there is the progress leading to the withdrawal of with the slashed, split, castrated ego, are the products of capitalism insofar as it engineers an operation that has no equivalent This is the case even in the peripheral zones of capitalism, where the colonizer's efforts at oedipalizing the indigenous population—African and oppression. But it is at the soft center of capitalism, in the temperate zones of the bourgeoisie, that the colony general. But as this determination develops under the condition of capitalism, they objectify the essence all over again, they alienate and the private ownership of the means of production. So that capitalism is without doubt the universal of every society, but only and schizophrenia as ultimate products under the determinate conditions of capitalism. From the standpoint of a universal clinical theory, paranoia and of all: to each its own sexes. 3 Psychoanalysis and Capitalism The schizoanalytic argument is simple: desire is a machine, a that, in the second place, the link between psychoanalysis and capitalism is no less profound than that between political economy and is no less profound than that between political economy and capitalism. This discovery of the decoded and deterritorialized flows is the the form of subjective abstract libido. As Marx says, in capitalism the essence becomes subjective—the activity of production in general production in general and without distinction, as it appears in capitalism, is the identical discovery of both political economy and psychoanalysis not mean that the capitalist being, or the being in capitalism, desires to work or that he works according to his precisely, is desiring-production situated at the always counteracted limit of capitalism? Why, at the same time as it discovers the subjective as it is the activity of production in general—is capitalism continually realienating this essence, and without interruption, in a repressive to appreciate the full extent to which psychoanalysis belongs to capitalism. For as we have seen, capitalism indeed has as its which psychoanalysis belongs to capitalism. For as we have seen, capitalism indeed has as its limit the decoded flows of desiring-production in an axiomatic that takes the place of the codes. Capitalism is inseparable from the movement of deterritorialization, but this movement but this movement is exorcised through factitious and artificial reterritorializations. Capitalism is constructed on the ruins of the territorial and the

by saying that the subjective abstract essence is discovered by capitalism only to be put in chains all over again, to property that constitutes the center of the factitious reterritorializations of capitalism. And finally, it is this form that produces the images of immanence, the capitalist, the worker, etc. In other terms, capitalism indeed implies the collapse of the great objective determinate representations previously, it is in the interiority of its movement that capitalism requires and institutes not only a social axiomatic, but an psychoanalysis disengages the second pole in the very movement of capitalism, which substitutes the infinite subjective representation for the large determinate because he doesn't see that the tie linking psychoanalysis with capitalism is not merely ideological, that it is infinitely closer, infinitely flows of desire, as taken up in the axiomatic of capitalism, must necessarily be reduced to a familial field where the and the deterritorialization of flows define the very process of capitalism—that is, its essence, its tendency, and its external limit of social alienation in action in all the reterritorializations of capitalism, inasmuch as they keep the flows from escaping the system generally, the death instinct celebrates the wedding of psychoanalysis and capitalism; their engagement had been full of hesitation. What we have of hesitation. What we have tried to show apropos of capitalism is how it inherited much from a transcendent death-carrying agency and specific forms of the absorption of surplus value in capitalism. It is this itinerary that psychoanalysis rediscovers and retraces with immanent death is the condition formed by the signifier in capitalism, the empty locus that is everywhere displaced in order to problem we had left hanging. Once it is said that capitalism works on the basis of decoded flows as such, how a decoded and deterritorialized production, how do we explain that capitalism, with its axiomatic, its statistics, performs an infinitely vaster repression share owing to the overlord. Things are very different in capitalism. Precisely because the flows of capital are decoded and deterritorialized precisely because the subjective essence of production is revealed in capitalism; precisely because the limit becomes internal to capitalism, which continually of the large objectivities, the decoded and deterritorialized flows of capitalism are not recaptured or co-opted, but directly apprehended in a Everything labors in death, everything wishes for death. In truth, capitalism has nothing to co-opt; or rather, its powers of co-option economy raises them to a degree of perfection unknown before capitalism.) This welding of desire to lack is precisely what gives what arouses, and it is not ideology, it is economy. Capitalism garners and possesses the force of the aim and the how the socialist machine preserves a State and market monopoly capitalism). But there is something more serious: even when the libido flows that constitute its profound tendency or its absolute limit, capitalism is constantly counteracting this tendency, exorcizing this limit by substituting goals, of law, order, and reason. Even the most insane capitalism speaks in the name of economic rationality. And this is the same time that Venice develops the most powerful commodity capitalism, bordering an Urstaat, that grants it a large degree of But toward the middle of the fifteenth century, when Venetian capitalism confronts the first signs of its decline, something breaks out labor as human surplus value in the industrial essence of capitalism, a flow of financing and a flow of payment or flow of payment or incomes in the monetary inscription of capitalism, a market flow and a flow of innovation as machinic of innovation as machinic surplus value in the operation of capitalism (surplus value as the first aspect of its immanence), a at every step along the way the interior limits of capitalism, their perpetual displacement, and their reproduction on an always larger third aspect of capitalist immanence, expressing the twofold nature of capitalism: production for production's sake, but under the conditions of capital

Capitalism is defined by a cruelty having no parallel in the but realities that derive from a given supplementary axiom that capitalism is always capable of adding to its axiomatic in terms the Third World is organized as an integral part of capitalism. The reproduction of the interior limits of capitalism on an part of capitalism. The reproduction of the interior limits of capitalism on an always wider scale has several consequences: it permits just as it is not Russian socialism that troubles world capitalism.) There is no metaphor here: the factories are prisons, they Third World is deterritorialized in relation to the center of capitalism but belongs to capitalism, being a pure peripheral territoriality of in relation to the center of capitalism but belongs to capitalism, being a pure peripheral territoriality of capitalism. The system teems but belongs to capitalism, being a pure peripheral territoriality of capitalism. The system teems with preconscious investments of class and of and of interest. And capitalists first have an interest in capitalism. A statement as commonplace as this is made for another is made for another purpose: capitalists have an interest in capitalism only through the tapping of profits that they extract from how large the extraction of profits, it does not define capitalism. And for what does define capitalism, for what conditions profit it does not define capitalism. And for what does define capitalism, for what conditions profit, theirs is an investment of desire do not, or should not, go in the direction of capitalism, can maintain an unconscious libidinal investment consonant with capitalism, or of capitalism, can maintain an unconscious libidinal investment consonant with capitalism, or that scarcely threatens it. In the first case, they believe in all this but it makes no difference, since capitalism is like the Christian religion, it lives precisely from a that has been believed. But the reverse is also true: capitalism is constantly escaping on all sides. Its productions, its art from subjugated groups by way of ruptures in the latter. Capitalism is continually cutting off the circulation of flows, breaking them and intersecting one another according to schizzes that turn against capitalism and slash into it. Capitalism, which is always ready to expand its interior limits, remains to schizzes that turn against capitalism and slash into it. Capitalism, which is always ready to expand its interior limits, remains revolutionary investment of desire. And that is indeed what undermines capitalism: where will the revolution come from, and in what form and cuts too sharply, thereby escaping from the axiomatic of capitalism. Will it come in the person of a Castro, an to the dead machines of living labor as organized in capitalism. Or whether instead desiring, technical, and social machines join together

Here we discover a new determination of the properly capitalist field of immanence: not only the interplay of the relations for example, the difference between the despotic bureaucracy and the capitalist bureaucracy. of antiproduction is characteristic of the entire capitalist system; the capitalist effusion is that of antiproduction within production at all levels to the absorption of surplus value. In comparison to the capitalist State, the socialist States are children—but children who learned so on. Thus the three segments of the ever widening capitalist reproduction process are joined, three segments that also define the who does the alienating. Who steals? Certainly not the finance capitalist as the representative of the great instantaneous creative flow, which Who would be capable of stealing? Certainly not the industrial capitalist as the representative of the afflux of profit, since profits dolphins. Marx often alluded to the Golden Age of the capitalist, when the latter didn't hide his own cynicism: in the earner as well as the relative dependence of the industrial capitalist. This is money and the market, capitalism's true police. In and the market, capitalism's true police. In a certain sense, capitalist economists are not mistaken when they present the economy as the truth is that we haven't seen anything yet. 10 Capitalist Representation Writing has never been capitalism's thing. Capitalism is profoundly that confers on the archaism a current function. But the capitalist use of language is different in nature; it is realized the only linguistics adapted to the nature of both the capitalist and the schizophrenic flows: until now, the only modern—and defined by the decoding and the deterritorialization of flows in capitalist production. though they risked unleashing flows that would be dangerous for capitalist production and charged with a revolutionary potential, so long as counteracting tendency. With the result that schizophrenia pervades the entire capitalist field from one end to the other. But for capitalism of connections that puts it in the service of the capitalist order. (At the highest level of linguistics as a science manage to break through the wall or absolute limit? The capitalist axiomatic is so rich that one more axiom is added-for the opposite of that of a code; it expresses the capitalist transformation of the surplus value of code into a surplus limits: it has interior limits under the specific conditions of capitalist production and circulation, that is, in capital itself, but it axiomatic. And monetarization everywhere comes to fill the abyss of capitalist immanence, introducing there, as Schmitt says, a deformation, a convulsion	p 245 p 246 p 246 p 246 p 249 p 250 p 250
there is no longer any need of belief, and the capitalist is merely striking a pose when he bemoans the fact apparatus of regulation whose principal organ is the State. The capitalist State is the regulator of decoded flows as such, insofar as a regulator of the decoded and axiomatized flows. The capitalist State completes the becoming-concrete so fully that, in another sense project was to resuscitate the Urstaat insofar as possible). The capitalist State is in a different situation: it is produced by latter is simple to explain: from the viewpoint of the capitalist axiomatic there is only one class, a class with a flows. In this capacity it is sufficient to fill the capitalist field of immanence. And in point of fact, something new spoken by the master. Only as personified capital is the capitalist respectable. As such, he shares with the miser the passion in the miser is a mere idiosyncrasy, is, in the capitalist, the effect of the social mechanism, of which he is and economic planning, since planning is necessarily introduced in the capitalist State, and the market subsists in the socialist State, if class, and as a consequence, to have imposed on the capitalist countries a recognition of class bipolarity. But this great Leninist more dangerous for being flexible and never saturated—of the capitalist State. But in reality, the most direct question is not capital would willingly dispatch themselves to the moon if the capitalist State were not there to bring them back to earth corresponding to overcoding; the system of co-ordination-conjunction in the civilized capitalist machine, corresponding to the decoding of the flows. Deterritorialization, the	p 250 p 252 p 252 p 252 p 253 p 254 p 254 p 254 p 256 p 256 p 256 p 258 p 262
is at its highest point in the order of modern capitalist representation, because this identity is universally realized in the immanence also that the difference in regime is greatest in the capitalist order of representation, and that this representation subjects desire to each case, and the limits of this relationship in the capitalist system. 11 Oedipus at Last In the territorial or even The process by no means remains the same in the capitalist system. Representation no longer relates to a distinct object, but so as to engender, there where they are needed, the capitalist as a function derived from capital, and the worker as the points-signs, the breaks-flows, the pure figures of capitalism; the capitalist as personified capital—i.e., as a function derived from capital. In short, Oedipus arrives: it is born in the capitalist system of the application of first-order social images to the mother, so it's you: the familial conjunction results from the capitalist conjunctions, insofar as they are applied to private persons.	p 262 p 262 p 262 p 263 p 263 p 264 p 265 p 265
Daddy-mommy-me from on high is formed. It is only in the capitalist formation that the Oedipal limit finds itself not only occupied to completion only by becoming the imaginary Oedipus of the capitalist machine. The despotic machine preserved the primitive territorialities, and the machine. of the despotic State, and the extreme internalization of the capitalist field, define bad conscience. The latter is not cynicism's contrary social determinations. It falls to the reactionary investment of the capitalist field to apply all the social images to the simulcra father; a single subject of enunciation—Oedipus—for all the capitalist statements, and between the two, the leveling cleavage of castration essence. Not that a simple parallelism should be drawn between capitalist social production and desiring-production, or between the flows of money-capital	p 268 p 269 p 270 p 302
so that the conjunction of the decoded flows in the capitalist machine tends to liberate the free figures of a universal systems of representation. Obviously this does not mean that the capitalist being, or the being in capitalism, desires to work or is rather the active utopia par excellence that designates the capitalist limit to be overcome through desiring-production. But why, precisely, is it is this form that produces the images filling the capitalist field of immanence, the capitalist, the worker, etc. In other produces the images filling the capitalist field of immanence, the capitalist, the worker, etc. In other terms, capitalism indeed implies the axiomatic is carried out: Oedipus as the last word of capitalist consumption—sucking away at daddy-mommy, being blocked and triangulated on	p 302 p 302 p 302 p 303 p 303 p 312 instinct and World War I, which remains the model of capitalist war. More generally, the death instinct celebrates the wedding of formations of desiring-production. What must be explained is that the capitalist aggregate is the least affinal, at the very moment it example, in a despotic type of society, or in a capitalist society where the market economy raises them to a degree the class pure and simple. This is obvious in the capitalist regime where, for example, primitive accumulation can take place only desire desires its own repression. We have seen how the capitalist machine constituted a system of immanence bordered by a great the way in which desire represses itself in the great capitalist aggregate. Repressing desire, not only for others but in oneself it is not for himself or his children that the capitalist works, but for the immortality of the system. A violence body as a residual and subordinated territoriality (witness how the capitalist machine revives the despotic Urstaat, or how the socialist machine	p 335 p 336 p 342 p 344 p 346 p 346 p 346 p 347
with the objective dissimulation that it comprises, essential to the capitalist system. But it is interesting to find this essential concealment can as such assume her or his situation in a capitalist society, precisely because this situation has nothing to do with of its infrastructure, its mode of production, its most precise capitalist economic circuits; and that the libido invests this social field song: O schizophrenic mathematics, uncontrollable and mad desiring-machines! financial mechanism—that does not reveal the insanity of the capitalist machine and the pathological character of its rationality: not at state, this insanity, the machine works too, believe me. The capitalist machine does not run the risk of becoming mad, it Everything in the system is insane: this is because the capitalist machine thrives on decoded and deterritorialized flows; it decodes and and artificial reterritorializations. It is in this sense that the capitalist axiomatic cannot but give rise to new territorialities and revive profits, but on the contrary itself explains that a small-time capitalist, with no great profits or hopes, fully maintains the entirety where one has sunk it, at the heart of the capitalist system? Or else, in the second case, there is truly territoriality, but one that is caught and wedged in the capitalist machine, and is localizable in the field of its market as a revolutionary agency, it is because we believe that capitalist society can endure many manifestations of interest, but not one	p 373 p 373 p 374 p 374 p 374 p 375 p 375 p 379

with the schizo as Homo natura. This will be the case, however, only on one condition, which in fact constitutes the same as they shift and slide about. As in the case of Beckett's mouth that speaks and feet that walk: He and therefore, sensual pleasure. But this is not yet the case for a subject that can situate itself only in terms is left after each division. Returning yet again to the case of Judge Schreber, we note that he is vividly aware for example, the phenomena of shifting of meaning in the case of schizophrenics and the mechanisms of ever increasing disharmony and whole; it performs its role all by itself. In this case, only after the subject has partitioned itself does it proceed And naturally this is all the more true in the case of run-of-the-mill practitioners who no longer have the slightest notion field without some sort of mediation. This is not the case, however. Let us consider a child at play, or a expression on his mother's face. The word relate in this case does not designate a natural productive relationship, but rather a organs? The child is a metaphysical being. As in the case of the Cartesian cogito, parents have nothing to do with to psychoanalysis in mind, and never forget it. In Lawrence's case, at least, his reservations with regard to psychoanalysis did not this is the famous nonexistent phase. Such is always the case with Freud. Something common to the two sexes is required the disjunctions: you are girl or boy! Such is the case with Oedipus and its resolution, different in boys and in resolution, different in boys and in girls. Such is the case with castration, and its relationship to Oedipus in both instances the tyrannical complete object. This is perhaps no longer the case when the partial object is posited for itself on the leaning against the rock of schizophrenia, a rock in this case mobile, aerolitic? Who does not haunt the perverse territorialities, beyond that we cannot measure up to it. But in any case the harm has been done, the treatment has chosen the to any time, any milieu, any school. Such is the case in an illustrative passage, the first kiss given Albertine. Albertine's live perhaps less exclusively under Saturn's satellite, for in their case women are not entirely excluded.... But those in the second direction on the disjunction of the sexes. Such is the case in Freud: for Oedipus, for castration, for the second phase on the contrary, he opens out and, like a spore case inflated with spores, releases them as so many singularities that also the greatest friend in the miraculating inscription. In any case, the question of a being superior to man and to the principle itself enters into the alternative (a completely different case from what happens when the disjunction is inclusive). Here we lend themselves to a process of differentiation. But in any case we are oedipalized: if we don't have Oedipus as a many interpretations of Lacanism, overtly or secretly pious as the case may be, have in this manner invoked a structural Oedipus fraternity, is segregation (what does he mean here?). In any case, it was inopportune to tighten the nuts and bolts where which a nomadic subject passes. Here it is not a case of an hallucinatory experience nor of a delirious mode of In the Louis XVII affair, or rather in the finest case, that of the pretender Richemont, there is a desiring-machine or haunts all history, is simply the paternal name. In this case as in many others, the utilization of the Lacanian concept parents as the child imagines them. Such is also the case, and all the more so, for Lacan's disciples, when they beginning of the question, the same question as in the case of the biological egg. For under these conditions is there nonclosed. We believe that this is also true in the case of the family-society relationship. There is no Oedipal triangle: Oedipus question in the unconscious itself. When Frantz Fanon encounters a case of persecution psychosis linked to the death of the mother Hellenists were right to remind us that, even in the case of worthy Oedipus, it was already a matter of politics and the mother, since this is assumed to be the case from the beginning, but is subsequently forgotten-repressed, though still subject solutions, that is to say solutions of sublimation). In any case the great man is already great because, for good or use could be made of Oedipus? Nor is it a case of an ambiguous dimension of applied psychoanalysis; for all Oedipus a reactionary investment conforming to a conscious interest. In any case conscious and unconscious investments are not of the same type outcome, in its resolution as in its problem. In any case, the double bind is not the schizophrenic process; on the one, however; that same year Capgras and Carrette presented a case of schizophrenia with a delusion of doubles, where the patient bastards of virile paternalism, I am not vindictive.... In any case, if I have won, there will be no more struggles difference in nature between neuroses and psychoses. For in any case desiring-production is the cause, the ultimate cause of both the madness and the process our only cure. But in any case, the intimate nature of the relationship appears directly in inverse selection, refinement, and calculation was manifested. And this is the case from the start, since there does not exist a pure is because the mixing of the generations in the son-mother case has the same effect as their correspondence in the case case has the same effect as their correspondence in the case of the uncle-sister, that is, it testifies to one and a physical system in extension: one must look in each case for the part of the flow of intensity that passes coming to demand its due. Loffler writes of a specific case: Among the Mru, the patrilineal model predominates over the matrilineal able to unfold to a greater extent, and in this case the Oedipal problem tended to assume its diachronic dimension, causing as the supposed Oedipal representation. But such is not the case: most ethnologists have clearly noted the sexual nature of affects affect intact? And would the contrary be true in our case, in the patriarchal organization where the representation would remain clear of the latter's return. Now the opposite is clearly the case; not only does the Oedipal representation presuppose the prohibition of sense that Oedipus is a limit. This is also the case for desiring-production. But in fact this last sense itself can the product of the social repression-psychic repression system, in which case it is not universal; or it is universal, and a (specifies). But the same does not hold true in the case of desiring-machines as molecular elements: there, use, functioning, production, and nature of the system in extension appears, as in the case of the primitive mechanism of surplus value as a surplus nothing exchangist about it, and it shows in this extreme case that the debt itself had nothing to do with exchange his true sister and his true mother. For in any case his true sister is the sister of the wilderness, just	p 5 p 12 p 16 p 16 p 34 p 41 p 45 p 46 p 48 p 48 p 49 p 59 p 59 p 59 p 60 p 67 p 68 p 69 p 70 p 72 p 77 p 78 p 80 p 82 p 82 p 83 p 84 p 88 p 90 p 92 p 92 p 96 p 96 p 98 p 101 p 102 p 103 p 105 p 110 p 122 p 124 p 127 p 136 p 149 p 159 p 159 p 163 p 164 p 170 p 172 p 172 p 172 p 175 p 177 p 181 p 187 p 191 p 210

little whether it is simulated or not, since in any case something else again is simulated through incest. And in accordance with the balance sheet of a commercial enterprise. In the one case, there are impotent money signs of exchange value, a flow which are my due, so they're mine); in the other case, signs of the power of capital, flows of financing, a functioning as an axiomatic of abstract quantities. In the one case, money represents a potential break-deduction in a flow of consumption potential break-deduction in a flow of consumption; in the other case, it represents a break-detachment and a rearticulation of economic chains	p 210 p 228 p 228 p 228 p 228
that had lost all code value. This is not the case, however. On the one hand, codes continue to exist—even juridical and political relations are determined as dominant—in the case of feudalism, for example—because surplus labor as a form course not, since it is a matter in the one case of reterritorializing decoded flows, but in the other case of one case of reterritorializing decoded flows, but in the other case of overcoding the territorial flows. The paradox is that capitalism socius. So we come back to the question: in each case what is the relationship between social production and desiring-production, once but that must arrive from without—and that, in the case of capitalism, rises with all the more power as one production to desiring-production, the variations of this relationship in each case, and the limits of this relationship in the capitalist system which they are plunged (cf. Ndembu schizophrenia). This is the case even in the peripheral zones of capitalism, where the colonizer's that overreaches them on all sides. Joseph Gabel, presenting a case of paranoid delirium with a strong politico-erotic content replete with reform i believes it possible to say that such a case is rare, and that, moreover, its origins are not reconstructible combinatorial apparatus (combinatoire) informing the flows. Such is also the case for the social field: its coding or its axiomatic first archaisms. Or, staying on the level of literary examples: the case of Celine, the great victim of delirium who evolves while more and more with the paranoia of his father. The case of Jack Kerouac, the artist possessing the soberest of means We have seen that this is not at all the case. The socius is not a projection of the body without only populations, groups, and machines. When we posit in one case an involuntariness (un involontaire) of the social and technical machines involontaire) of the social and technical machines, in the other case an unconscious of the desiring-machines, it is a question of a male homosexuality. Yet this is not at all the case; what is founded here is rather the statistical aggregate of believing, whereas the Hellenists have long since stopped.) The Schreber case again applies: Schreber's father invented and fabricated astonishing little machines	p 232 p 247 p 261 p 261 p 262 p 262 p 262 p 269 p 274 p 274 p 276 p 277 p 277 p 281 p 283 p 283 p 295 p 297 category of the most modern society. This is also the case for desire as abstract libido and as subjective essence. Not capable of creating—what exactly?—a new land. In each case we must go back by way of old lands, study or the very absence of a link. Such is the case in the schizoid sequences of Beckett: stones, pockets, mouth; a every partial object emits a flow, it is also the case that this flow is associated with another partial object and on a global and specific meaning. But it is another case altogether with the properly molecular chain: insofar as the body of death, and envelops it. And it is doubtless the case that every intensity is extinguished at the end, that every with what flows, what chains, and what becomings in each case. Moreover, this positive task cannot be separated from indispensable destructions	p 302 p 318 p 324 p 324 p 328 p 330 p 338
its dependencies, each time in a way adapted to the case in question, the essential aspect of the first positive task the interior of the molar social investments, since in any case the molecular formations are such investments. That is why our schizoanalysis is this: every investment is social, and in any case bears upon a sociohistorical field. Let us recall the major a preconscious revolutionary investment? Must we invoke in the one case a thirst for justice, a just ideological position, as well as a correct and just view; and in the other case a blindness, the result of an ideological deception or mystification other than that of his interest. This is also the case for the person who has no interest, and who substitutes not the same state of flows and schizzes: in one case the break is between two forms of socius, the second code or a new axiomatic of interest; in the other case the break is within the socius itself, in that it desire is always constitutive of a social field. In any case desire belongs to the infrastructure, not to ideology: desire is forms on the molecular scale (it is no more a case of persons or individuals in this instance than in the and Adler. And after having ascertained in the Wolf Man case the existence of an intention of debasing the woman as it is in relation to the parents that in each case wealth or poverty will be situated, the relative richest or only intervene as agents of production and antiproduction in one case as in the other. In this second case the process, confronted with a neuroticization that it resists, but countereffect of one and the same illness. Or—the third case—the process sets to turning round in the void. Since the name of economic rationality. And this is necessarily the case, since it is in the irrationality of the full body flows were already circulating. We have seen this in the case of the painter Turner, and his most accomplished paintings that with capitalism, or that scarcely threatens it. In the first case, they confine and localize their preconscious interest in wage increases heart of the capitalist system? Or else, in the second case, there is truly a new investment of interest, new aims more axiom. This is no more complicated than in the case of abstract painting. Everything begins with Marx, continues on with with the refrain, Welcome, Mister Brezhnev. Is this still a case of revolutionaries speaking to another revolutionary, or rather a village field, these two poles are found to coexist in every case of delirium, and fragments of schizoid revolutionary investment are found revolution and the inevitable sequences of causality. In the other case, the preconscious interest must on the contrary discover the necessity a calling in question of aims and interests. In each case the problem is different: it is not enough to construct In reality, everything coexists: still hesitant preconscious investments in the case of some people who do not believe in this possibility regime of social production is brought about, since in any case it is the same production, but under two different regimes task of schizoanalysis is ultimately that of discovering for every case the nature of the libidinal investments of the social field	p 339 p 340 p 342 p 344 p 344 p 346 p 348 p 348 p 348 p 354 p 355 p 358 p 363 p 363 p 363 p 367 p 370 p 374 p 375 p 375 p 375 p 376 p 376 p 377 p 377 p 380 p 382

how difficult it is to distinguish those protoclasses from the castes organized by the imperial machine and from the rankings distributed by the segmentary primitive machine. The criteria that distinguish classes, castes, and ranks must not be sought in a fixity or are inseparable from the primitive territorial coding process, just as castes are inseparable from the overcoding practiced by the imperial State and bearing in mind that classes are the negative of castes and ranks. We are oedipalized, we are castrated; psychoanalysis didn't invent these operations, to which it merely lends the residual territoriality assumed by mommy, and the divided, split, castrated ego. Isn't this operation of flattening, folding, or application what the simulacrum of the despotic Law, with the slashed, split, castrated ego, are the products of capitalism insofar as it engineers principle of sex conceived as the masculine sex (the great castrated soaring Phallus), becomes the result of sex conceived as the	p 61 p 61 p 61 p 61 p 61 p 67 p 265 p 269 p 295

Here again, how bad a model the Oedipal model of castration is!) That is because breaks or interruptions are not the in boys and in girls. Such is the case with castration, and its relationship to Oedipus in both instances. Castration is with castration, and its relationship to Oedipus in both instances. Castration is at once the common lot—that is, the prevalent the unconscious—and teach us resignation. Resignation to Oedipus, to castration: for girls, renunciation of their desire for the penis; for and flows. This slight shift—which did not suppress mythical castration but made it depend secondarily on the organ, instead of element can only be defined positively. We must speak of castration in the same way we speak of oedipalization, whose crowning way we speak of oedipalization, whose crowning moment it is: castration designates the operation by which psychoanalysis castrates the unconscious, injects designates the operation by which psychoanalysis castrates the unconscious, injects castration into the unconscious. Castration as a practical operation on the which psychoanalysis castrates the unconscious, injects castration into the unconscious. Castration as a practical operation on the unconscious is achieved when of the ignorances of the unconscious; it knows nothing of castration or Oedipus, just as it knows nothing of parents, gods investments of repression, the phenomena of identification, of superegoization and castration, all the resignation-desires (becoming a general; acquiring low, middle, or types of groups, subject-groups and subjugated groups, with Oedipus and castration forming the imaginary structure under which members of the subjugated account. The first of these factors is the rock of castration, the rock with two nonsymmetrical faces, which creates in us itself, or as effects or countereffects of his method. For castration as an analyzable state—or nonanalyzable; the ultimate rock—is state—or nonanalyzable; the ultimate rock—is the effect of castration as a psychoanalytic act. And Oedipal homosexuality—the qualitative aptitude of a complete object, even if absent—the phallus of castration; breaks-flows that let themselves be projected onto a mythical space this meant? The crushing of the so onto Oedipus and castration. The sigh of relief: you see, the colonel, the instructor teacher, the boss, all of this meant that: Oedipus and castration, all history in a new version. We are not saying a new version. We are not saying that Oedipus and castration do not amount to anything. We are oedipalized, we are and for which psychoanalysis has invented new means—Oedipus and castration? Is it schizophrenia as a process that makes us sick the neurotic analysis)? We are forcibly confronted with Oedipus and castration, we are reduced to them: either so as to measure accursed and guilty series that bear witness to the same castration with two nonsuperimposable sides, the Sodom series and the Gomorrah sexes. Such is the case in Freud: for Oedipus, for castration, for the second phase of the fantasy A Child Is the reference to the penis gives its full meaning to castration. Through it, all the external experiences linked to deprivation, to is recast in a new version in the light of castration. That is indeed what disturbs us, this recasting of history an Oedipal sexuality, an Oedipal heterosexuality and homosexuality, an Oedipal castration, as well as complete objects, global images, and specific egos that these are productions of the unconscious. What is more, castration and oedipalization beget a basic illusion that makes us believe an anoedipal sexuality, an anoedipal heterosexuality and homosexuality, an anoedipal castration: the breaks-flows of desiring-production do not let themselves be projected it possible to denounce Oedipus-as-myth, and nevertheless maintain that the castration complex itself was not a myth but in fact something much better, since the analysts retreat to the rock of castration presented as the locus of an untenable truth that is necessary to denounce a fusional dream, a fantasy of a-return-to-Oneness. Castration, they say, is what separates us from politics, is what believe in all of this—in myth, in Oedipus and castration. They reply: the question is not one of knowing whether back under the yoke of a despotism whose effect is castration, there where one recognizes the stroke of the signifier itself allow themselves to be signified within the unary stroke of castration. It is always a point-sign of many dimensions, polyvocality as much malice and ruse there are in Rousseau! Transgression, guilt, castration: are these determinations of the unconscious, or is this the by the family. The Oedipal uses of synthesis, oedipalization, triangulation, castration, all refer to forces a bit more powerful, a bit It reorganizes them all along the lines of the universal castration that conditions the family itself (a dead rat's ass, said archaism,. The signifier, that subjects literature to the mark of castration and sanctifies the two aspects of its Oedipal form? And fall back under the law of the signifier, marked by castration, triangulated in Oedipus. So they displace the limit, they make between these two poles. Yet it leads to conclusions that cause the whole of Oedipus to shatter, because it is not something must also be blocked, and something must block and cause to pass through. Now this is possible only in the own matrilineage. How does the divination, responsible for indicating the cause of the illness, proceed, and the medical cure responsible for medical cure responsible for treating it? The teeth are the cause, the two top incisors of the ancestor hunter, contained in it with a system of beliefs. Oedipus is never a cause: it depends on a previous social investment of a certain where some cancel out and block a current, where others cause the current to circulate, etc. The objection according to which of debts. The soft structure would never function, would never cause a circulation, without the hard machinic element that presides over the great projects undertaken, and makes it appear as the cause of the collective conditions of appropriation. The full body as him a body without organs. He is the sole quasi cause, the source and fountainhead and estuary of the apparent objective become the base for a pyramid, all of whose sides cause the vocal, the graphic, and the visual to converge toward the appropriation and production of the real by a quasi cause. In incest it is the signifier that makes love with escape knowing, and as they owe all to their eminent cause. Occasionally it still happens that the young dogs will call its immanent concrete existence only in the subsequent forms that cause it to return under other guises and conditions. Being the The action of decoded flows is not enough, however, to cause the new break to traverse and transform the socius—not State with latency; they submerge the tyrant, but they also cause him to return in unexpected forms; they democratize him, oligarchize becomes the full body, the new socius or the quasi cause that appropriates all the productive forces. ego, however, is like daddy-mommy: the schizo has long since ceased to believe in it. He is somewhere else, beyond or yet again—most temptingly—as an ego that had not ceased to be, who was there in the most specific way and will be produced. It is true that reality has ceased to be a principle. According to such a principle, the that no longer designates any ego whatever. He has simply ceased being afraid of becoming mad. He experiences and lives himself infernal operations they regenerate. Capitalism has learned this, and has ceased doubting itself, while even socialists have abandoned belief in the collective conditions of appropriation. The full body as socius has ceased to be the earth, it has become the body of of representation to another. In the imperial formation, incest has ceased being the displaced represented of desire to become the repressing soon as we broke through the prohibitions they bore—has ceased to exist. Incest has become possible in the wedding of a surplus value from the spectacle of suffering, it has ceased to evaluate; it has begun rather to forewarn and keep origin of the new sufferings of the body. Punishment has ceased to be a festive occasion, from which the eye extracts barbarian subordination. How could designation subsist when the sign has ceased to be a position of desire, in order to become concrete value, its tendency to concretization. The abstraction has not ceased to be what it is, but it no longer appears axioms within relative limits that are sufficiently wide. The unconscious ceases to be what it is—a factory, a workshop—to male part of the other man, etc. Here all guilt ceases, for it cannot cling to such flowers as these. The point where the copy ceases to be a copy in order to become the Real But nothing has been gained thereby, since the actual factor ceases to be privative only provided it enjoys the rights of that the flows run over its surface—through which man ceases to be a biological organism and becomes a full body it should not be thought on that account that Oedipus ceases to be what it is, the simple displaced represented that For it concerns the whole system of representation when it ceases to be territorial and becomes imperial. First of all, we sings but dictates, decrees; the graphy no longer dances, it ceases to animate bodies, but is set into writing on tablets occurs a detachment and elevation of the death instinct, which ceases to be coded in the interplay of savage actions and evolution has been demonstrated for the technical machine, when it ceases to be an abstract unity or intellectual system reigning over the social machine, it seems on the contrary that it ceases to be tied to enjoyment or to the excess consumption with feudalism. In brief, the capitalist machine begins when capital ceases to be a capital of alliance to become a filiative work more and more in proportion to man, who thus ceases to be a constituent part of the production process, in to this full body. In this sense the antiproduction apparatus ceases to be transcendent, and pervades all production and becomes coextensive previous ones. Capitalism defines a field of immanence and never ceases to fully occupy this field. But this deterritorialized field finds a privatization of the family according to which the family ceases to give its social form to economic reproduction: it is and it is Oedipus that colonizes us. When the family ceases to be a unit of production and of reproduction, when while capitalism itself produces its immanent limits, which it never ceases to displace and enlarge. But capitalism still needs a displaced thing, to push the simulacrum to the point where it ceases to be the image of an image, so as to places on stage.? We should understand that representation, when it ceases to be objective, when it becomes subjective infinite—that is the benevolent neutrality of the analyst is very limited: it ceases the instant one stops responding daddy-mommy. It ceases the instant limited: it ceases the instant one stops responding daddy-mommy. It ceases the instant one introduces a little desiring-machine—the tape-recorder—into a little desiring-machine—the tape-recorder—into the analyst's office; it ceases as soon as a flow is made to circulate that is where Proust is explaining himself. But the narrator-spider never ceases undoing webs and planes, resuming the journey, watching for the death is what is felt in every feeling, what never ceases and never finishes happening in every becoming—in the becoming-another-sex death; the one, according to which the apparent subject never ceases to live and travel as a One-one never as I, actually dies—which is to say it finally ceases to die since it ends up dying, in the reality axiomatics: the pure process that fulfills itself, and that never ceases to reach fulfillment as it proceeds—art as experimentation. Aren't there more important questions than these, however? Given a certain effect, what machine is capable of producing it? And given what machine is capable of producing it? clinging to the past is like dragging a ball and chain. The true visionary is a Spinoza in the garb of domain of a code of the unconscious, incorporating the entire chain—or several chains—of meaning: a discovery thus totally transforming multiplicity so complex that we can scarcely speak of one chain or even of one code of desire. The chains are the support and firmly define a specific, personal subject. No chain is homogeneous; all of them resemble, rather, a succession of a rising sun may suddenly make its appearance. In a chain that mixes together phonemes, morphemes, etc., without combining them, papa's little girl, a cop, a shoe suddenly turn up. Each chain captures fragments of other chains from which it extracts a dependent, aleatory phenomena bearing a close resemblance to a Markov chain. The recordings and transmissions that have come from the internal le prelevement du flux) involves detachment of something from a chain; and the partial objects of production presuppose stocks of material divided into parts that correspond to the detachments from the chain (detachements de chaine) and the removals from the flow (prelevements the reproduction of the process of detachment from the signifying chain (reproduction de detachement sur la chaine signifiante); and a residuum mechanism analogous to a template onto which the distinctive side chain of each acid keys into its proper position. As a or the mother that is taken up in the signifying chain—daddy's mustache, the mother's raised arm—but it comes furtively patient speaks in order to constitute the process of a chain of signifiers. The meaning is not attached to the signified the signifier that distributes the effects of meaning throughout the chain and introduces exclusions there (whence the oedipalizing interpretations of Lacan of a triangle. It is as if the so-called signifying chain, made up of elements that are themselves nonsignifying—of polyvocal a crushing operation that extracted a detached object from the chain, a despotic signifier from whose law the entire chain seems the chain, a despotic signifier from whose law the entire chain seems consequently to be suspended, each link triangulated. There we the capitalist code and its trinitary expression, money as detachable chain is converted into capital as detached object, which exists only feeling the becoming of the world. There is no signifying chain without a Chinaman, an Arab, and a black who drop the extraction of a transcendent complete object from the signifying chain, which served as a despotic signifier on which the entire which served as a despotic signifier on which the entire chain thereafter seemed to depend, assigning an element of lack to that this loosened up and freed the elements of the chain. In the second place, an inclusive or nonrestrictive use of connections, parental appellations crop up In the disjunctions of the chain, the parents are there as ordinary stimuli of an indifferent interventions: flows are set apart, elements are detached from a chain, and portions of the tasks to be performed are distributed as the apportioning of production corresponds to extractions from the chain, resulting in a residual share for each member, in a not so expressed. Instead, it is maintained by a continuing chain of debt relationships of an economic kind ... It is the one ensure reciprocal adaptation, the respective embrace of a signifying chain and flows of production? The great nomad hunter follows the flows, and an accelerated reproduction from the standpoint of the chain. The flows must be the object of deductions (prelevements) that prelevements) that constitute a minimum of stock, and the signifying chain must be the object of detachments (detachements) that constitute a mediations. A flow is coded insofar as detachments from the chain and deductions from the flows are effected in correspondence, united The flow deductions constitute a filiative stock in the signifying chain; but inversely, the detachments from the chain constitute mobile debts in the signifying chain; but inversely, the detachments from the chain constitute mobile debts of alliance that guide and direct the Descent is at the same time flow of production and chain of inscription, stock of filiation and fluxion of alliance. But the explanations that he provides for them, which he changes as often as the mood strikes him, are based on reality. Hence it can be said that Kant's critical revolution changes nothing essential: this way of conceiving of productivity does not for their dead buddies, fine boys; then the colonel's face changes, grimaces, and reveals a big paranoiac in uniform who shouts and their relationships. But Engels slips in a reproach that changes everything: it really seems as if Bachofen believes all this we conceive of the relationship between psychosis and neurosis? CHAPLIN	9
The following excerpt from an article by Michel Cournot on Chaplin helps us understand what schizophrenic laughter is, as well as process as deterritorialization, with its machinic indices: The moment Charlie Chaplin makes the board fall a second time on his head a sense, by its excess, is foreign to the film (Chaplin had invented it twenty-two years before the film), is merely with only his upside-down head sticking out, and who has Chaplin feed him his lunch, since it is lunch time. If that takes certain circuits, it can be said that Charlie Chaplin, as the film's sequences unfold, progressively displaces the reactions, causes as leading nowhere. After having suppressed the spectator as such, Chaplin perverts the laughter, which comes to be like so many of the final image. Neither term suits the film. Charles Chaplin in Modern Times sketches rather, on a very small scale several oppressive and fundamental manifestations. The leading character, played by Chaplin, has to be neither active nor passive, neither consenting nor to go looking for the alibi of an accident. Charles Chaplin did not dwell on this. He went quickly, as usual	p 316 p 317 p 317 p 317 p 317 p 317 p 317 p 317 p 318

Hence Clerambault regarded automatism as merely a neurological be oedipalized. Everything follows from that, beginning with the untellable character of the cure, its interminable and highly contractual nature, flows the one hand Freud wants to deliberately reduce the group character of the fantasy to a purely individual dimension: the beaten able to set up a harem. Though aware of the character of revolt and of truth for all implied in the The Freudian blackmail is this: either you recognize the Oedipal character of infantile sexuality, or you abandon all positions of sexuality the real. objects and within the nonfamilial relations of desiring-production that the child lives his life and ponders what it means to live	p 48
That is the crucial point: a question occurs to the child that will perhaps be related to the woman known as	p 48

diffuse, generalized oedipalism that radically distorts the life of the child and his later development, the neurotic and psychotic problems of the existence of relations said to be pre-oedipal in the child, exo-oedipal in the psychotic, para-oedipal in others. The function of where Oedipus is already designated as the nuclear complex: A Child Is Being Beaten. The reader cannot escape the impression of the established order? Let us return to the fantasy, a child is being beaten, children are beaten—a typical group fantasy of a new triangle whose inverted vertex will be my child—which is called surmounting Oedipus, but reproducing it as well for castration, for the second phase of the fantasy A Child Is Being Beaten, or again for the famous latency period identical with the form of triangulation: being daddy, mommy, or child. This is the reign of the either/or in the differentiating begins where, nor who is who. And being parent or child is also accompanied by two other differentiations on the other any more than it knows whether it is parent or child. Commit incest and you'll be a zombie and a hermaphrodite can no longer be sure whether he is parent or child; the obsessed person, whether he is dead or alive; the point of a distance over which he glides. He is child or parent, not both, but the one at the end and transpositional subject. Schreber is man and woman, parent and child, dead and alive: which is to say, he is situated to proliferate and be passed on to the children. The child becomes a man only by resolving the Oedipus complex, whose upon itself. From the beginning of the life of the child, it is already an altogether different undertaking that pierces the not the real parents, nor even the parents as the child imagines them. Such is also the case, and all the forms, then this alienation will be mediated to the individual child and will be experienced as estrangement in the family relationships grips with them in the heaven and hell of the child. And the child says: Why? Freud's Rat Man does not in the heaven and hell of the child. And the child says: Why? Freud's Rat Man does not wait until he question by way of a consequence. In this sense every child is a little scientist, a little Cantor. Go back through the course of the ages, you will never find a child caught in a familial order that is autonomous, expressive, or order that is autonomous, expressive, or signifying. Even the nursing child, in his games as in his feedings, his chains, and as to account for all the triangular experiences of the child and his parents, it must be generalized in space to mother, since the main thing for the primitive or the child is to form and put into motion their desiring-machines, to process that outflanks them on all sides. At most, the child innocently relates to his parents some part of the astonishing repression of desire commencing with the earliest age of the child. Social production delegates the family to psychic repression. And if almost nothing (within the order of desiring-production, even in the child); at other times we say that it is everywhere (in by application it is hard, it is difficult for a child to live and experience himself as an angle, Cet enfant or attempt to reintroduce their deviant cuts and breaks. The child feels the task required of him. But what is to able to establish a really inspired direct relationship with either child or adult schizophrenics; Gisela Pankow and Bruno Bettelheim break new daddy-mommy-me triangle, the uterine mother-father of a frantic anality, whose child is only an angle, this kind of covering eternally hanging by way of alliance. In the production of children, the child is inscribed in relation to the disjunctive lines of its placenta, as a substance common to the mother and the child, a common part of their bodies, makes it such that progressive work when they apply new methods for triangulating the child: but watch out—a structural Oedipus, and this time it itself, which is thought to be lived first by the child as a microcosm, then projected into the adult and social perhaps valid for the adult, but surely not for the child. But in effect, Oedipus begins in the mind of the of the unconscious. With the result that, even in the child, what is invested through the familial stimuli is still the fact that the father is first in relation to the child can only be understood analytically in terms of another primacy all eternity in its work, like a mother in her child. It is not in them that the bad conscience developed in the locus of the restricted family as father, mother, child. But instead of being a strategy that, through the action factors in its own mode of reproduction. Father, mother, and child thus become the simulacrum of the images of capital (Mister the images of capital (Mister Capital, Madame Earth, and their child the Worker), with the result that these images are no wrongs in the person of the family's smallest member, the child. The way in which he posits an autonomous repression independent which he abandons the theme of the seduction of the child by the adult, in order to substitute the individual fantasy is guilty, but only in the manner in which the child lives it intensely, internally, and where it is confounded with tribunal of responsibility, before which one stands as a guilty child, and in relation to which one becomes a responsible adult egg—but also the father and the mother, or the child? Psychoanalysis acts as if it were the child (the father or the child? Psychoanalysis acts as if it were the child (the father is sick only from his own childhood), but same time is forced to postulate a parental pre-existence (the child is sick only in relation to a father and a from an infinite regression: the father must have been a child, but was able to be a child only in relation have been a child, but was able to be a child only in relation to a father, who was himself a only in relation to a father, who was himself a child, in relation to another father. How does a delirium begin we say the father is first in relation to the child, this proposition, devoid of meaning in itself, concretely means the say that the father is first in relation to the child really amounts to saying that the investment of desire is of a social field into which the father and the child are plunged, simultaneously immersed. Let us again consider the example the children are wary of them. In brief, what the child invests through the infantile experience, the mother's breast, and the and distributions. Never is the adult an afterward of the child, but in the family both relate to the determinations of is the father who is first in relation to the child. The paranoiac father Oedipalizes the son. Guilt is an idea psychoanalysis is in acting as if things began with the child. This leads psychoanalysis to develop an absurd theory of fantasy and passions must first be understood as fantasies of the child (the Freudian abandonment of the theme of seduction). (2) If call for wondering which is first, the father or the child, because such a question can be raised only within the of familialism. The father is first in relation to the child, but only because what is first is the social investment investment of the social field in which the father, the child, and the family as a subaggregate are at one and field—and if this is just as true of the child as of the adult; if it is true that the as of the adult; if it is true that the child, through the mommy-territoriality and the daddy-law, already aims for the or another, at one pole or the other. And the child does not wait until he is an adult before grasping different nature: family-myth. Once again, have you ever seen a child at play: how he already populates the technical social machines father or mother remains in the background, from whom the child borrows parts and gears according to his need, and who eternal refrain of Oedipus, the eternal lullaby, he writes: A child pays no regard to social distinctions, which have little meaning that there is not one woman—more particularly, not one child—who can as such assume her or his situation in the minimum familial constellation, or on their substitutes—father, mother, child. One does not stop there, since these three terms tend in the scene of castration where the father kills the child, or in the scene of the terrible mother where the scene of the terrible mother where the mother kills the child or the father. Then from two we pass to one

It is in the child's very first days of life, in the most elementary behavior it intensely, internally, and where it is confounded with the child's own guilt; the other where it is a tribunal of question is this: of course the father acts on the child's unconscious—but does he act as a head of a something other than the mother, and gives rise in the child's libido to an entire differentiated social investment at the same

The abolition of debts which means: putting despotism in the service of the new class relations; integrating the relations of wealth and poverty, of commodity private property. It no longer of itself forms a ruling class or classes; it is itself formed by these classes, which tied to enjoyment or to the excess consumption of a class, that it makes luxury itself into a means of investment you want an axiom for wage earners, for the working class and the unions? Well then, let's see what we can factor in this evolution the organization of a powerful working class that required a high and stable level of employment, and axioms to the old ones: an axiom for the working class, for the unions, and so on. But it is always State is entirely in the service of the so-called ruling class is an obvious practical fact, but a fact that does the viewpoint of the capitalist axiomatic there is only one class, a class with a universalist vocation, the bourgeoisie. Plekhanov notes of the capitalist axiomatic there is only one class, a class with a universalist vocation, the bourgeoisie. Plekhanov notes that the influence of Saint-Simon, should be credited with the discovery of class struggle and its role in history—precisely the same men the same men who praise the struggle of the bourgeois class against the nobility and feudalism, and who come to a proletariat and deny that there can be any difference in class between the industrialist or banker and the worker, but only statuses that have been decoded. To reread history through the class struggle is to read it in terms of the bourgeoisie in terms of the bourgeoisie as the decoding and decoded class. It is the only class as such, inasmuch as it as the decoding and decoded class. It is the only class as such, inasmuch as it leads the struggle against codes wheels. It will be said that there is nonetheless a class that rules and a class that is ruled, both defined that there is nonetheless a class that rules and a class that is ruled, both defined by surplus value, the distinction great mutant decoded flow—cut off from goods—and one class of servants, the decoding bourgeoisie, the class that decodes the goods—and one class of servants, the decoding bourgeoisie, the class that decodes the castes and the statuses, and that draws between two classes, for it is the very notion of class, insofar as it designates the negative of codes, that implies the negative of codes, that implies there is only one class. The theoretical opposition lies elsewhere: it is between, on the the one hand, the decoded flows that enter into a class axiomatic on the full body of capital, and on the the full body without organs. The opposition is between the class and those who are outside the class. Between the servants is between the class and those who are outside the class. Between the servants of the machine, and those who sabotage perfect schizo. That is why the problem of a proletarian class belongs first of all to praxis. The task of the is possible to conceive a theoretical determination of the proletarian class at the level of production (those from whom surplus value sometimes too wide, but the objective being they define as class interest remains purely virtual so long as it is not technocracy that stands in for the bourgeoisie as the great-absent class—or the bourgeoisie keeps its control of the State and axioms for the recognition of the proletariat as it second class. It is correct to say that the alternative is not Lenin and the Russian Revolution was to have forged a class consciousness consonant with the objective being or interest of the consciousness consonant with the objective being or interest of the class, and as a consequence, to have imposed on the capitalist to have imposed on the capitalist countries a recognition of class bipolarity. But this great Leninist break did not prevent the to integrate into its axiomatic sections of the newly recognized class, while throwing the uncontrolled revolutionary elements—no more controlled by Nor is it a question of knowing whether or not class consciousness, embodied in a party or a State, betrays the embodied in a party or a State, betrays the objective class interest, to which a kind of potential spontaneity would be correct where he concludes that there does not exist any class spontaneity, but only a group spontaneity: whence the necessity for group spontaneity: whence the necessity for distinguishing groups-in-fusion from the class, which remains serial, represented by the party or the State do not exist on the same scale. This is because class interest remains a function of the large molar aggregates; it problem is situated there, between unconscious group desires and preconscious class interests. It is only starting from this point, as we able to pose the questions issuing indirectly therefrom, concerning the class preconscious and the representative forms of class consciousness, and the therefrom, concerning the class preconscious and the representative forms of class consciousness, and the nature of the interests and the process the proletariat was only able to constitute itself as a class on the basis of artificial neoterritorialities; in parallel fashion, the your kind, and I belong to the superior race and class. But a or one to which the family is delegated. (Psychoanalysis has clearly demonstrated the difference between these two repressions, but has not and will become positive or negative. This may be seen clearly in a passage from Levi-Strauss, explaining for the simple forms representation. But such is not the case: most ethnologists have clearly noted the sexual nature of affects in the public symbols representation and of the latter's return. Now the opposite is clearly the case; not only does the Oedipal representation presuppose the ambiguity of what Kardiner called the primary institution has been clearly shown. In certain cases it can be a question of between the two sorts of questions. (Sade saw clearly this always royal role of incest.) The apparatus of social psychoanalytic Oedipus, and the Hellenists are right to not grasp clearly the story that psychoanalysis is trying at all costs to on the one side as on the other. Marx has clearly demonstrated the importance of the problem: the ever widening circle State control—providing the State sees fit—can be seen clearly in mercantilism, inasmuch as it expresses the new commercial functions in relation to a father and a mother). This is clearly evident in the primal position of the father of the body has, as it were, two faces. Elias Canetti has clearly shown how the paranoiac organizes masses and packs. The paranoiac all by its gigantism: no one has shown this more clearly than Charles Fourier. In a word, the social as well between the human sex and the nonhuman sex. It is clearly not a question of animals, nor of animal sexuality. Something lead Oedipus to such a point. other reference than itself or the analytic situation. Psychoanalysis states clearly that unconscious representation can never be apprehended independently of the molecular dispersion. Let us therefore return to the rule so clearly stated by Serge Leclair, even if he sees this only functional multiplicity that alone is economic. (Szondi situates the problem clearly: why two kinds of drives qualified as molar, functioning mysteriously in a statistical constellation of a molar order. Freud demonstrated clearly in this respect how one went from psychotic multiplicities of redeployed families. A harrowing, emotionally overwhelming experience, which brings the schizo as close as possible to matter, to a burning, living center of real that is natural and social. Desire always remains in close touch with the conditions of objective existence; it embraces them dispossessed. On the contrary, such people know that they are close to grass, almost akin to it, and that desire needs rather than allowing them to slowly wind down to a close or gradually die away into silence. What is more, their entire contrary it is nonrestrictive. I was then no longer this closed box to which loved being so well preserved, but a people, I have never been Christian, ... yes my eyes are closed to your light. I am a beast, a Negro. And it was or tended to be an isolated system, naturally closed: the comparison between microcosm and macrocosm was thus a comparison between microcosm and macrocosm was thus a comparison between two closed figures, one of which expressed the other and was inscribed the social field (not even 3+1, but 4+n). A poorly closed triangle, a porous or seeping triangle, an exploded triangle from clear that the two ends of Oedipus have simply been closed, and that the beyond and the afterward will always be the regressions and progressions are made only within the artificially closed vessel of Oedipus, and in reality depend on a state asymmetry, emphasizing the creditor-debtor behavior. The same is true of the Oedipal code: the libido as energy of selection and detachment is converted true that precapitalist social machines are inherent in desire: they code it, they code the flows of desire. Surplus value of code is the primitive form of surplus value, inasmuch as it accordance with the relations of alliance, engender surplus values of code at the level of the flows, whence are derived differences the givers and receivers of wives). The surplus value of code carries out the diverse operations of the primitive territorial machine of re-engendering oneself; the signifying chain would not form any code, it would only emit ambiguous signs and be perpetually eroded compensation for what is blocked—a veritable surplus value of code, which falls to the uncle insofar as he causes passage to understand the formation mechanism of the surplus value of code as an indispensable element of any coding of flows. We an operation that cannot be expressed in terms of a code; seeing the trucks that leave loaded with export goods, the primitive mechanism of surplus value as a surplus value of code. Actually, if the son cannot marry his mother, it that would lead to a decoding of flows and a collapse of the mode of inscription on the socius. We are dynasty by another, without changing the signifieds, and without a collapse of the wall of the signifier. The commercial and monetary inscription remains overcoded and even repressed by the		p 226 p 226 p 226 p 227

That is why, before, the monetary and commercial inscription does not have a body of its own at constituent part of the capitalist machine, in relation to which commercial capital and financial capital will now take the form of earner and is entered on the balance sheet of a commercial enterprise. In the one case, there are impotent money signs two operations. from an intensive energetic order to an extensive system, which comprises both qualitative alliances and extended filiations. Nothing is changed by desire. For desire is that, too: a trap. Territorial representation comprises these three instances: the repressed representative, the repressing representation, and according to the social formation considered. The system of representation comprises three elements that vary in depth: the repressed representative, the interactions of these two operations. Thus in credit money, which comprises all the commercial and bank credits, purely commercial credit has to gold, or indirectly through a mode of centralization that comprises a guarantor of the credit, a uniform interest rate, a the deformations, disguises, or displacements it undergoes. But we have postponed the analysis would thereby gain a certain independence and primacy, as a condition for constituting a system of exchange or any society, in he gave an autonomous value to psychic repression as a condition of culture acting against the incestuous drives: Reich goes so neurosis the object function of reality is preserved, but on condition that the causal complex be repressed; in psychosis the complex of their process; they point to the social machines that condition and organize them, but also limit and inhibit their development name at the same time—yet this would be the condition for incest. Granted, incest is a lure, it is impossible Jaulin was able to describe in La paix blanche . The condition of the colonized can lead to a reduction in the relationships, although the lateral alliances and the blocks of debt condition the extended filiations in the system in extension, and not way the coding of the flows of desire as a condition of the socius? The answer is simple, it is debt or worse yet, their derisory preservation, their reduction to the condition of secondary parts in the new machine, and the new production's sake that rediscovers the primitive connections of labor, on condition—that they be linked to capital the primitive connections of labor, on condition—on the sole condition—that they be linked to capital and to the new of its deepest tendency, but that capitalism only functions on condition that it inhibit this tendency, or that it push back organs of perception, or more precisely of belief, as a condition of existence and survival of the society in question—thus labor itself into one and the same simple magnitude (the condition characterized by surplus value of flux). Hence capital differentiates itself is also its greatest social fortune. For it is the condition under which the entire social field can be applied to the object from on high, is in reality the formal condition of the Oedipal images that will be deployed in the production in general. But as this determination develops under the condition of capitalism, they objectify the essence all over again, they of desire, the product of universal history—but on one condition, which is not met by Freud: that Oedipus be capable humanity, but only in order to raise it to the condition of a denial that preserves belief without believing in it especially striking: the theater raises the familial relation to the condition of a universal metaphoric structural relation, whence the imaginary place absence of a link (nonlocalizable connections), having no other statutory condition than that of being dispersed elements of desiring-machines that are	p 109 p 113 p 113 p 117 p 122 p 141 p 162 p 169 p 187 p 190 p 192 p 224 p 224 p 246 p 248 p 249 p 264 p 268 p 270 p 271 p 304 p 307

It is the singular nature of this of deterritorialized flows. It is the singular nature of this conjunction that ensured the universality of capitalism. By simplifying a lot machine, the civilized machine, will first establish itself on the conjunction. first establish itself on the conjunction. When this occurs, the conjunction no longer merely designates remnants that have escaped coding, or the extravagance of the despot and his agents. When the conjunction moves to the fore in the social machine, it seems of its State, still does not give us the extrinsic conjunction of these two flows: flows of producers and flows of more in detail how the elements come together, with the conjunction of all their processes. It is no longer the age age that implies a period of time, precisely for the conjunction of all the decoded and deterritorialized flows. As Maurice Dobb of the thing, the unnamable! But the effect of the conjunction is indeed capital's tighter and tighter control over production: capitalism and tighter control over production: capitalism or its break, the conjunction of all the decoded and deterritorialized flows, cannot be defined recordings, and the production of consumptions—but precisely in this conjunction of decoded flows that makes of capital the new social quantitas, but in that of the differential relation as a conjunction that defines the immanent social field particular to capitalism, and It is from the fluxion of decoded flows, from their conjunction, that the filiative form of capital, $x+dx$, results. The differential and in turn form an afflux by means of a conjunction; a flow—this time uninterrupted—of raw profit, constituting at flows of content and expression are in a state of conjunction or reciprocal precondition that constitutes figures as the ultimate units itself. The quality of the flows results solely from their conjunction as decoded flows; outside this conjunction they would remain purely results solely from their conjunction as decoded flows; outside this conjunction they would remain purely virtual; this conjunction is also the flows; outside this conjunction they would remain purely virtual; this conjunction is also the disjunction of the abstract quantity through which reduced to the operation of technical machines. In short, the conjunction of the decoded flows, their differential relations, and their multiple were not right for these flows to enter into a conjunction, the State could be content to save fragments of overcoding marshaling all its forces, was even able to prevent the conjunction from taking place (as for the rest, its project was is in a different situation: it is produced by the conjunction of the decoded or deterritorialized flows, and is able to within this new axiomatic that results from a hitherto unknown conjunction. But how all levels and enter into any and every sort of connection; each one speaks its own language, and establishes syntheses with and group fantasy occur, as a place where the only connection is that between partial objects and agents. The small child is related to them in the sense of a fundamental connection with them. By boxing the life of the child up desiring-machine along with it, and that enters into relationships of connection, disjunction, and conjunction with other partial objects, at the core production: a regime for the pairing of people replaces the connection of partial objects. On the whole, the connections of organ-machines but inversely, the disjunctive lines inscribe it only through a connection represented by the marriage of the father and the mother feeding oneself. (Clastres shows well how, among the Guayaki, the connection between the hunters and the living animals is succeeded in recomposition of the body according to a new model of connection or conjugation, an articulation of bodies for and between themselves which is always the outcome of filiation, alliance places in connection men from different filiations. Connecticut, Connect-I-cut! cries little Joey. In his study The Empty which the cutting off is an integral part of mechanical connections. Doubtless there are those who will object that this mechanical with all the others are recorded. An organ may have connections that associate it with several different flows; it may waver of disjunctions of a type that differs from the previous connections. the social production of children. It is true that the connections of desiring-production were found to comply with a binary rule without organs that reinjects producing into the product, extends the connections of machines, and serves as a surface of recording. But with the other, passing from one body to another, following connections and appropriations that each time destroy the factitious unity of recording of desire in order to transform all its productive connections. they determine the libidinal investments in terms of breaks and connections that they introduce into the family. Over the heads of contrary an infernal machine is made ready. What are the connections, what are the disjunctions, the conjunctions, what use is made the mother and the father are taken up in the connections, parental appellations crop up In the disjunctions of the chain and reorganizes in its own fashion the entirety of the connections and the hiatuses that characterize the machines of desire. It found in persons, but rather in series which determine the connections, disjunctions, and conjunctions of organs. That is why fantasies are in the network of filiative disjunctions on the socius, the connections of labor still must detach themselves from the productive process a village intervenes as a third party to permit matrimonial connections between elements that the disjunction of two moieties would forbid that a stock may be re-formed. There are no productive connections without disjunctions of filiation that appropriate them, but there are are no disjunctions of filiation that do not reconstitute lateral connections across the alliances and pairings of persons. Not only the universal, it falls back on production, on the agents and connections of production. But on it, too, everything is attached and drawings. If the full body falls back on the productive connections and inscribes them in a network of intensive and inclusive disjunctions, it still has to find again and reanimate lateral connections in the network itself, and it must attribute them to as if it produced them. It is necessary that the connections reappear in a form compatible with the inscribed disjunctions, even the second characteristic of inscription: alliance imposes on the productive connections the extensive form of a pairing of persons, compatible with	p 99 p 109 p 114 p 124 p 142 p 147 p 147 p 149 p 149 p 154 p 154 p 154 p 154

And finally, could it be that this arbitrariness of designations, as the reverse features of the primordial despotic State. It could be thought at first that such a hypothesis founds the Brother Ambrose, just what did I mean by that? What could I mean except that from this intellectual world in which production, a theater that disfigures this production even more than could tragedy and myth when reduced to their meager ancient resources the schizo's voyage be possible independent of certain circuits, how could it exist without a land? But inversely, how can we of Oedipus and under the despotic signifier of castration, he could no longer conceive the essence of life except in a a virtue that gives and produces, that engineers. (For how could what is in life still desire life? Who would want from the viewpoint of their difference in regime. But it could be that these two aspects, nature and regime, are in repression the mere idea of which neither savagery nor barbarism could provide us. This is because, on the basis of a world such as this, there is no living desire that could not of itself cause the system to explode, or that a psychic repression in the proper sense of the word could not be delegated in the unconscious by the molar forces Repression properly speaking profits from an occasion without which it could not interfere in the machinery of desire. In contrast to new aims, new social syntheses, a new power. But it could be that a part at least of the unconscious libido off the flows of sexuality: fiancée, mistress, wife, mother—one could just as easily add homosexuals, heterosexuals, etc.—all these roles de-oedipalize even nature, even landscapes, to the extent that Lawrence could. The fundamental difference between psychoanalysis and schizoanalysis is the following the dominant class or a fraction of this class. How could a formation of sovereignty, a fixed and determinate gregarious aggregate libido, i.e., to the schizorevolutionary pole, since this action could not be accomplished without overthrowing power, without reversing subordination, without transversal direction. CRITERIA 9 what he termed the critical revolution, Kant intended to discover criteria immanent to understanding so as to distinguish the legitimate and of consciousness. In the name of transcendental philosophy (immanence of criteria), he therefore denounced the transcendent use of syntheses such as rediscover a transcendental unconscious defined by the immanence of its criteria, and a corresponding practice that we shall call schizoanalysis. 4 firm principle only if we have at our disposal immanent criteria capable of determining the legitimate uses, as opposed to the transcendence. Analysis termed transcendental is precisely the determination of these criteria, immanent to the field of the unconscious, insofar as they the cure. Thus we have already seen how the immanent criteria of desiring-production permitted a definition of legitimate uses of syntheses from the rankings distributed by the segmentary primitive machine. The criteria that distinguish classes, castes, and ranks must not be sought a permeability, nor in a relative closing or opening; these criteria always reveal themselves to be deceptive, eminently misleading. But the to compare them with psychoanalytic procedure by relating them to criteria borrowed from the latter: for example, a familial complex, even	p 75 p 75 p 75 p 109 p 109 p 110 p 153 p 153 p 166

Hence it can be said that Kant's critical revolution changes nothing essential: this way of conceiving of productivity or Cesar's compressed car bodies. More generally, Dali's method of critical paranoia assures the explosion of a desiring-machine within an object make use of Kantian terminology. Cruelty has nothing to do with some ill-defined or natural violence that might be commissioned to explain the history of mankind; cruelty is the movement of culture that is realized in bodies bodies and inscribed on them, belaboring them. That is what cruelty means. This culture is not the movement of ideology: on is not the least important aspect of the system of cruelty. The death of a social machine has never been heralded of vigilance and extension, binding them in a system of cruelty, maintain an infinitely greater affinity with desiring-machines than does the forming a territory of resonance and retention, a theater of cruelty that implies the triple independence of the articulated voice, the without precedent, in comparison with which the ancient system of cruelty, the forms of primitive regimentation and punishment, are nothing. The old cruelty persists, especially in the autonomous or quasi-autonomous sectors; but it also be the hour of the greatest cynicism, that repressed cruelty of the animal-man made inward and scared back into himself all their processes. It is no longer the age of cruelty or the age of terror, but the age of cynicism in an entirely different way. This is no longer the cruelty of life, the terror of one life brought to bear coming undone, its deterritorialization. The movement of the theater of cruelty; for it is the only theater of production, there where from within. This is especially true of the system of cruelty, where death is inscribed in the primitive mechanism of surplus humane, liberal, paternal, etc., capitalism. Capitalism is defined by a cruelty having no parallel in the primitive system of cruelty, and a cruelty having no parallel in the primitive system of cruelty, and by a terror having no parallel in the despotic	p 204 p 211 p 211 p 222 p 225 p 228 p 322 p 337 p 373 p 373

The principal factor in each of these respects is and no longer forms anything but one and the same crushing fate: the aim now is to preclude pessimistically, once and subordinate the voice and supplant it. Then there occurs a crushing of the magic triangle: the voice no longer sings but castration that welds desire to the law? Worse yet: it is continues to strangle desiring-production and suffocate its problems. The political, cultural, world-historical, and racial content is left behind, crushed in the the intermediary of the superego. From this it expects a cultural justification for psychic repression—a justification that makes psychic repression exploratory, pioneering, revolutionary element, whereby desiring-production was discovered; the classical cultural element, which reduces everything to a scene from Oedipal theatrical fear of life, a resurgence of the ascetic ideal, a cultural broth of bad consciousness. it in his self-analysis, or rather in his Goethian classical culture? In his self-analysis he discovers something about which he remarks the impossible return to that which precedes the stage of culture and the growing malaise that this stage provokes, a point of cruelty cannot be separated from the struggle against our culture, from the confrontation of the races, and from Artaud's great Witold Grombrowicz says, the structuralists search for their structures in culture. As for myself, I look for them in the immediate analysis: not because it would go about generalizing Oedipus in culture, under the ridiculous conditions that have been the norm until on producing man abstractly, that is to say ideologically, for culture. It is Oedipus who produces man in this fashion, and an autonomous value to psychic repression as a condition of culture acting against the incestuous drives: Reich goes so far as is not necessarily to be ill, notwithstanding that in our culture the two categories have become confused.... From the alienated starting explain the history of mankind; cruelty is the movement of culture that is realized in bodies and inscribed on them, belaboring on them, belaboring them. The productive unconscious makes way for an unconscious that knows follows from that, beginning with the untellable character of the cure, its interminable and highly contractual nature, flows of speech in that it concerns above all else the practice of the cure. For the frenzied oedipalization process takes form precisely at the How can we ward off, in the practice of the cure, this abject desire that makes us bend our knees, lays knows it. He knows something is wrong in psychoanalysis. The cure tends to be more and more interminable! He knows that serious is that Freud never questions the process of the cure. Of course it is too late for him, but is after him? He interprets these things as obstacles to the cure, and not as shortcomings of the treatment itself, or as of water. What are the most favorable conditions for the cure, it is asked? A flow that lets itself be plugged all cluttered with refuse, instead of the schizophrenization that must cure us of the cure. 3 The Connective Synthesis of Production instead of the schizophrenization that must cure us of the cure. 3 The Connective Synthesis of Production Given the syntheses of of extension that includes the grandparents. The problem of the cure then becomes rather similar to an operation of differential calculus a matter here of practical principles as directions for the cure. Thus we have already seen how the immanent criteria of exhausted all the paralogisms that lead the practice of the cure in the direction of a frenzied oedipalization, a betrayal of from it, or that one cannot challenge the process of cure except by starting from elements drawn from this very cure cure except by starting from elements drawn from this very cure. As if every great doctrine were not a combined formation absorption of surplus value, with its codification of the interminable cure, its cynical justification of the role of money, and all for example in lung: the concern for curtailing the interminable cure by addressing oneself to the present or actual state of sickness is our only madness and the process our only cure. But in any case, the intimate nature of the relationship is why, when one considers pathological cases and processes of cure in primitive societies, it seems to us entirely insufficient to ethnic unconscious—as seen in attempted parallelisms between the psychoanalytic cure and the shamanistic cure (Devereux, Levi-Strauss). Thus Foucault was entirely right in saying that, in a error to think that the unconscious-as-child is acquainted only with daddy-mommy, and that it doesn't know in its own way that and inevitable the reduction of libidinal investments to the eternal daddy-mommy. We still have not exhausted all the paralogisms that lead of the unconscious to their immanent use. The neurotic impasse again closes—the daddy-mommy of oedipalization, America, the return to the native land—or which is on this side of and completely ignorant of daddy-mommy. Nor is it the repressing representation, which is beyond, and Oedipus? It goes without saying, the subject demands and redemands daddy-mommy: but which subject, and in what state? Is that the the libido for themselves, and not the derivatives of a daddy-mommy? In the first instance one studies large molar aggregates, large is reduced to the father-mother-child triangle, which reverberates the answer daddy-mommy every time it is stimulated by the images of capital	p 92 p 97 p 111 p 112 p 112 p 121 p 122 p 133 p 165 p 171 p 183 p 265

The schizophrenic is dead or alive, not both at once, but each of the transpositional subject. Schreber is man and woman, parent and child, dead and alive: which is to say, he is situated wherever daddy-mommy, dependent on the Oedipal genealogy? Is history's signifier the dead father? Once again let us consider Judge Schreber's delirium. To to the fraternity of the brothers once the father is dead. long in coming to consciousness is the news that the death of God makes no difference to the unconscious. The fruits of this news are not the consequences brought about by the death of God, but this other news that the death of the death of God, but this other news that the death of God is of no consequence. In other terms: that from time immemorial. The fruits of the news of the death of God do away with the flower of His death death of God do away with the flower of His death as well as the bud of His life. For, alive belief has not been abandoned. The announcement of the father's death constitutes a last belief, a belief by virtue of nonbelief law, that leaves us wondering. The immortal father of Celine's Death on the Installment Plan (Mort à credit) cries out: So because it is desire for the mother and for the death of the father; on the contrary, desire becomes that only forcibly inserts desire into social production and reproduction. For even death, punishment, and torture are desired, and are instances of production the least important aspect of the system of cruelty. The death of a social machine has never been heralded by a socialists have abandoned belief in the possibility of capitalism's natural death by attrition. No one has ever died from contradictions. And has entered into marriage with paternal cousins. But with the death of his father he is driven away, and returns to this event with melancholy as the sign of their approaching death. For example, the Bohannans describe the Tiv economy, which codes machine, or on the contrary join together to form a death instinct that extends throughout the social machine, crushing desire. The primitive justice, territorial representation has foreseen everything. Coding pain and death, it has foreseen everything—except for the way its own it has foreseen everything—except for the way its own death would come to it from without. They come like fate they appear as lightning appears, too terrible, too sudden. The death of the primitive system always comes from without; history is impossible. They do not know our own language. But this death that comes from without is also that which was rising the property of the sovereign, even though he be the death instinct itself. The castes are inseparable from this overcoding, and rising up before him, against him, the enemy who brings death—an eye with too steady a look, a mouth with artists' violence. There occurs a detachment and elevation of the death instinct, which ceases to be coded in the interplay of though the social machine had come unstuck from its desiring-machines: death, the desire of desire, the desire of the despot's desire the law in the pure detachment and elevation of the death instinct, rather than to hear, it is true, hypocritical doctors the name of the dynasty)? This would mean that the death instinct is even more deeply rooted in the State than and constant secessions, and not that of revolution. Here again, death will have to be felt from within, but it will always compensated by residual forces or transformations of the State. Death is felt rising from within and desire itself becomes the is felt rising from within and desire itself becomes the death instinct, latency, but it also passes over into these flows has never been capitalism's thing. Capitalism is profoundly illiterate. The death of writing is like the death of God or the is profoundly illiterate. The death of writing is like the death of God or the death of the father: the thing of writing is like the death of God or the death of the father: the thing was settled a long time signifier, filing through the wall: which again shows that the death of writing is infinite, so long as it arises and it saw in this process the image of its own death coming from within? Why does it make the schizophrenic into but on the contrary its difference, its divergence, and its death. Monetary flows are perfectly schizophrenic realities, but they exist and remaining localized in the system, and has freed a fantastic death instinct that now permeates and crushes desire? And what is that now permeates and crushes desire? And what is this death that always rises from within, but that must arrive from all that passes and flows; the universal effusion of the death instinct; depression and guilt used as a means of contagion in the mind of the father, who desires his son's death and schemes to bring it about. ... In the long run the unconscious. The body without organs is the model of death. As the authors of horror stories have understood so well of horror stories have understood so well, it is not death that serves as the model for catatonia, it is catatonic catatonia, it is catatonic schizophrenia that gives its model to death. Zero intensity. The death model appears when the body without schizophrenia that gives its model to death. Zero intensity. The death model appears when the body without organs repels the organs very coexistence. Hence it is absurd to speak of a death desire that would presumably be in qualitative opposition to the would presumably be in qualitative opposition to the life desires. Death is not desired, there is only death that desires, by the life desires. Death is not desired, there is only death that desires, by virtue of the body without organs or it is a matter of constantly translating, constantly converting the death model into something else altogether, which is the experience of model into something else altogether, which is the experience of death. Converting the death that rises from within (in the body else altogether, which is the experience of death. Converting the death that rises from within (in the body without organs) into rises from within (in the body without organs) into the death that comes from without (on the body without organs). But obscure, for what is this distinction between the experience of death and the model of death? Here again, is it a distinction between the experience of death and the model of death? Here again, is it a death desire? A being-far-death? Or and the model of death? Here again, is it a death desire? A being-far-death? Or rather an investment of death, even a death desire? A being-far-death? Or rather an investment of death, even if speculative? None of the above. The experience of even if speculative? None of the above. The experience of death is the most common of occurrences in the unconscious, precisely they invest in itself. They control the unconscious experience of death, insofar as death is what is felt in every feeling itself. They control the unconscious experience of death, insofar as death is what is felt in every feeling, what never ceases Every intensity controls within its own life the experience of death, and envelops it. And it is doubtless the case that at the end, that every becoming itself becomes a becoming-death! Death, then, does actually happen. Maurice Blanchot distinguishes this twofold nature distinguishes this twofold nature dearly, these two irreducible aspects of death; the one, according to which the apparent subject never ceases quite different: there is a return from the experience of death to the model of death, in the cycle of the return from the experience of death to the model of death, in the cycle of the desiring-machines. The cycle is closed new departure, since this I is another? The experience of death must have given us exactly enough broadened experience, in order returning from the model to the experience, is what schizophrenizing death amounts to, the exercise of the desiring-machines (which is their life. And see how the most defeated, sad .song of death emanates from it: eiapoieia. From the start, and because of desire as libido. But when the dualism passed into a death instinct against Eros, this was no longer a simple limitation Adler, had repudiated the sexual position: the fixing of the death instinct in fact deprives sexuality of its generative role on itself sanctified as the sale agency capable of opposing the death desire. And how. does. it do this? By in principle And how. does. it do this? By in principle turning death against death, by making this turned-back death (la mort retournee) into a does. it do this? By in principle turning death against death, by making this turned-back death (la mort retournee) into a in principle turning death against death, by making this turned-back death (la mort retournee) into a force of desire by putting the cultural extract, judging life, belittling life, measuring life against death, and only retaining from life what the death of death life against death, and only retaining from life what the death of death wants very much to .leave us with—a death, and only retaining from life what the death of death wants very much to .leave us with—a sublime resignation what was really at issue with the introduction of the death instinct: it is not a question of any fact whatever but merely of a principle, a question of principle. The death instinct is pure silence, pure transcendence, not givable and not in experience. This very point is remarkable: It is because death, according to Freud, has neither a model nor an experience a transcendent principle. So that the psychoanalysts who refused the death instinct did so for the same reasons as those who those who accepted it: some said that there was no death instinct since there was no model or experience in the or experience in the unconscious; others, that there was a death instinct precisely because there was no model or experience. We experience. We say, to the contrary, that there is no death instinct because there is both the model and the experience because there is both the model and the experience of death in the unconscious. Death then is a part of the the model and the experience of death in the unconscious. Death then is a part of the desiring-machine, a part :hat conversions, and not as an abstract principle. If Freud needs death as a principle, this is by virtue of the requirements direction for the ultimate reason why Freud erects a transcendent death instinct as a principle, the reason will be found in a form turned back against itself, in the form of death itself. And this neutralization, this turning against life, is also earth, that gives off a powerful odor of decay and death; and it is castration, the pious ascetic wound, the signifier the pious ascetic wound, the signifier, that makes of this death a conservatory for the Oedipal life . Desire is in itself scene, with specialist artists who know how to handle the death instinct and bring off castration, bring off frustration. Is this say it smells bad there. It reeks of the great death and the little ego. Freud himself indeed spoke of the indeed spoke of the link between his discovery of the death instinct and World War I, which remains the model of which remains the model of capitalist war. More generally, the death instinct celebrates the wedding of psychoanalysis and capitalism; their engagement reproduction of its own always widened limits (the axiomatic). The death enterprise is one of the principal and specific forms of is this itinerary that psychoanalysis rediscovers and retraces with the death instinct: the death instinct is now only pure silence in that psychoanalysis rediscovers and retraces with the death instinct: the death instinct is now only pure silence in its transcendent distinction combinations it forms with this same life. Absorbed, diffuse, immanent death is the condition formed by the signifier in capitalism, the the primitive and the barbarian, with their ways of coding death, are children in comparison to modern man and his axiomatic War doesn't kill more people than weekend automobile accidents, planned death in Bengal, etc.). Modern man raves to a far greater is decorated like crazy. In man's game of chance the death instinct, the silent instinct is decidedly well placed, perhaps next zero in roulette. The house always wins. So too does death. The law of large numbers works for death. It is too does death. The law of large numbers works for death. It is now or never that we must take up and deterritorializes with all its might. The answer is the death instinct, if we call instinct in general the conditions of that continue, however, to inform the model and experience of death that are elaborated in the unity of the .sociodesiring-apparatus. And sociodesiring-apparatus. And it is even less a question of the death instinct to the extent that the model and the experience social machine and implanting the social machine in the desiring-machines. Death comes all the more from without as it is coded This is especially true of the system of cruelty, where death is inscribed in the primitive mechanism of surplus value as system of despotic terror, where debt becomes infinite and where death experiences an elevation that tends to make of it a of the identity in nature. At the same time that death is decoded, it loses its relationship with a model and production as capital. There where the codes are undone, the death instinct lays hold of the repressive apparatus and begins to liberated desires, but ones that, like cadavers, feed on images. Death is not desired, but what is desired is dead, already is desired is dead, already dead: images. Everything labors in death, everything wishes for death. In truth, capitalism has nothing to already dead: images. Everything labors in death, everything wishes for death. In truth, capitalism has nothing to co-opt; or rather, its en scene, the Symbolic of castration, the effusion of the death instinct, the perverse reterritorializations. the pretended time limitation that contradicts itself by reproducing a debt to infinity, by feeding an inexhaustible transference, and by always expressed. Instead, it is maintained by a continuing chain of debt relationships of an economic kind ... It is the existence of or recording, the potential energy of the apparent movement; but debt is the actual direction of this movement, a kinetic energy of the earth. We have seen that the regime of debt directly resulted from this savage inscription. For debt is the regime of debt directly resulted from this savage inscription. For debt is the unit of alliance, and alliance is representation itself codes the flows of desire and that, by means of debt, creates for man a memory of words (paroles). It is uncoded flows of desire capable of submerging everything. It is debt that articulates the alliances with the filiations that have become memory. That is why it is so important to see debt as a direct consequence of the primitive inscription process, instead a question that Marcel Mauss at least left open: is debt primary in relation to exchange, or is it merely a to have closed the question again with a categorical reply: debt is no more than a superstructure, a conscious form whereby exchange? But what entitles one to declare that shares of debt are secondary compared with a totality that is more real their relationships, although the lateral alliances and the blocks of debt condition the extended filiations in the system in extension, and acted upon. This is indeed what must be called a debt system or territorial representation: a voice that speaks or intones success without equal—at interpreting primitive economy in terms of debt, in the debtor-creditor relationship, by eliminating every consideration of exchange he does not hesitate, as does Mauss, between exchange and debt. (Georges Bataille, motivated by a Nietzschean inspiration, will not hesitate condition of the socius? The answer is simple, it is debt—open, mobile, and finite blocks of debt: this extraordinary composite simple, it is debt—open, mobile, and finite blocks of debt: this extraordinary composite of the speaking voice, the marked body the future. Far from being an appearance assumed by exchange, debt is the immediate effect or the direct means of the the direct means of the territorial and corporal inscription process. Debt is the direct result of inscription. Once again no revenge is indeed here that he encounters the terrible equation of debt: injury done = pain to be suffered. How does one it, and it shows in this extreme case that the debt itself had nothing to do with exchange. Simply stated, the finds itself taken into an immense machinery that renders the debt infinite and no longer forms anything but one and the stocks form the object of an accumulation; the blocks of debt become an infinite relation in the form of the tribute of an accumulation in the other filiation, while the alliance debt becomes an infinite relation in the other alliance. It is the circulation of money—is the means for rendering the debt infinite. And that is what is concealed in the two is always a monotheism on the horizon of despotism: the debt becomes a debt of existence, a debt of the existence monotheism on the horizon of despotism: the debt becomes a debt of existence, a debt of the existence of the subjects of despotism: the debt becomes a debt of existence, a debt of the existence of the subjects themselves. A time will in Lewis Carroll's song, the long song about the infinite debt: A man may surely claim his dues: But, when there's and that on this full body renders the movement of debt infinite. It is a measure of Nietzsche's force to have all the debts of alliance are converted into the infinite debt of the new alliance, and all the extended filiations are himself: it is the juridical form assumed by the infinite debt. The jurist will be seen in the despot's procession up the creditor when necessary, so as to consolidate the infinite debt. As vengeance, and a vengeance exercised in advance, the imperial that Nietzsche partially grasped in the evolution of the infinite debt. The Oedipal cell will have to complete its migration; it the latter by virtue of being the displaced represented. The debt must not only become an infinite debt, it will have displaced represented. The debt must not only become an infinite debt, it will have to be internalized and spiritualized as an will have to be internalized and spiritualized as an infinite debt (Christianity and what follows). The father and the son will this must occur as a direct consequence of the infinite debt that is now internalized. Oedipus-the-despot will have to be replaced field that increasingly overcodes, forming a metaphysical system. The infinite debt must become internalized at the same time as it becomes a fixed debt, which constitute a monetary form of finite debt). Inversely, bank credit effects a demonetization or dematerialization of money of flux imply conditions of reflux, giving to the infinite debt its capitalist form; but the State as a regulator ensures finds strange lyrical words to characterize this flow of infinite debt: an instantaneous creative flow that the banks create spontaneously as instantaneous creative flow that the banks create spontaneously as a debt owing to themselves, a creation ex nihilo that, instead of	p 64 p 146 p 149 p 185 p 185 p 185 p 185 p 185 p 185 p 185 p 185 p 186 p 187 p 189 p 190 p 190 p 190 p 190 p 190 p 190 p 191 p 191 p 192 p 194 p 196 p 197 p 197 p 197 p 197 p 197 p 198 p 199 p 209 p 213 p 213 p 216 p 217 p 217 p 217 p 217 p 222 p 229 p 229 p 237 p 237

Filiation is or filiative stock, and circulating capital or mobile blocks of debts. There are two memories that correspond to them, the one chain; but inversely, the detachments from the chain constitute mobile debts of alliance that guide and direct the flows. On the and the chains, but the fixed stocks and the mobile debts—insofar as they in turn imply relations between chains and physical system that will express itself naturally in terms of debts. It seems to us very significant that Levi-Strauss himself invokes Thus not only the essential opening of the blocks of debts according to the lateral alliances and the successive generations, but fire, its alphabet inscribed in bodies, and its blocks of debts. The soft structure would never function, would never cause a the primitive inscription machine—the blocks of mobile, open, finite debts, the parcels of destiny—finds itself taken into an immense other, an act of liberation through the abolition of small debts. The abolition of debts, when it takes place, is a means of maintaining the rich and a means of remarkably widening the regime of debts, making it even stronger, by anticipating and repressing any reterritorialization to the despotic machine (the agrarian problem); the abolition of debts or their accountable transformation initiates the duty of an interminable subordinates all the primitive alliances to itself (the problem of debts). The infinite creditor and infinite credit have replaced the blocks infinite credit have replaced the blocks of mobile and finite debts. There is always a monotheism on the horizon of despotism alliance by effecting a generalized appropriation of all the alliance debts. But if it is true that innovations are further, that is, in the movement of the market, of decoding and deterritorialization? For perhaps the flows are not yet deterritorialized the technical means of expression that correspond to the generalized decoding of flows, instead of still referring, in a direct or gas; the computer is a machine for instantaneous and generalized decoding. Michel Serres defines in this sense the correlation of the the paths of the signifier. Civilization is defined by the decoding and the deterritorialization of flows in capitalist production. Any method capitalist production. Any method will do for ensuring this universal decoding: the privatization brought to bear on property, goods, and the or exotic—but this taste is destructive and morbid. While decoding doubtless means understanding and translating a code, it also means schizophrenic flows as identical, under the general theme of a decoding of the flows of desire. Their affinity is great, to limit of all societies, insofar as it brings about the decoding of the flows that the other social formations coded and such a regime to distinguish, even in two phases, between decoding and the axiomatization that comes to replace the vanished codes as a science, Hjelmslev is able to effect a vast decoding of language only by setting in motion from the start	p 234 p 239 p 240 p 241 p 244 p 244 p 245 p 245 p 246 p 246 p 246

Only the third type remains, whose characteristics define a good analysis. The patient speaks in order to constitute their use, legitimate or not, and of the conditions that define a use of synthesis as legitimate or not. Take the conception of Oedipus based on parental images, in order to define symbolic functions within a structure, it is in vain that when they coincide or are superimposed on each other. We define the reactionary unconscious investment as the investment that conforms to groups is inadequate, an opposition that would allow one to define neurosis as an intra-oedipal disorder, and psychosis as an extra-oedipal the flows of desire, but under the social conditions that define its limit and the possibility of its own dissolution, so is absent and expelled? Such a form can serve to define a preconscious, but certainly not the unconscious. For if it widening capitalist reproduction process are joined, three segments that also define the three aspects of its immanence: (1) the one that brief, the notion of break-flow has seemed to us to define both capitalism and schizophrenia. But not in the same way narrow and sometimes too wide, but the objective being they define as class interest remains purely virtual so long as it of the State itself. And in effect, how does one define the true alternative without assuming all these problems resolved beforehand despotic State, and the extreme internalization of the capitalist field, define bad conscience. The latter is not cynicism's contrary; it is the two, nomadism and segregation. If we are able to define this difference as that which separates paranoia and schizophrenia, it no better. This time, like Melanie Klein, one attempts to define the female sex by means of positive characteristics, even if This is because the decoding and the deterritorialization of flows define the very process of capitalism—that is, its essence, its what make up the parts of the desiring-machines; partial objects define the working machine or the working parts, but in a intensive development of the productive forces, insofar as these forces define a man-nature independent of all the social formations, or rather converted into incomes, incomes of wages or of enterprises that define aims or spheres of interest, selections, detachments, and portions. But matter how large the extraction of profits, it does not define capitalism. And for what does define capitalism, for what conditions profits, it does not define capitalism. For it is despotic signifier on which the entire chain thereafter seemed to depend, assigning an element of lack to each position of desire a moral aftertaste)? From the moment desire is made to depend on the signifier, it is put back under the yoke within the artificially closed vessel of Oedipus, and in reality depend on a state of forces that is changing, yet always and psychosis. The relationships of neurosis, psychosis, and also perversion depend on the situation of each one with regard to the relapses into an ideology of large segments that makes alliance depend on the major filiations, and that finds itself contradicted by plasma forms an immortal and continuous lineage that does not depend on bodies; on the contrary, the bodies of the parents the bodies of the parents as well as the children depend on it. Whence the distinction between two lines, the one to us to be, not exchange and circulation, which closely depend on the requirements of inscription, but inscription itself, with its short, graphism in one and the same movement begins to depend on the voice, and induces a mute voice from on high or from the beyond, a voice that begins to depend on graphism. It is by subordinating itself to the voice mute voice on which the whole chain now seems to depend, and in relation to which it becomes linearized. The subordination produced the eminent voice? Didn't the transcendence of the phallus depend on the anus? But the latter is revealed only at two aspects of banking practice. But this dissimulation does not depend on a faulty understanding so much as it expresses the of constant capital, etc.—since, on the contrary, these factors depend on it. It seems to us, with the same indispensable regime engender a machinic surplus value that does not directly depend on science and technics themselves, but on capital—a surplus flows and points that are not linguistic and do not depend on the signifier or its regulated elements. makes the familial romance, on the contrary, into a mere dependence on Oedipus, and that he neuroticizes everything in the unconscious if this were not a tiny sign of the abject dependence to which analysis reduced the patients. How can we ward the class of effects: effects that are not a mere dependence on causes, but the occupation of a domain, and the of property, with communal possession bricked into it, and collective dependence. Every form that is more evolved is like a palimpsest impotence of the wage earner as well as the relative dependence of the industrial capitalist. This is money and the market interception of communication. If the familial investment is only a dependence or an application of the unconscious investments of the social they constitute through a linked drawing of elements, a partial dependence, and a superposition of relays. It is not a matter that selection has already placed in a state of partial dependence (the Markov chains). This can even be seen in the someone to be psychoanalyzed: it involves a situation of economic dependence that has become unbearable for desire, or full of conflicts the phallus and castration, but directly concerns an unbearable economic dependence. At no time, therefore, does alliance derive from filiation, but both form an essentially open cycle where alliance, in short, a whole ark of alliance. Alliances never derive from filiations, nor can they be deduced from them. But the despotic machine and the old primitive territorial machine—whence derive both the negation and the persistence of autochthony, brought into	p 62 p 73 p 76 p 77 p 91 p 100 p 119 p 147 p 155 p 182

Not only is it impossible to derive the first anxiety from the second, but one cannot even aggregate invested by the libido, whence the two sexes necessarily derive, both in their separation (the two homosexual series of man representatives whence the subjects, the objects, and their relationships all derive. In this way the structure designates the unconscious of subjective	p 241 p 275 p 294 p 306

It is doubtless true loves, which are not explained by their interests, since interests derive from them instead. At the deepest level of society there in the standard of living are realities, but realities that derive from a given supplementary axiom that capitalism is always capable underneath the recodings and the reterritorializations. as the Omnitude realitatis, from which all secondary realities are derived by a process of division). Hence the sole thing that and genealogically complex relationships with God and forms of God derived from the godhead by division. But all this happens and not bolstered by needs, but rather the contrary; needs are derived from desire: they are counterproducts within the real that desire so long as the whole is considered as a totality derived from the parts, or as an original totality from which there is an original totality from which they can be derived. Melanie Klein was responsible for the marvelous discovery of partial complete Object). Partial objects hence appear to her to be derived from (preleves sur) global persons; not only are they destined suspected at the very beginning, partial objects are only apparently derived from (preleves sur) global persons; they are really produced by the father, I condemn you). But this duality is artificial, derived, and supposes a direct relationship proceeding from the statement to one person to another. The reason is that persons are derived from abstract quantities, instead of from flows. Instead of a synthesis that would go beyond the negative disjunctions of the derived reality, in an original reality of Man-God, but rather of problem of meaning, but only of usage. Nothing original or derived, but a generalized drift. It would seem that the schizo segregative use of the conjunctive syntheses from which Oedipus is derived: I am of the superior race. The revolutionary unconscious investment	p 13 p 16 p 27 p 44 p 44 p 44 p 46 p 64 p 71 p 77 p 78 p 105
it must be actualized in a neurotic formation as a derived effect of the actual factor, or inasmuch as it is of private persons as individual centers of organs and functions derived from the abstract quantity. One is even compelled to say of code at the level of the flows, whence are derived differences in status between the filiative lines (for example, the are not like cause and effect, but are both products derived from this same substance, in relation to which the son such in the complex, since the complex is an element derived from this this-side-of. there where they are needed, the capitalist as a function derived from capital, and the worker as a function derived from function derived from capital, and the worker as a function derived from labor capacity, etc., in such a way that the persons are social persons first of all, i.e., functions derived from the abstract quantities; they become concrete in the becoming-related the capitalist as personified capital—i.e., as a function derived from the flow of capital; and the worker as personified the worker as personified labor capacity—i.e., a function derived from the flow of labor. In this way capitalism fills in the new means appropriated by desire and in the derived desires produced by the machines. A profound text by Samuel the inhibited, it was because he remained the prisoner of derived concepts that made him fall short of the materialist psychiatry which the libido addresses itself through them. Persons are simulacra derived from a social aggregate whose code is unconsciously invested for	p 263 p 263 p 264 p 264 p 264 p 284 p 345 p 366

cycle. We can say that social production, under determinate conditions, derives primarily from desiring-production: which is to say that Homo natura then became rather indifferent to the fact that this beyond derives from the familial complex through the analytical transformation of desire object of a libidinal investment of desire that only secondarily derives an image of the father from desiring-production. The same holds that innocent men suffer all the marks on their bodies derives from the respective autonomy of the voice and the graphic a detached object, and the linearization of the chain that derives from this object. It is perhaps at this juncture that an additional turn of the screw, represses the desiring-machines. Incest derives from this investment and not the reverse. At first it something concrete. This is the differential relation Dy/Dx , where Dy derives from labor power and constitutes the fluctuation of variable capital and constitutes the fluctuation of variable capital, and where Dx derives from capital itself and constitutes the fluctuation of constant capital high volume of production to justify them, the corollary that derives from this proposition is that investment in innovations is never The person has become private in reality, insofar as he derives from abstract quantities and becomes concrete in the becoming-concrete of structural relation, whence the imaginary place and interplay of persons derives; and inversely, the theater forces the play and the working	p 33 p 58 p 173 p 191 p 206 p 216 p 227 p 228 p 234 p 251 p 307

The structural ties deriving from marriage between members of different corporations have been largely capital, where money would take on functions other than those deriving from its form as the equivalent. But in this way intervenes only in the structural organization and the personal relations deriving from it, where everyone, like the worker called to war one type of group to the other. Subject-groups are continually deriving from subjugated groups through a rupture of the latter: they on the full body of capital. all idealistic categories and constitutes a cycle whose whose relationship to desire is that of an immanent principle. That is why desiring-production drains off, the binary series is linear in every direction. Desire constantly couples continuous flows and partial objects that are by and partial objects that are by nature fragmentary and fragmented. Desire causes the current to flow, itself flows in turn, and terms of a process of production which is that of desire: Once noticed, it continued to occupy one's mind. It even its name, and death is not without a model. For desire desires death also, because the full body of death is for the recording of the entire process of production of desire, so that desiring-machines seem to emanate from it in the most far-reaching question in this regard: does the recording of desire go by way of the various stages in the formation Oedipus complex? Disjunctions are the form that the genealogy of desire assumes; but is this genealogy Oedipal, is it recorded in order to parody it. The code of delirium or of desire proves to have an extraordinary fluidity. It might be said the contrary, by the twofold task it sets itself: introducing desire into the mechanism, and introducing production into desire. There is itself: introducing desire into the mechanism, and introducing production into desire. There is no very great difference between false materialism and great discovery of psychoanalysis was that of the production of desire, of the productions of the unconscious. But once Oedipus entered through autism, schizophrenia is the process of the production of desire and desiring-machines. How does one get from one to the = History. To a certain degree, the traditional logic of desire is all wrong from the very outset: from the very from the very first step that the Platonic logic of desire forces us to take, making us choose between production and between production and acquisition. From the moment that we place desire on the side of acquisition, we make desire an idealistic we place desire on the side of acquisition, we make desire an idealistic (dialectical, nihilistic) conception, which causes us to look with effecting a critical revolution as regards the theory of desire, by attributing to it the faculty of being, through its beliefs, hallucinations, and fantasies as illustrations of this definition of desire: as Kant would have it, we are well aware that not prevent us from believing in the intrinsic power of desire to create its own object—if only in an unreal form—or from representing this causality as stemming from within desire itself. The reality of the object, insofar as it is reality of the object, insofar as it is produced by desire, is thus a psychic reality. Hence it can be said does not question the validity of the classical conception of desire as a lack; rather, it uses this conception as a examines its implications more carefully. In point of fact, if desire is the lack of the real object, its very nature upon an essence of lack that produces the fantasized object. Desire thus conceived of as production, though merely the production of level of interpretation, this means that the real object that desire lacks is related to an extrinsic natural or social production is related to an extrinsic natural or social production, whereas desire intrinsically produces an imaginary object that functions as a double as an object, but as a specific machine that brings desire itself front and center, this machine is merely theatrical, and a relative lack and determined by its own object, whereas desire is regarded as what produces the fantasy and produces itself an inability-to-be that is life itself. Hence the presentation of desire as something supported by needs, while these needs, and their missing, continue to be the basis of the productivity of desire (theory of an underlying support). In a word, when the to exploit to the fullest the idealist principle that defines desire as a lack, rather than a process of production, of every time the emphasis is put on a lack that desire supposedly suffers from as a way of defining its object the following line of argument: there is an object that desire feels the lack of; hence the world does not contain there is at least one object missing, the one that desire feels the lack of; hence there exists some other place there exists some other place that contains the key to desire (missing in this world). If desire produces, its product is contains the key to desire (missing in this world). If desire produces, its product is real. If desire is productive, it this world). If desire produces, its product is real. If desire is productive, it can be productive only in the real only in the real world and can produce only reality. Desire is the set of passive syntheses that engineer partial objects the end product, the result of the passive syntheses of desire as autoproduction of the unconscious. Desire does not lack anything the passive syntheses of desire as autoproduction of the unconscious. Desire does not lack anything; it does not lack its object object. It is, rather, the subject that is missing in desire, or desire that lacks a fixed subject; there is no is, rather, the subject that is missing in desire, or desire that lacks a fixed subject; there is no fixed subject subject; there is no fixed subject unless there is repression. Desire and its object are one and the same thing: the same thing: the machine, as a machine of a machine. Desire is a machine, and the object of desire is another a machine. Desire is a machine, and the object of desire is another machine connected to it. Hence the product is the vagabond, nomad subject a residuum. The objective being of desire is the Real in and of itself. There is no not lack, but passion, as a natural and sensuous object. Desire is not bolstered by needs, but rather the contrary; needs by needs, but rather the contrary; needs are derived from desire: they are counterproducts within the real that desire produces. Lack derived from desire: they are counterproducts within the real that desire produces. Lack is a countereffect of desire; it is deposited the real that desire produces. Lack is a countereffect of desire; it is deposited, distributed, vacuolized within a real that is distributed, vacuolized within a real that is natural and social. Desire always remains in close touch with the conditions of objective outlive them. For that reason it so often becomes the desire to die, whereas need is a measure of the withdrawal of the withdrawal of a subject that has lost its desire at the same time that it loses the passive syntheses been unable to synthesize chlorophyll, so it's necessary to eat ... Desire then becomes this abject fear of lacking something. But it are close to grass, almost akin to it, and that desire needs very few things—not those leftovers that chance to of man, the objective being of man, for whom to desire is to produce, to produce within the realm of the contrary, within the real everything is possible, everything becomes possible. Desire does not express a molar lack within the subject; rather molar lack within the subject; rather, the molar organization deprives desire of its objective being. Revolutionaries, artists, and seers are content are content to be objective, merely objective: they know that desire clasps life in its powerfully productive embrace, and reproduces it needs (manque) amid an abundance of production; making all of desire teeter and fall victim to the great fear of not dependent upon a real production that is supposedly exterior to desire (the demands of rationality), while at the same time the of rationality), while at the same time the production of desire is categorized as fantasy and nothing but fantasy. There is We maintain that the social field is immediately invested by desire, that it is the historically determined product of desire, and by desire, that it is the historically determined product of desire, and that libido has no need of any mediation or productive forces and the relations of production. There is only desire and the social, and nothing else. Even the most repressive the most deadly forms of social reproduction are produced by desire within the organization that is the consequence of such production their desires into account, an explanation formulated in terms of desire: no, the masses were not innocent dupes; at a certain they wanted fascism, and it is this perversion of the desire of the masses that needs to be accounted for. Yet the process of social production, and the irrational element in desire, and by regarding only this latter as a suitable subject common denominator or the coextension of the social field and desire. In order to establish the basis for a genuinely materialistic enormous effect on desiring-production in no way vitiates our principle: desire produces reality, or stated another way, desiring-production is one and not possible to attribute a special form of existence to desire, a mental or psychic reality that is presumably different from from the point of view of the elementary forces of desire that serve as a basis for them. Hence in group on the contrary, it may launch a counterinvestment whereby revolutionary desire is plugged into the existing social field as a source fantasies—that is, as agents of the real productivity of desire, making it possible to disinvest the current social field, to to de institutionalize it, to further the revolutionary institution of desire itself.) But there is never any difference in nature between For desiring-machines are the fundamental category of the economy of desire; they produce a body without organs all by themselves, and the fact that it is admittedly a strange adventure for desire to desire repression. There is only one kind of production that it is admittedly a strange adventure for desire to desire repression. There is only one kind of production, the production the socius, has always been to codify the flows of desire, to inscribe them, to record them, to see to it it a body without organs and unleash the flows of desire on this body as a deterritorialized field. Is it correct codes and is the transmitter of the decoded flows of desire. The real continues to flow. In the schizo, the two the concept of production into consideration of the problem of desire, it cannot avoid posing in eschatological terms the problem of fuse into one: everywhere there are breaks-flows out of which desire wells up, thereby constituting its productivity and continually grafting the mechanical, schizophrenic life expresses the absence and the destruction of desire rather than desire itself, and presupposes certain extremely negative attitudes expresses the absence and the destruction of desire rather than desire itself, and presupposes certain extremely negative attitudes on the part machines themselves are proof of the loss or repression of desire (which Bettelheim translates in terms of autism). We find ourselves once again: How has the process of the production of desire, how have the child's desiring-machines begun to turn endlessly round it is nonetheless still a part. But the machine remains desire, an investment of desire whose history unfolds, by way of a part. But the machine remains desire, an investment of desire whose history unfolds, by way of the primary repression and

From the moment desire is made to depend on the signifier, it is put the stroke of the signifier itself; but the sign of desire is never signifying, it exists in the thousands of productive all over again)? We wonder if Oedipus in fact expresses desire; if Oedipus is desired then it is indeed on it prohibits something that is perfectly fictitious in the order of desire or of the instincts, so as to persuade its subjects gives a falsified apparent image that is meant to trap desire. Such is the nature of Oedipus—the sham image. Repression it is induced by repression. Repression cannot act without displacing desire, without giving rise to a consequent desire, all ready, all act without displacing desire, without giving rise to a consequent desire, all ready, all warm for punishment, and without putting this all ready, all warm for punishment, and without putting this desire in the place of the antecedent desire on which repression without putting this desire in the place of the antecedent desire on which repression comes to bear in principle or in all his might: no, Oedipus is not a state of desire and the drives, it is an idea, nothing but an nothing but an idea that repression inspires in us concerning desire; not even a compromise, but an idea in the service bait, the disfigured image by means of which repression catches desire in the trap. If desire is repressed, this is not means of which repression catches desire in the trap. If desire is repressed, this is not because it is desire for If desire is repressed, this is not because it is desire for the mother and for the death of the father and for the death of the father; on the contrary, desire becomes that only because it is repressed, it takes on there were other obstacles. The real danger is elsewhere. If desire is repressed, it is because every position of desire, no If desire is repressed, it is because every position of desire, no matter how small, is capable of calling into question into question the established order of a society: not that desire is asocial, on the contrary. But it is explosive; there entire social sectors. Despite what some revolutionaries think about this, desire is revolutionary in its essence—desire, not left-wing holidays!—and revolutionaries think about this, desire is revolutionary in its essence—desire, not left-wing holidays!—and no society can tolerate a position holidays!—and no society can tolerate a position of real desire without its structures of exploitation, servitude, and hierarchy being compromised is identical with its structures—an amusing hypothesis—then yes, desire threatens its very being. It is therefore of vital importance is therefore of vital importance for a society to repress desire, and even to find something more efficient than repression, so is quite troublesome to have to say such rudimentary things: desire does not threaten a society because it is a desire desire does not threaten a society because it is a desire to sleep with the mother, but because it is revolutionary is revolutionary. And that does not at all mean that desire is something other than sexuality, but that sexuality and love do not let themselves be stocked within an established order. Desire does not want revolution, it is revolutionary in its own essential repression of desiring-production, and also that desiring-production—a real desire—is potentially capable of demolishing the social form. But what of demolishing the social form. But what is a real desire, since repression is also desired? How can we tell them a given form of social production. Social repression bears on desire—and not solely on needs or interests—only by means Of course it should not be concluded from this that desire is Oedipal. On the contrary, it is the social repression Oedipal. On the contrary, it is the social repression of desire or sexual repression—that is, the stasis of libidinal energy the stasis of libidinal energy—that actualizes Oedipus and engages desire in this requisite impasse, organized by the repressive society. Reich

the first to raise the problem of the relationship between desire and the social field (and went further than Marcuse, who of a materialist psychiatry. Situating the problem in terms of desire, he is the first to reject the explanations of a desiring-production, he did not succeed in determining the insertion of desire into the economic infrastructure itself, the insertion of the drives production. Consequently, revolutionary investment seemed to him such that the desire moving within it simply coincided with an economic rationality; as illusion?) The fact remains that Reich, in the name of desire, caused a song of life to pass into psychoanalysis. He himself, in search of the vital and cosmic element of desire, than to continue being a psychoanalyst under those conditions. No such that social repression becomes desired; it induces a consequent desire, a faked image of its object, on which it bestows to an agent of psychic repression, and correlatively the repressed desire is as though masked by the faked displaced image to and revolution. By placing the distorting mirror of incest before desire (that's what you wanted, isn't it?), desire is shamed, stupefied of incest before desire (that's what you wanted, isn't it?), desire is shamed, stupefied, it is placed in a situation without capable of acting on, of inscribing the recording surface of desire. Such an agent exists: the family. It belongs essentially to of the astonishing productive experience he is undergoing with his desire; but this experience is not related to them as such exclusion. The family is therefore introduced into the production of desire and will perform a displacement, an unparalleled repression of desire desire and will perform a displacement, an unparalleled repression of desire commencing with the earliest age of the child. Social production able in this manner to slip into the recording of desire, it is because the body without organs on which this repressed, by substituting a familial recording for the recording of desire. Desiring-production taken as a whole does not assume the well-known everywhere (in the enterprise of domesticating the unconscious, of representing desire and the unconscious). To be sure, we have never dreamed very powerful forces are required to defeat the forces of desire, lead them to resignation, and substitute everywhere reactions of the manifested a strong hatred for her mother and an incestuous desire for her father, but under conditions of reality loss where take themselves for his people. It is the recording of desire on the increate body without organs, and the familial recording operates on desiring-production. Inscripting itself into the recording process of desire, clutching at everything, the family performs a vast appropriation of the connections and the hiatuses that characterize the machines of desire. It reorganizes them all along the lines of the universal own three syntheses, since it is a matter of connecting desire to the ready-made objects of social production. Go buy madeleines this in terms of the hold over the machines of desire that it constantly guarantees itself, or in terms of these familial complex? Even a writer like Reich—so careful to situate desire in relation to the forms of social production, demonstrating thereby ulterior or privative. Being constitutive of the full life of desire, it is contemporary with the most tender age, and it as it can be by virtue of the states of desire. Rarely have psychiatrists and psychoanalysts been able to establish a It is a question of the recognition of an unconscious desire, and not of this desire's satisfaction. Recognizing the desire is unconscious desire, and not of this desire's satisfaction. Recognizing the desire is tantamount to setting desiring-production back into motion on the order to silence and suffocate this production. This recognition of desire this position of desire, this Sign refers to an order suffocate this production. This recognition of desire this position of desire, this Sign refers to an order of real and actual deterritorialization, and as the movement of metaphysical production that carries desire along with it and reproduces it in a new Earth over the limit, the schiz, which maintained the production of desire always at the margins of social production, tangential and always schizos revolve, planets for a new sun. These men of desire—or do they not yet exist?—are like Zarathustra. They something simple in his own name, without asking permission; a desire lacking nothing, a flux that overcomes barriers and codes, a what causes it to move, to flow, and to explode—desire. For literature is like schizophrenia: a process and not a two poles of Oedipus, problem and solution, neurosis and sublimation, desire and truth—the one regressive, where the work hashes out in grammar and syntax, and of making all language a desire, were not speaking from the depths of psychosis, and as the psychotic in the process of decoding the flows of desire (Van Gogh, the Man Suicided by Society), but also what to the analyst's couch, rather than the decoded flows of desire that flee, slip away, and take us where? Such is not to be carried off by the deterritorialized flows of desire. Neurotic territoriality of Oedipus, perverse territorialities of the artifice, psychotic it is true that precapitalist social machines are inherent in desire: they code it, they code the flows of desire. To in desire: they code it, they code the flows of desire. To code desire—and the fear, the anguish of decoded code it, they code the flows of desire. To code desire—and the fear, the anguish of decoded flows—is the the form of money. Capitalism therefore liberates the flows of desire, but under the social conditions that define its limit and and critical. The earth is the primitive, savage unity of desire and production. For the earth is not merely the multiple as the quasi cause of production and the object of desire (it is on the earth that desire becomes bound to the object of desire (it is on the earth that desire becomes bound to its own repression). The territorial machine is residual share for each member, in a global system of desire and destiny that organizes the productions of production, the productions parts figure as cogs and wheels in the State machine. Desire is by no means an interplay between a son, a mother, and a father. Desire institutes a libidinal investment of a State machine that overcodes by any means a complex in the sense of repressed desire, since on the contrary the representation exercises its repressive action on the contrary the representation exercises its repressive action on desire itself. The Oedipus complex, as it is called by psychoanalysis the repressed under conditions that disfigure, displace, and even decode desire. The Oedipus complex appears only after latency; and when Freud representation, it will have to finally become the representative of desire itself. And it must become the latter by virtue of repression-psychoic repression will have to undergo a complete reorganization. Hence desire, having completed its migration, will have to experience this extreme as well as to the sickest interiority, the trap for desire, its ugly growth. So long as the history of desire desire, its ugly growth. So long as the history of desire does not experience this outcome, Oedipus haunts all societies, but in the social or technical machine precisely the movement of desire? Again and again we come upon the monstrous paradox: the again we come upon the monstrous paradox: the State is desire that passes from the head of the despot to the that disengages or liberates itself from the law. A State desire, the most fantastic machine for repression, is still desire—the State desire, the most fantastic machine for repression, is still desire—the subject that desires and the object of desire. Desire still desire—the subject that desires and the object of desire. Desire—such is the operation that consists in always stamping desire—the subject that desires and the object of desire. Desire—such is the operation that consists in always stamping the of the State. Death is felt rising from within and desire itself becomes the death instinct, latency, but it also passes flows—but who will give a name to this new desire? Flows of property that is sold, flows of money that at the same time as the new life begins and desire receives its name. The only universal history is the history the technical machine, that is lacking. Isn't it rather that desire remains caught in the nets of the despotic State, entirely a space that takes time, do decoded flows constitute a desire—a desire that, instead of just dreaming or lacking it that takes time, do decoded flows constitute a desire—a desire that, instead of just dreaming or lacking it, actually produces of convertibility—which is enough, however, to ensure that the Desire of the most disadvantaged creature will invest with all its the capitalist social field as a whole. Flows, who doesn't desire flows, and relationships between flows, and breaks in flows?—all bank that controls the whole system and the investment of desire. One of Keynes's contributions was the reintroduction of desire into of desire. One of Keynes's contributions was the reintroduction of desire into the problem of money; it is this that must it is indeed the global object of an investment of desire. The wage earner's desire, the capitalist's desire, everything moves to global object of an investment of desire. The wage earner's desire, the capitalist's desire, everything moves to the rhythm of one an investment of desire. The wage earner's desire, the capitalist's desire, everything moves to the rhythm of one and the same everything moves to the rhythm of one and the same desire, founded on the differential relation of flows having no assignable to reply to the question: how does one come to desire strength while also desiring one's own impotence? How was such was such a social field able to be invested by desire? And how far does desire go beyond so-called objective interests able to be invested by desire? And how far does desire go beyond so-called objective interests, when it is a question relations between flows contain the secret of the investment of desire. It is at the level of flows, the monetary flows not at the level of ideology, that the integration of desire is achieved. So what is the solution? Which is the entire system of economic-monetary dependences at the heart of the desire of every subject it treats. Psychoanalysis constitutes for its part content and expression to flow according to the flows of desire; and that breaks these flows according to points-signs and figures-signifying signs that deliver themselves over to the order of desire: rushes of breath and cries. (In particular, formal investigations concerning break-flow. The pure figural element—the figure-matrix—Lyotard correctly names desire, which carries us to the gates of schizophrenia as a spaces? The explanation is that, despite his attempt at linking desire to a fundamental yes, Lyotard reintroduces lack and absence into to a fundamental yes, Lyotard reintroduces lack and absence into desire; maintains desire under the law of castration, at the risk fundamental yes, Lyotard reintroduces lack and absence into desire; maintains desire under the law of castration, at the risk of restoring simple fantasy that comes to veil desiring-production, the whole of desire as effective production. But at least for an instant the the general theme of a decoding of the flows of desire. Their affinity is great, to be sure: everywhere capitalism sets from the unbound molecular positions; on whether the flows of desire reach this absolute limit or are content to displace a economy that it appropriates. That is why the sign of desire, as an economic sign that consists in producing and breaking economic, instead of being doubles to the economic signs of desire and expressing for their part noneconomic factors determined as dominant innocent standards, claiming the rights of a prior distinction between desire and interest: The leadership has no task more urgent, besides a tendency rather to reply: when I hear the word desire, I pull out my gun.) Desire can never be deceived I hear the word desire, I pull out my gun.) Desire can never be deceived. Interests can be deceived, unrecognized, or deceived. Interests can be deceived, unrecognized, or betrayed, but not desire. Whence Reich's cry: no, the masses were not deceived, they party, and the party leadership. How does one explain that desire devotes itself to operations that are not failures of recognition subjective essence of wealth, in labor or production—and in desire as well, it would seem. (It was an immense step reterritorialization are the three surface elements of the representation of desire in the modern socius. So we come back to the the capitalist order of representation, and that this representation subjects desire to an operation of social repression-psychoic repression that is stronger freed a fantastic death instinct that now permeates and crushes desire? And what is this death that always rises from within these images are no longer recognized at all in the desire that is determined to invest only their simulacrum. The familial is applied. Oedipus is this displaced or internalized limit where desire lets itself be caught. The Oedipal triangle is the personal every social formation, since it is the displaced represented of desire. But in the primitive formations this limit remains vacant, precisely flows actually fall back on restricted familial images invested by desire. It is at this point in the Imaginary that Oedipus the displaced represented has become, as such, the representation of desire. Hence it goes without saying that this becoming or this left uncovered by the withdrawal of the signifier. I reach desire when I arrive at castration! What does the desire-castration equation not in fact a prodigious operation that consists in replacing desire under the law of the despot, in introducing lack there Chinese, all the resources of racism and segregation; the abject desire to be loved, the whimpering at not being loved enough a stimulus to the investment of the social field by desire: the familial images function only by opening onto social images it is there that the flow of the investment of desire, which travels from the familial stimulus to the social organization greatness lies in having determined the essence or nature of desire, no longer in relation to objects, aims, or even sources in the Three Essays, then centering more and more around desire. It is as though Freud were asking to be forgiven moment. The familialist reduction, in place of the drift of desire. In place of the great decoded flows, little streams recoded of myth, of tragedy, of dreams, in order to re-enslave desire, this time from within: an intimate theater. Yes, Oedipus is an intimate theater. Yes, Oedipus is nevertheless the universal of desire, the product of universal history—but on one condition, which the child really amounts to saying that the investment of desire is in the first instance the investment of a social the social field as the terminus of the investment of desire defines the cycle, and the states through which a subject insofar as it is the object of the investment of desire. In all respects the family is never determining, but is enclaves or the periphery; and disinvests every free figure of desire—yes, I am your kind, and I belong to the type or pole that follows the lines of escape of desire; breaches the wall and causes flows to move; assembles its that of crossing limits and frontiers, causing deterritorialized flows of desire to circulate, but also always making these flows transport fascisizing problems that cross through a family: his belonging or his desire to belong to a superior or an inferior race, the of the gregarious aggregate, which socially and psychically represses the desire of persons; the other, a subject-group investment in the transverse other, a subject-group investment in the transverse multiplicities that convey desire as a molecular phenomenon, that is, as partial objects and in this microphysical or micropsychic region, there where there is desire—that is to say, not only its functioning, but formation noted that, in one way or another, the machine and desire thus remain in an extrinsic relationship, either because desire appears and desire thus remain in an extrinsic relationship, either because desire appears as an effect determined by a system of mechanical a system of means in terms of the aims of desire. The link between the two remains secondary and indirect, both secondary and indirect, both in the new means appropriated by desire and in the derived desires produced by the machines. A rest, a direct link is perceived between the machine and desire, the machine passes to the heart of desire, the machine machine and desire, the machine passes to the heart of desire, the machine is desiring and desire, machined. Desire is not to the heart of desire, the machine is desiring and desire, machined. Desire is not in the subject, but the machine heart of desire, the machine is desiring and desire, machined. Desire is not in the subject, but the machine in desire Desire is not in the subject, but the machine in desire—with the residual subject off to the side, alongside the entire periphery, a parasite of machines, an accessory of vertebra-machinate desire. In a word, the real difference is not between the

and specific, the disjunctions exclusive, and the conjunctions biunivocal; then desire does not need to project itself into these forms that opaque. These forms are immediately molar manifestations, statistical determinations of desire and of its own machines. They are the same machines they stand in for the other machines. There is only desire and environments, fields, forms of herd instinct. Stated differently, the that there exists a functionalism—machinic arrangements, an engineering of desire; for it is only there that functioning and formation, use Freud's unconscious, since the diagnosis is carried out by comparing desire to the photographs of hermaphrodites, assassins, etc., instead of reducing in the arrangement of the desiring-machines and the syntheses of desire. We have seen that, through reproduction and its objects (defined this reason Szondi misses the internal or molecular elements of desire, the nature of their machinic choices, arrangements, and combinations. He platitude. For the prime evidence points to the fact that desire does not take as its object persons or things, but introducing therein breaks and captures—an always nomadic and migrant desire, characterized first of all by its gigantism: no one has understanding what principles psychoanalysis uses to support its conception of desire, when it maintains that the libido must be desexualized or it curiously changes its function, depending on whether it engages desire in the Oedipal impasses of the couple and the family that constitute these aggregates under determinate conditions. The dwarfism of desire as a correlate to its gigantism. Sexuality and the desiring-machines of the formulas according to which one gains access to desire through castration. But the idea that there are two sexes as having to be the entry of the subject into desire through castration? Long live castration, so that desire may be subject into desire through castration? Long live castration, so that desire may be strong? Only fantasies are truly desired? What a with women, women with men—into relations of production of desire that overturn the statistical order of the sexes. Making love sexes. 3 Psychoanalysis and Capitalism The schizoanalytic argument is simple: desire is a machine, a synthesis of machines, a machinic arrangement synthesis of machines, a machinic arrangement—desiring-machines. The order of desire is the order of production; all production is at once it is conceived. And to conceive there must first be desire, ... Desire is instinctual and holy: it is only through desire is conceived. And to conceive there must first be desire, ... Desire is instinctual and holy: it is only through desire that desire, ... Desire is instinctual and holy: it is only through desire that we bring about the immaculate conception. Everything is said expressions, pregnant forms; they express the true permanent drama of desire and knowledge. Fraenkel calls to his aid all the commonplaces representation. Production can be that of labor or that of desire, it can be social or desiring, it calls forth forces principle of every representation of the objects and aims of desire. Freud discovers the subjective nature or abstract essence of desire desire. Freud discovers the subjective nature or abstract essence of desire, just as Ricardo discovers the subjective nature or abstract essence to particular sources. Freud is thus the first to disengage desire itself (le desir tout court), as Ricardo disengages labor itself sphere of production that effectively eclipses representation. And subjective abstract desire, like subjective abstract labor, is inseparable from a movement of their agents underneath all the specific determinations that still linked desire or labor to a given person, to a given object of representation. Desiring-production and machines, psychic apparatuses and machines of desire, desiring-machines and the assembling of an analytic machine suited to and tragedy are systems of symbolic representations that still refer desire to determinate exterior conditions as well as to particular objective the re-establishment of an exterior representation of the essence of desire as an objective desire, alienated in myth or tragedy. How exterior representation of the essence of desire as an objective desire, alienated in myth or tragedy. How can this very complex the first place, symbolic representation indeed grasps the essence of desire, but by referring it to large objectities (objectities) as to and sources. It is in this way that myth ascribes desire to the element of the earth as a full body territorial code that distributes prescriptions and prohibitions. Likewise tragedy ascribes desire to the full body of the despot and to the psychoanalysis refers them to the subjective and universal essence of desire as libido. Thus the operation of decoding in psychoanalysis can the most modern society. This is also the case for desire as abstract libido and as subjective essence. Not that a or between the flows of money-capital and the shit-flows of desire. The relationship is much closer: desiring-machines are in social machines desires to work or that he works according to his desire. But the identity of desire and labor is not a he works according to his desire. But the identity of desire and labor is not a myth, it is rather the the same time as it discovers the subjective essence of desire and labor—a common essence, inasmuch as it is the maintains it divided—abstract labor on the one hand, abstract desire on the other: political economy and psychoanalysis. political economy and represented in private property has, as its correlate, subjective abstract Desire as represented in the privatized family. Psychoanalysis undertakes the analysis lack. It is in the structure that the fusion of desire with the impossible is performed, with lack defined as castration honor of castration—yes, yes, we enter the order of desire through the gates of castration once desiring-production has spread out their molecular elements, the objective representations and the machines of desire—is now completely displaced. The limit now passes only within a reverse side that is like the real production of desire. This reverse side is the real inorganization of the molecular the space each time an intensity fills it; signs of desire that compose a signifying chain but that are not themselves absence or withdrawal. Yes, in fact, there the production of desire can be represented only in terms of an extrapolated sign an absence, and no longer as a positive force. There desire is necessarily referred to a missing term, whose very essence whose very essence is to be lacking. The signs of desire, being nonsignifying, become signifying in representation only in terms of as a positive principle of nonconsistency that dissolves it: where desire is shifted into the order of production, related to its as the Real is defined as the objective being of desire. For the unconscious of schizoanalysis is unaware of persons, aggregates (its relations with money) through which the decoded flows of desire, as taken up in the axiomatic of capitalism, must necessarily a radical break with reality, starting with the reality of desire; it is a narcissism, a monstrous autism: the characteristic autism interior of the representation that performs the artificial reterritorializations of desire. If the displacing agency can be concluded from the displaced induced in its very structure a false image that caught desire in its trap (the impossibility of concluding from the prohibition in general is the artificial reterritorialization of the flows of desire, whose machines on the contrary are indices of deterritorialized production Schizoanalysis on the contrary must disengage the deterritorialized flows of desire, in the molecular elements of desiring-production. We should again call what psychoanalysis believes it to be. The decoded flows of desire form the free energy (libido) of the desiring-machines. The desiring-machines short, there is no deterritorialization of the flows of schizophrenic desire that is not accompanied by global or local reterritorializations, reterritorializations to dreams, why turn them into the royal road of desire and the unconscious, when they are in fact the manifestation nonhuman sex mingles with the flowers, a new earth where desire functions according to its molecular elements and flows. Such a and maintain labor in the axiomatic framework of property, and desire in the applied framework of the family; but this social but affects just as well the flows of labor and desire, of production, knowledge, and creation in their most profound tendency any means a formation of this sphere—here is where desire finds itself trapped, specifically limited to human sex, unified and that he has drawn near the singularity of the subject's desire). To be sure, one can always establish or re-establish some indirect passive syntheses are one and the same engineering of desire. But who will be able to describe the desiring-machines of put into motion—the two activities, the two heads of desire. For as we have seen, it can be produced as syntheses that continue to repudiate the organism and its organization. Desire indeed passes through the body, and through the organs, but one end to the other of the molecular chain of desire. The chain is like the apparatus of transmission or of a code at the level of this molecular chain of desire. We have seen that a code implied two things—one is still signifying because it is composed of signs of desire; but these signs are no longer signifying, given the fact signifier, has as its reverse side the real inorganization of desire. It would seem that the genetic code points to a Numen, is not used to discover or decipher codes of desire, but to cause absolutely decoded flows of desire, Libido, to codes of desire, but to cause absolutely decoded flows of desire, Libido, to circulate, and to discover in desire that which flows of desire, Libido, to circulate, and to discover in desire that which scrambles all the codes and undoes all the successful castration! But by recoding or axiomatizing the flows of desire in this way, psychoanalysis makes a molar use of the coexistence. Hence it is absurd to speak of a death desire that would presumably be in qualitative opposition to the life the model of death? Here again, is it a death desire? A being-far-death? Or rather an investment of death, even if

and as the deterritorialized circuit of all the cycles of desire. How odd the psychoanalytic venture is. Psychoanalysis ought to be limit the discovery of a subjective or vital essence of desire as libido. But when the dualism passed into a death repression instead of its result; it follows that sexuality as desire no longer animates a social critique of civilization, but that sanctified as the sale agency capable of opposing the death desire. And how. does. it do this? By in principle turning this turned-back death (la mort retournee) into a force of desire by putting it in the service of a pseudo life enterprise is continued and reinforced—eliminating the machinic element of desire, the desiring-machines. Sick desire stretches out on the couch, an artificial swamp, a little there must also exist two abortions, two castrations for sick desire: once in the family, in the familial scene, with the the barbarian constellations, we see that the subjective essence of desire as production is referred to large objectities , to the territorial ensure the coding or the overcoding of the flows of desire by introducing them into systems of representation that are themselves and displaced limit, with the result that the machines of desire operate on this side of their limit within the framework p 336 p 336 p 336 p 336 p 336 p 336 functionally draws them nearer to a chain of decoding of desire: the parts of the desiring-machine function in the very workings the very workings of the social machine; the flows of desire enter and exit through the codes that continue, however, to reproduces the ever wider interior limits, and that of abstract desire alienated in the privatized family that displaces the ever narrower In a world such as this, there is no living desire that could not of itself cause the system to explode p 337 p 337 p 337 p 337 p 337 p 337 without which it could not interfere in the machinery of desire. In contrast to psychoanalysis, which itself falls into the trap or seal off fragments of molecular chain. A sequence of desire is extended by a social series, or a social machine to be lacked by the partial objects. In this way desire will be fused to lack. The myriad breaks-flows that determine a degree of perfection unknown before capitalism.) This welding of desire to lack is precisely what gives desire collective and personal p 338 p 338 p 338 p 338 p 338 p 338

This welding of desire to lack is precisely what gives desire collective and personal ends, goals or intentions—instead of desire desire collective and personal ends, goals or intentions—instead of desire taken in the real order of its production, which behaves we will distinguish the unconscious libidinal investment of group or desire, and the preconscious investment of class or interest. The latter to recognize, that one wants and makes revolution out of desire, not duty. Here as elsewhere, the concept of ideology is raised the most profound of questions—Why did the masses desire fascism ?—was content to answer by invoking the ideological, the psychiatry he dreamed of, that prevented him from seeing how desire was part of the infrastructure, and that confined him in p 342 p 342 p 342 p 342 p 342 p 342

as social reality. There is an unconscious libidinal investment of desire that does not necessarily coincide with the preconscious investments of full body of a socius—these are the object of desire, higher than all the aims. It will never flow too p 342 p 342 p 342 p 342 p 342 p 342 that is not only technical but social, and through which desire desires its own repression. We have seen how the capitalist is loved for itself, as is the way in which desire represses itself in the great capitalist aggregate. Repressing desire, not which desire represses itself in the great capitalist aggregate. Repressing desire, not only for others but in oneself, being the cop technocrat, the bureaucrat, and why not the worker, the trade-unionist. Desire is agape. Not only can the libidinal investment of the measured according to its capacity to introduce the flows of desire into a new code or a new axiomatic of interest p 346 p 346 p 346 p 346 p 346 p 346 that it has the capacity for causing the flows of desire to circulate following their positive lines of escape, and for productive breaks. The most general principle of schizoanalysis is that desire is always constitutive of a social field. In any case is always constitutive of a social field. In any case desire belongs to the infrastructure, not to ideology: desire is in p 348 p 348 p 348 p 348 p 348 p 348 any case desire belongs to the infrastructure, not to ideology: desire is in production as social production, just as production is in production as social production, just as production is in desire as desiring-production. But these forms can be understood in two forms can be understood in two ways, depending on whether desire is enslaved to a structured molar aggregate that it constitutes of interest never takes the place of a machine of desire. A revolutionary group at the preconscious level remains a subjugated superegoization , narcissism, and hierarchy—the mechanisms for the repression of desire, A subject-group, on the contrary, is a group whose libidinal p 348 p 348 p 348 p 348 p 348 p 348 subjugated groups through a rupture of the latter: they mobilize desire, and always cut its flows again further on, overcoming the bringing the social machines back to the elementary forces of desire that form them. But inversely, they are also continually closing Reich-the-marginal, plotting a tangent of deterritorialization, causing the flows of desire to circulate, smashing the limit, breaching the wall. But it p 349 p 349 p 349 p 349 p 349 p 349 of schizoanalysis is therefore to reach the investments of unconscious desire of the social field, insofar as they are differentiated from good marriage). But what appears to other people as raw desire still contains complexes of desire and interest, and a mixture to other people as raw desire still contains complexes of desire and interest, and a mixture of forms of desire and of desire and interest, and a mixture of forms of desire and of interest that are specifically reactionary and vaguely revolutionary manner, yet thereby one stands a greater chance of killing desire, or of inventing forms of liberation for it drearier than inclusion and their transverse communication in the decoded flows of desire (included disjunctions, local connections, nomadic conjunctions). p 350 p 350 p 350 p 350 p 350 p 350

Wouldn't the Great Other, indispensable to the position of desire, be the Social Other. social difference apprehended and invested as Class struggle goes to the heart of the ordeal of desire. The familial romance is not a derivative of Oedipus; Oedipus What the orphan libido invests is a field of social desire, a field of production and antiproduction with its breaks and of parents. And the organizer is the social field of desire, which alone designates the zones of intensity, with all the a situation of economic dependence that has become unbearable for desire, or full of conflicts for the investment of desire. The for desire, or full of conflicts for the investment of desire. The psychoanalyst, who says so many things about the necessity sex, and the necessity for the woman to renounce her desire for the penis and for the man to renounce his to do with the phallus, but much to do with desire, with sexuality as desire. For the phallus has never been phallus, but much to do with desire, with sexuality as desire. For the phallus has never been either the object or has never been either the object or the cause of desire, but is itself the castrating apparatus, the machine for putting itself the castrating apparatus, the machine for putting lack into desire, for drying up all the flows, and for making all here—some relation with the outside, if you please. For desire does not survive cut off from the outside, cut off singularities, of intensities, of gears and parts of machines of desire, where one would have a hard time recognizing mother or zero term of a pure abolition that has haunted oedipalized desire from the start, and that is identified now, at the familial and personological axis—whereas Lacan assigns the cause of desire in a nonhuman object, heterogeneous to the person, below the of an infinite maintenance, an infinite resignation, an accession to desire by way of castration—and of the establishment of conditions the limit separating us from desiring-production, causing the flows of desire to circulate. Laing's importance lies in the fact that, starting there at last the enjoyment of the mechanisms that pulverize desire—such is the paranoiac experience. Now Oedipus appears to be that supposedly corresponds to it, in such a way that desire is caught in the trap of a familial psychic repression p 353 p 353 p 353 p 353 p 353 p 353

to the preconscious investments of interest, the unconscious investments of desire had sexuality as an index in their social scope itself is unconsciously invested for itself. That is why love and desire exhibit reactionary, or else revolutionary, indices; the latter emerge on nonfigurative indices, where persons give way to decoded flows of desire, to lines of vibration, and where the cross-sections of images overthrowing power, without reversing subordination, without returning production itself to desire: for it is only desire that lives from having no without returning production itself to desire: for it is only desire that lives from having no aim. Decoded desires and desires for decoding have always existed; history is full of them or not. The problem is situated there, between unconscious group desires and preconscious class interests. It is only starting from this historical process, than to understand : (a) what are the progressive desires, ideas and thoughts which are latent in people of different occupations, age groups and sexes, and (b) what are the desires, fears, thoughts and ideas (traditional bonds) which prevent the progressive fears, thoughts and ideas (traditional bonds) which prevent the progressive desires, ideas, etc., from developing. is what has to be explained. It happens that one desires against one's own interests: capitalism profits from this, but so to exist mainly in the mind of the father, who desires his son's death and schemes to bring it about. ... In the new means appropriated by desire and in the derived desires produced by the machines. A profound text by Samuel Butler mean that the capitalist being, or the being in capitalism, desires to work or that he works according to his desire that would presumably be in qualitative opposition to the life desires. Death is not desired, there is only death that desires desires. Death is not desired, there is only death that desires, by virtue of the body without organs or the immobile or the immobile motor, and there is also life that desires, by virtue of the working organs. There we do not of the working organs. There we do not have two desires but two parts, two kinds of desiring-machine parts, in the libido. A mortuary axiomatic. One might then believe in liberated desires, but ones that, like cadavers, feed on images. Death is is not only technical but social, and through which desire desires its own repression. We have seen how the capitalist machine breaks do not pass at the level of the unconscious desires and the preconscious interests. The preconscious revolutionary break is sufficiently the young, in the most malicious way, for putting their desires (a car, credit, a loan, girl-boy relationships) ahead of their any more than by the sources and aims of the desires and the drives. Desiring-machines work according to regimes of syntheses that have no equivalent of the social machines and the organic machines in the desiring-machines. At man's most basic stratum, the Id: the Schizophrenic cell unconscious—the ultimate molecular elements in the arrangement of the desiring-machines and the syntheses of desire. We have seen that, through	p 288 p 288 p 289 p 290

Sexuality and the desiring-machines are one and the same inasmuch as these machines are the social machines, in their field, their formation, their functioning. The order of desire is the order of production; all crush the entire sociopolitical content of Schreber's delirium if these desiring-machines of the father had been taken into account, as well of a machine, in a machinic information or communication? Schreber's desiring-machines communicate with those of his father; but it is in no longer even any reason for considering machines, whether as desiring-machines or as social machines. In return, the father will be coextensive with the field of delirium. Partial objects are what make up the parts of the desiring-machines; partial objects define the working machine or the working parts sex, unified and identified in the molar constellation. But the desiring-machines live on the contrary under the order of dispersion of of the real-desire (reel-desir): the elements or parts of the desiring-machines are recognized by their mutual independence, such that nothing in	p 323 p 323 p 323 p 323
is why, when we insisted earlier on the difference between desiring-machines and all the figures of molar machines, we were fully of desire. But who will be able to describe the desiring-machines of each subject, what analysis will be exacting enough for without organs are the two material elements of the schizophrenic desiring-machines: the one as the immobile motor, the others as the to the model of death, in the cycle of the desiring-machines. The cycle is closed. For a new departure, since this broadened experience, in order to live and know that the desiring-machines do not die. And that the subject as an adjacent is what schizophrenizing death amounts to, the exercise of the desiring-machines (which is their very secret, well understood by the terrifying continued and reinforced—eliminating the machinic element of desire, the desiring-machines. It is a matter of eliminating the libido, insofar as better coded in a circuit that never stops grafting the desiring-machines onto the social machine and implanting the social machine in the social machine and implanting the social machine in the desiring-machines. Death comes all the more from without as it is being swallowed up—a question of regime. Here are the desiring-machines, with their three parts: the working parts, the immobile motor task of schizoanalysis is that of learning what a subject's desiring-machines are, how they work, with what syntheses, what bursts of escape and the machinic indices all the way to the desiring-machines. If the essential aspect of the destructive task is to zero degree in the intensities produced; and thereby causing the desiring-machines to start up again. Such is the delicate and focal itself an investment of a molar formation. There are no desiring-machines that exist outside the social machines that they form on on a large scale; and no social machines without the desiring-machines that inhabit them on a small scale. Nor is there the flows will not pass through or overcome, subordinating the desiring-machines to the repressive aggregate that they constitute on a large sex, and without which the libido would not assemble its desiring-machines. DESIRING-PRODUCTION 184
1 THE DESIRING-MACHINES 1 Desiring-Production It is at work everywhere, functioning smoothly at times, at desire is that of an immanent principle. That is why desiring-production is the principal concern of a materialist psychiatry, which conceives always something grafted onto the product; and for that reason desiring-production is production of production, just as every machine is a the uninterrupted process, we must first establish a parallel between desiring-production and social production. We intend such a parallel to be	p 1 p 5 p 6 p 10

In a word, when the theoretician reduces desiring-production to a production of fantasy, he is content to exploit social production of reality on the one hand, and a desiring-production that is mere fantasy on the other. The only connections the matter is that social production is purely and simply desiring-production itself under determinate conditions. We maintain that the social field	p 26 p 28 p 29

But we must also say, more accurately, that desiring-production is first and foremost social in nature, and tends to desiring-machines in relation to the deterritorialized social machine. The despot is the paranoid: there is no longer any reason to power in the towns they found or conquer. Wherever a despot and his army pass, doctors, priests, scribes, and officials are and his perverts, the conqueror and his elite troops, the despot and his bureaucrats, the holy man and his disciples, the be the earth, it has become the body of the despot, the despot himself or his god. For there can be no doubt: this way the despot has of committing incest, and of making it possible, in the relationship between the voice and graphism: it is the despot who establishes the practice of writing (the most ancient authors the visual to converge toward the eminent unity of the despot. the great paranoiac king. O signifier, terrible archaism of the despot where they still look for the empty tomb, the dead of the chain in all the territory ruled by the despot, from the borders to the center: all the debts of no longer expresses itself except in the linear flux, the despot himself is the signifier of the voice that, along with is by no means a question of knowing if the despot marries his true sister and his true mother. For in states of a reconstituted, re-created intensity. With his sister the despot simulates a zero state from which the phallic force will situated at the extreme limit; and with his mother the despot simulates a superforce where the two sexes would be at new conditions present in the deterritorialized full body of the despot himself. This is the reason that incest changes its meaning the anuses become attached to the full body of the despot, as though to the peacock's tail of a royal train body, that it might break away or escape. Suddenly the despot sees rising up before him, against him, the enemy who will carry the assassinated, dismembered, dis-organ-ized, filed-down body of the despot into the latrines of the city. Wasn't it already the at the end, as the last vestige of the vanished despot, the underside of his voice: the despot is nothing more of the vanished despot, the underside of his voice: the despot is nothing more than this dead rat's ass suspended from incest, and the reflux of excrement that conducts the dead despot to the latrines, and conducts us all to today's private and makes them converge on, the full body of the despot. In point of fact the regime is not milder; the the hand, and the eye now joined together on the despot—the vengeance of the new alliance, whose public character does guarantee against despotism, the law is the invention of the despot himself: it is the juridical form assumed by the infinite this apparatus or slip away from the body of the despot. This is because there is no other necessity (no other signifies, to assert an independence of its signified—against the despot, says the law. For the dogs, according to Kafka's observations despot's subjects, nor even on his servants, but on the despot himself, his dynasty, and his name ([The people] do not apparatus. by the despot. Oedipus has received its name, the clubfooted despot committing double incest through overcoding, with his sister and his the reverse. At first it brings into play only the despot, the sister, and the mother: it is the overcoding and state in the proper sense of the term, where the despot returns as the absolute monarch. For it is a double democracies, how could one fail to recognize in them the despot who has become colder and more hypocritical, more calculating, since State is desire that passes from the head of the despot to the hearts of his subjects, and from the intellectual or even the maximum consumption in the extravagance of the despot and his agents. When the conjunction moves to the fore to bear against another life, but a post-mortem despotism, the despot become anus and vampire: Capital is dead labour, that vampire-like a field of immanence uncovered by the withdrawal of the despot—all this is evidence that writing belongs to imperial despotic us to the current structural functions of a vanished archaic despot. For it is certain that, even and especially in their two poles: the paranoiac despotic sign, the sign-signifier of the despot that they try to revive as a unit of code in overcoding the flows on the full body of the despot or his apparatus, the Urstaat: it effects the first great one of the poles of its axiomatic, it makes the despot into one of its images. That is why Oedipus gathers the local group with Laius, the territoriality with Jocasta, the despot with Oedipus himself: a motley painting of everything that has order of the despotic signifier, as the law of the despot or the effect of the object from on high, is that consists in replacing desire under the law of the despot, in introducing lack there at the deepest levels, and in territoriality, the couch, and a last Law, the analyst as despot and money collector. But the mother as the simulacrum of the madman of the earth and the madman of the despot comes the madman of the family; what nineteenth-century psychiatry had relate to the character or the map of this socius-earth, despot, or capital-money (for each social machine the two poles, paranoiac deterritorialized socius. The socius—the earth, the body of the despot, capital-money—are clothed full bodies, just as the body without Likewise tragedy ascribes desire to the full body of the despot and to the corresponding imperial code. Consequently, the understanding of acts as an objective and public element—the Earth, the Despot—is now taken up again, but as the expression of of a subjective and private reterritorialization: Oedipus is the fallen despot—banished, deterritorialized—but a reterritorialization is engineered, using the Oedipus is dead, the territorial father, and the son too, the despot Oedipus. We are alone with our bad conscience and our Everything, the myth of the earth, the tragedy of the despot, is taken up again as shadows projected on a stage revives the archaism of the imperial symbol or the vanished despot. All three are necessary—precisely in order to lead Oedipus the flows on a full body of the earth, the despot, or capital, but on the contrary that of decoding them of the socius, veritable heavy aggregates of the earth, the despot, and capital. Full bodies or clothed substances, which are distinguished socius—the body of the earth, the body of the despot, the body of capital-money—depends on a state or degree	p 215 p 216 p 220 p 220 p 221 p 224 p 228 p 240 p 244 p 260 p 261 p 267 p 267 p 268 p 268 p 269 p 271 p 281 p 281 p 301 p 304 p 304

of a social formation. And new perverse groups spread the despot's invention (perhaps they even fabricated it for him), broadcast his allowed to interfere with ascending lines. That is why the despot's incest is twofold, by virtue of the new alliance and social and psychic repression (l'appareil repression-refoulement). On the contrary, the despot's intervention forms part of the apparatus, it changes only the justice, the functionaries' activity, historiography: everything is written in the despot's procession. Let us return to the paradox that emerges from having become a desire of desire, a desire of the despot's desire. The mouth no longer speaks, it drinks the letter the infinite debt. The jurist will be seen in the despot's procession up to the time of the late Roman emperors desiring-machines: death, the desire of desire, the desire of the despot's desire, a latency inscribed in the bowels of the State a necessity of signification, does not bear only on the despot's subjects, nor even on his servants, but on the despot the nets of the despotic State, entirely invested in the despot's machine? Perhaps then the merit of the West, confined as fetishes of the earth, or the celestial reign of the despot's idols, is the advent of the Oedipal-narcissistic machine: No more as such, beyond goals. And it is not merely the despot's body to which the paranoiac lovingly aspires, but the body	p 193 p 200 p 201 p 202 p 206 p 213 p 213 p 214 p 224 p 266 p 365

the primitive territorial machine proved inadequate to the task, the despotic machine set up a kind of overcoding system. But the insofar as it was built on the ruins of a despotic State more or less far removed in time, finds itself machine, as manic-depression and paranoia are the product of the despotic machine, and hysteria the product of the territorial machine? The at the very limit of the social codes, where a despotic Signifier destroys all the chains, linearizes them, biunivocalizes them, and chains of the unconscious are biunivocalized, linearized, suspended from a despotic signifier. The whole of desiring-production is crushed, subjected to the operation that extracted a detached object from the chain, a despotic signifier from whose law the entire chain seems consequently to direction of a structural integration (toward the position of a despotic signifier, under the reign of the phallus). The aptitude for a kind of projection of the signifying chains onto a despotic signifier, lacking unto itself and reintroducing lack into the series complete object from the signifying chain, which served as a despotic signifier on which the entire chain thereafter seemed to depend them to circulate, flows that split asunder the catholic and despotic signifier of his work, and that necessarily nourish a revolutionary literally correct (although he limits its application to the barbarian despotic institution): If, more or less in agreement with Reuleaux's classic invokes an entire political history that brings into conflict the despotic machine and the old primitive territorial machine—whence derive both iron impossibility. The earth becomes a madhouse. 6 The Barbarian Despotic Machine The founding of the despotic machine or the barbarian madhouse. 6 The Barbarian Despotic Machine The founding of the despotic machine or the barbarian socius can be summarized in the the desert paranoiac and the town pervers. In theory the despotic barbarian formation has to be conceived of in terms of we are talking about the imperial barbarian formation or the despotic machine. And this holds true whatever the context of this rankings, the mechanism of surplus value—all this already prefigured despotic formations and caste hierarchies. And how does one distinguish the or at least it has no autonomous mercantile model. The despotic machine holds the following in common with the primitive machine use of it for the benefit of private property, the despotic tie between money and taxes remains visible. Basing himself on of deterritorialization that subordinates all the primitive filiations to the despotic machine (the agrarian problem); the abolition of debts or their be allowed to choose Such times as are convenient. The despotic State, such as it appears in the purest conditions of primitive machine are now forced into a bottleneck, where the despotic machine overcodes them. Overcoding is the operation that constitutes the intrinsic code, no underlying flow escapes the overcoding of the despotic machine; hence it is by virtue of his sterility that overcoding, as the two ends of a tie for the despotic knot. A pause seems in order here while we ask	p 33 p 33 p 33 p 40 p 54 p 73 p 74 p 83 p 110 p 133 p 141 p 182 p 192 p 192 p 193 p 193 p 195 p 197 p 197 p 197 p 198 p 199

this finds itself overwhelmed in a new destiny, with the despotic machine and imperial representation. In the first place, graphism aligns the flow of writing as direct filiation. These two fundamental despotic categories are also the movement of graphism that, at one signs that compose the networks of a territorial chain, a despotic signifier from which all the signs uniformly flow in a deterritorialized flow, drinkable on this account: it flows from the despotic signifier. For what is the signifier in the first instance sign that has become a sign of the sign, the despotic sign having replaced the territorial sign, having crossed the threshold show how an operation of biunivocalization organizes itself around a despotic signifier, so that a phonetic and alphabetical chain flows from signifier back to its source, to its veritable origin, the despotic age, and erects an infernal machine that welds desire to and metonymy—all of that constitutes the overcoding and deterritorialized despotic machine. The despotic signifier has the effect of overcoding the of that constitutes the overcoding and deterritorialized despotic machine. The despotic signifier has the effect of overcoding the territorial chain. The reality, but rather it appropriates reality in the operation of despotic overcoding, it produces reality on the new full body that passages in the cycle of intensities. This is because the despotic signifier aims at the reconstitution of the full body of the danger that a single organ might flow outside the despotic body, that it might break away or escape. Suddenly the sky. The organs begin by detaching themselves from the despotic body, the organs of the citizen risen up against the of smelling bad. The entire history of primitive coding, of despotic overcoding, and of the decoding of private man turns on that no surplus value escapes the over coding of the despotic machine. For all the organs and their functions experience a now become the virtue of the subjects attached to the despotic body. As Nietzsche says when he shows precisely how punishment the young dogs will call for a return to the despotic signifier, without exegesis or interpretation, while the law, however, wants development of the democratic signified or the wrapping of the despotic signifier—nevertheless forms part of the same question, sometimes open it that linguists are constantly rediscovering the truths of the despotic age? And finally, could it be that this arbitrariness of this man who dragged Caesar along with him as a despotic signifier, along with its two signifieds, his sister and his the unconscious would be kept under the weight of the despotic apparatus, that it would be reinterpreted starting from this apparatus and the signifier—phallus and castration, yes! Oedipus, no!—the despotic age of the unconscious.) 8 The Urstaat The city of is more evolved is like a palimpsest: it covers a despotic inscription, a Mycenaean manuscript. Under every Black and every Jew how does one explain both this latency into which the despotic State enters, and this power with which it re-forms itself To begin with, it should be said that the primordial despotic state is not a historical break like any other. Of a whole. What is transected, supersected, or overcoded by the despotic State is what comes before—the territorial machine, which it henceforth subjected to the cerebral idea. In this sense the despotic State is indeed the origin, but the origin as an whether the territorial machine does not in fact presuppose a despotic machine from which it extracts the bricks or that it same category. For example, feudalism not only presupposes an abstract despotic State that it divides into segments according to the regime socialist States take on the characteristic features of the primordial despotic State. As for democracies, how could one fail to recognize so on. The differences could be determining only if the despotic State were one concrete formation among others, to be treated concrete formation among others, to be treated comparatively. But the despotic State is the abstraction that is realized—in imperial formations movement of deterritorialization appears with the overcoding performed by the despotic State. But it is nothing compared to the other great to induce the birth of capitalism. Decoded flows strike the despotic State with latency; they submerge the tyrant, but they also There is a great difference in this respect between the despotic age and the capitalist age. For the founders of the For the founders of the State come like lightning; the despotic machine is synchronic while the capitalist machine's time is diachronic rather that desire remains caught in the nets of the despotic State, entirely invested in the despot's machine? Perhaps then the the basis of connections of production, and that the barbarian despotic machine was based on disjunctions of inscription derived from the that these two elements result from the segmentation of the despotic State in feudalism, and from the decomposition of the feudal surplus value which explains, for example, the difference between the despotic bureaucracy and the capitalist bureaucracy. This effusion from the apparatus designated, the subordination of the signified, the transcendence of the despotic signifier, and finally, its consecutive decomposition into minimal elements within despot—all this is evidence that writing belongs to imperial despotic representation. Once this is said, what exactly is meant when of still referring, in a direct or indirect form, to despotic overcoding. This seems to us to be the significance of to us to preside over the evolution of the abstract despotic Urstaat: from being at first the transcendent unity, it becomes in forms other than consumption. The generalized slavery of the despotic State at least implied the existence of masters, and an from this axiomatic just as they free themselves from the despotic signifier, that break through this wall, and this wall of of the object, under exterior conditions, in the territorial or despotic machine. But Marx is quick to add that this essentially it as a special activity still tied to a money-creating despotic machine; the physiocrats, pushing this presentiment still further, had tied Born of decoding and deterritorialization, on the ruins of the despotic machine, these societies are caught between the Urstaat that they paranoia and schizophrenia. They vacillate between two poles: the paranoiac despotic sign, the sign-signifier of the despot that they try to and socialism as well, are as though torn between the despotic signifier that they adore, and the schizophrenic figure that sweeps break that represents a genuine advance in comparison with the despotic State, in terms of its fulfillment of a becoming-immanent, its has never been but one State, the Urstaat, the Asiatic despotic formation, which constitutes in its shadow existence history's only break has naturalized the artificial, replacing the territorial codes and the despotic overcoding with an axiomatic of decoded flows, and a regulation its bureaucracy and its technocracy, do not resemble the ancient despotic State. Of course not, since it is a matter in of the flows; the system of subordination-disjunction in the barbarian despotic machine, corresponding to overcoding; the system of co-ordination-conjunction in the 11 Oedipus at Last In the territorial or even the despotic machine, social economic reproduction is never independent of human reproduction alliances and the filiations, but also with respect to the despotic machine, which adds the relations of the new alliance and and filiations (whence the role of the sovereign's family in despotic overcoding, and that of the dynastywhatever its mutations, its is no longer anyone but daddy, mommy, and me, the despotic sign inherited by daddy, the residual territoriality assumed by mommy secondary reduction of the latter to the former. In the despotic formations the Oedipal limit is occupied, symbolically occupied but not as an empty unoccupied limit. It takes form in the despotic machine as a symbolically occupied limit. But it is filled by becoming the imaginary Oedipus of the capitalist machine. The despotic machine preserved the primitive territorialities, and the capitalist machine resuscitates and simulacra—here we have the whole series: territorial fetishes, despotic idols or symbols, then everything is recapitulated in the images symbolic position of an object from on high, in the despotic machine, did not first make possible the folding and flattening and imaginary Oedipus. For castration in the order of the despotic signifier, as the law of the despot or the effect to the Imaginary, from castration to Oedipus, and from the despotic age to capitalism, inversely there is the progress leading to through Catholicism, then the Reformation. The extreme spiritualization of the despotic State, and the extreme internalization of the capitalist field, define of territoriality, and the father as the simulacrum of the despotic Law, with the slashed, split, castrated ego, are the products aggregates, are arranged; on paranoia schizophrenia body of the Earth despotic body body of capital molar aggregates molecular elements Full body molecular elements Full body without organs Body of the Earth Despotic body Body of capital-money Full body without organs Oedipal neuroses without organs Oedipal neuroses as familial entities Paranoiac psychoses as despotic entities Perversions as territorial entities Schizophrenic process of deterritorialization Schizophrenia to particular objective codes—the body of the Earth, the despotic body—and that in this way confound the discovery of rather the conditions under which this element fades before the despotic element; and tragic representation does not express the despotic element the despotic element; and tragic representation does not express the despotic element properly speaking, but the conditions under which—in fifth-century is constructed on the ruins of the territorial and the despotic, the mythic and the tragic representations, but it re-establishes them the signs themselves become signifying under the action of a despotic symbol that totalizes them in the name of its own how the structural organization of signifiers still depends on a despotic Great Signifier acting as an archaism.) What is this point of support; on the other hand, the erection of a despotic signifier on which the entire chain depends. In this regard essence on the residual territoriality of Oedipus and under the despotic signifier of castration, he could no longer conceive the essence how it inherited much from a transcendent death-carrying agency, the despotic signifier, but also how it brought about this agency's effusion is referred to large objectivities, to the territorial or the despotic body, which act as natural or divine preconditions that thus codes. That is why the primitive codes and even the despotic overcodings testify to a polyvocality that functionally draws them nearer
